Asked to curb imports, relax pollution

Carter pressured to 'save steel jobs'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration and Congress came under increased pressure Friday for import restrictions to protect the nation's ailing steel industry and save jobs.

Some 300 steel workers from the Youngstown, Ohio, area appealed to their senators and a White House official for help while local elected officials from steel industry cities lobied at the Commerce Department.

Steel industry cutbacks have cost more than 5,000 jobs at Youngstown alone.

"This is going to tear up the community," Edward Mann, president of United Steelworkers Local 1462 in Youngstown, told Midge Costanza, a presidential assistant.

Mann and about 30 union members met with Ms. Costanza at the White House gate and gave her petitions urging the government to curb steel imports and to relax pollution control requirements.

The rest of the group, which arrived aboard five buses, marched to Capitol Hill where the steel workers met with Ohio's two senators and also gave them similar petitions bearing thousands of names.

At the same time, Anne Wexler, deputy undersecretary of commerce for regional affairs, met with representatives from Youngstown, Pittsburgh and other steel cities. She said she would relay the group's suggestions to the White House and said the Commerce Department would "do all we could."

Ms. Costanza said she would try to arrange a White House meeting with local officials and union representatives. "We want to get to the bottom of this," she said.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, told the steel workers that a meeting tentatively has been arranged for next week with President Carter, key administration officials and congressmen to discuss the problem.

L.A. won't allow Concorde to land

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The city won't allow the supersonic Concorde jetliner to land at Los Angeles International Airport despite a proposal by the Carter administration that would permit landings in the United States, airport spokesmen said Friday.

Robert C. Davidson, deputy general manager for the Department of Airports, said the city has spent $200 million in efforts to restrict noise around the airport and is not about to jeopardize that investment.

"It cannot land here," added airport spokeswoman Virginia Blake. "We will not permit it to land."

She pointed that the federal government has imposed strict noise regulations, including an order to retrofit older and noisier jet aircraft.

Killer's life spared for week at least

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge rejected convicted murderer John A. Spenkelink's challenge to Florida's death penalty law Friday but spared the condemned prisoner from execution for at least a week.

Actually, Spenkelink probably received an even longer reprieve when Gov. Reubin Askew left Friday for a 17-day industry and investment recruitment trip to the Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden and Switzerland.

The death warrant Askew signed for Spenkelink on Sept. 12 expires at midnight Saturday, and an aide said the governor would not sign another warrant until after his return on Oct. 10, and then only if no federal court stay is in effect.

Spenkelink originally was scheduled to die in the electric chair at Florida State Prison last Monday for the slaying of Joseph Szymankiewiz, 43, of Detroit, an Ohio parole violator.

U.S. District Court Judge William Stafford stayed the execution Sept. 16 to hear arguments on the challenge to the death penalty law. In rejecting the challenge Friday, he extended the stay until next Friday to give Spenkelink time to appeal his ruling.

House attacks Medicare abuses, 'expensive' nursing homes, doctors

Bill to curb medical frauds passes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to combat abuse of Medicare and Medicaid and impose tougher penalties on nursing homes and doctors that pad their bills was approved Friday by the House.

The vote of 362 to 5 sends the measure to the Sente, where a similar bill has been approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

The final version is expected to get quick approval from President Carter.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. praised the House action, saying, "This is an important milestone in the attempt of the Congress and the executive branch to make government Medicaid and Medicare programs free from fraud, abuse and error."

He said HEW will use the power to curb fraud in the two health programs to the full extent permitted in the bill.

The bill would stiffen penalties for physicians or nursing homes convicted of defrauding the Medicare and Medicaid programs, and for members of the medical profession who solicit kickbacks or bribes to gain more business.

It would change most fraudulent acts in the health programs from misdemeanors to felonies. Current maximum penalties of one year in prison and a $10,000 fine would be raised to five years in prison and a $25,000 fine.

One intent of the legislation is to do away with so-called Medicaid mills, or unregulated, unlicensed and poorly equipped storefront units located in ghettos of large cities. They derive their main business from welfare patients.

A common violation of the Medicaid mills is to ping-pong, or refer patients from one doctor to another within the facility although there is no medical reason to do so.

Investigations also have revealed that some physicians determine which laboratories will do the test work for their Medicaid patients by the amount of kickbacks the laboratories offer.

After 2 days, arms pact closer

Vance, Gromyko 'making progress'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko wound up two days of talks Friday and reported progress toward a new strategic arms limitation agreement.

After seven hours of talks at the White House and the State Department, Gromyko told reporters, "The position of the two sides has drawn somewhat closer together."

Vance said he agreed with that assessment.

Gromyko emphasized there is still no agreement to replace the 1972 arms limitation accord, which expires Oct. 3.

"We will do all in our power to ensure a successful outcome of the talks," Gromyko said through his interpreter. The foreign minister added that the possibility of a summit meeting between President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Breshnev also was discussed, but he gave no details.

In a statement issued Friday night, Vance announced formally that the United States would continue to adhere to the terms of the agreement after its expiration date.

"In order to maintain the status quo while Salt II negotiations are being completed, the United States declares its intention not to take any action inconsistent with the provisions of (SALT I) which expires on Oct. 3, 1977 and with the goals of these ongoing negotiations provided that the Soviet Union exercises similar restraint," the statement said.

Vance had previously disclosed the administration's intention to continue to honor the expiring accord in a letter to Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Earlier, the State Department said it had decided not to seek a formal extension of the expiring arms agreement in order to pressure the Soviet Union into negotiating a more ambitious arms pact.

The President took a personal hand in the arms talks on Friday when he met with Gromyko for three hours.

Six children, adult trapped, die in blaze

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Six children and an adult died Friday after being trapped on the top floor of a three-story apartment building by a rapidly spreading fire, authorities said.

The four-alarm fire, which started in a first floor kitchen stove, spread through an air shaft and gave the victims virtually no time to escape, Fire Chief William Neafsey said.

The victims were identified as Anna Alvela, 44; her two grandchildren, Nancy Alvela, 3, and Evelyn Alvela, 2; Barbara Aguilar, 6, and her three brothers, Albert, 5, and George and Edward, both 3.

White woman 'whose rights were violated' admitted to med school

Minority admissions program faces challenge

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A federal judge on Friday ordered the University of California medical school at Davis to admit a 22-year-old white woman who had argued that a minority admissions program violated her rights.

U.S. District Judge Thomas MacBride ordered that Rita Clancy be admitted to the beginning of classes on Monday.

He said that while the constitutionality of the minority admissions program is being determined by the U.S. Supreme Court in a case involving a white male student, Allan Bakke, Mrs. Clancy would suffer unless she were immediately admitted.

Under the minority admissions program, 16 of the 100 openings in each entering class are reserved for disadvantaged minority students.

Bakke has argued that he was denied admission while less qualified minority students were accepted under the special program.

Mrs. Clancy advanced basically the same argument, but the university had asked MacBride to hold up a ruling on her suit until a decision in the Bakke case was handed down by the Supreme Court. The nation's highest court is scheduled to consider the Bakke case on Oct. 12.

MacBride's ruling did not abolish the minority admissions program, which is continuing while the Supreme Court considers the Bakke case.

But the judge said that Mrs. Clancy would suffer more harm by continued denial of admission than the university would suffer in admitting her until the constitutionality of the issue is settled.

Mrs. Clancy, a Russian immigrant from a poor family, graduated from UCLA with an Aminus average and was at the top of the medical school waiting list for the fall term.

In denying the university' request to delay the issue until the Bakke case is resolved, the judge issued a temporary restraining order admitting Mrs. Clancy.

MADE WITH TENDER LOVING CARE, AND SHE'S A WINNER!

Toni Callen, of San Dimas, a mother of four, was entered in the annual butter-churning contest by her children at the Los Angeles County Fair Friday afternoon. And though she had never been in such a competition previously, lo and behold, she was awarded first place for her two pounds of heart-shaped butter. Joe Mangrich of Pomona was second, Harold Vensand of Lakewood third, and fair princess Terrilyn Batson of San Dimas, fourth. In the pictures above, the winner strokes vigorously for 10 minutes (left), then empties the butter into a dish for cleaning and forming, and finally, the blue ribbon winner!

Compromise on natural gas prices blocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both the Carter administration and the chairman of the Senate Energy Committee indicated Friday that they were willing to compromise on natural gas pricing after a key setback for the Carter plan.

But their efforts appeared frustrated by what amounted to a filibuster led by senators who feel any increase in gas prices over the current levels is unjustified.

The prolonged debate that seemed likely in the Senate could seriously delay enactment of the President's troubled energy program.

Unable to cut the filibuster short, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., scheduled an unusual Saturday session. Both he and Republican leader Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., said they were ready to file a debate-limiting cloture petition if necessary.

If three-fifths of the Senate goes along with such a petition, debate on the gas pricing measure would be limited to 100 hours.

Meanwhile, several key administration officials also suggested the possibility of a compromise in the Senate, although they stressed that the President prefers the House-passed bill, which contains his pricing proposal.

In a crucial test, the Senate on Thursday voted 52 to 46 against the Carter plan for continued controls on natural gas and agreed to keep debating an industry-supported proposal to deregulate new natural gas prices.

Carter's plan would keep controls but raise the lid from the current $1.45 per thousand cubic feet to $1.75 while also extending this limit to the now-unregulated market in Texas, Louisiana and other gas-producing states.

UP ON A RAIL — An automobile dangles from a safety rail in front of the Alpha Beta market on S. Garey Avenue in Pomona after the driver lost control and crashed through a brick planter box Friday. The collision sent bricks smashing through the store windows but no one was injured. The driver of the car, Earl Stevens, 82, escaped serious injury.

Noise standard for Concordes upsets French

PARIS (AP) — The French denounced as "inadmissible and very grave" President Carter's decision Friday to require future supersonic Concordes to meet the same noise standards as other jetliners.

But the British welcomed the decision to continue Concorde service to the United States.

French Transport Minister Marcel Cavaille told a news conference that the American decision, announced by Transportation Secretary Brock Adams in Washington, "throws the future of the French-British Concord program into jeopardy."

He said it would limit the program to the 16 Concordes already built or being built.

Cavaille said he thought the French and British governments should make a joint protest to Washington over the "unilateral" decision, which he said flouted international law.

In London, the British comanufacturers of the plane said they were "delighted" by the U.S. move, which allows for continued and possible expanded service by existing Concordes to the United States. Knowledgeable British sources said the development might enable the deficit-burdered plane to begin turning a profit.

British Airways, which uses five Concordes, welcomed Washington's decision as "another step forward for the plane."

Marx's children get riches

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Groucho Marx's will, leaving most of his riches to his three children and $150,000 to his longtime companion, Erin Fleming, was entered into probate Friday without opposition.

Groucho, who died Aug. 1 after a lengthy illness, also named Miss Fleming his business manager, asking that she take care of business dealings.

"He believed," said Miss Fleming in a telephone interview Friday, "that I had a full understanding of who he was as a man and an actor, an artist and a Jew, a lover and a clown."

Superior Court Judge Edward Rafeedie approved the admission of the Marx will and named the Bank of America as executor. Marx left a proviso in his will that if any of his heirs contested the will they were to receive $1 and the balance of their prescribed inheritance would go to charity. Nobody contested it.

Ethiopia gears for big battle

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Both Ethiopian troops and Somali-backed insurgents in Ethiopia's eastern Ogaden region appeared to be using a fighting lull to gear for a major battle, Western diplomatic sources reported Friday.

Only reports of isolated skirmishes reached Addis Ababa, the capital of Ethiopia, the sources said. The rebels are fighting to annex the region to Somalia.

The diplomatic sources, contacted from Nairobi, said, "Ethiopians drafted in the latest emergency call-up have gradually started going to the war front."

Police jail two suspects

Robbers hit two small markets

Two small Pomona markets were robbed Thursday and officers early today booked two suspects in connection with one of the holdups.

That robbery occurred late Thursday night at the 7-Eleven Market at 1001 E. Grand Ave. where two men, one armed with a shiny revolver, threatened to "blow away" the cashier if he did not surrender the store's cash.

The victim, 21 years old, said the pair entered, bought beer and then one pulled the pistol after asking him if he had ever been robbed before. After obtaining a small amount of cash, the robbers ran to a car parked outside and sped away.

An hour later, police arrested two men they found in a similar car bearing a similar license number. The pair, Armando Gerardo Gonzalez, 20, and Rolando Daveila Requena Jr., 21, were booked on suspicion of robbery.

The other holdup occurred late Thursday afternoon at the Columbia Market at 1432 W. Ninth St.

The victim, 22 years old, said the lone robber pulled a revolver from his waistband and demanded money after taking a six-pack of beer to the counter. The gunman then fled into a field nearby.

He was described as a Latin about 19, 5 feet 9 weighing 160 pounds. He wore a white T-shirt, a painter's hat and tan trousers.

Regular minimum wage hike scuttled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration and key liberal senators gave up Friday on their proposal to increase the minimum wage automatically in the future.

The House already had killed a proposal for an automatic escalator — called indexing — last week when it passed a bill raising the current $2.30 an hour minimum to $2.65 in January.

With evidence mounting that the Senate also would reject the indexing idea, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall announced that the administration now supports a new alternative amendment to the Senate's minimum wage bill.

Under the new proposal, the minimum wage would go to $2.65 in January, then increase by 25 cents an hour each year so that it would reach $3.40 in 1981.

The new amendment was introduced by Sens. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the Human Resources Committee, and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., the committee's ranking minority member.

The proposed minimum wage figures are almost equal to what the indexing formula would have yielded. The formula would have been tied to a percentage of the average wages paid workers as determined by the Labor Department.

The bill passed by the House would set minimum wages at $2.85 in 1979, $3.05 in 1980 and no change in 1981.

Sen. Williams said in a statement that he had received "expressions of concern" from other senators and business groups over the indexing idea. He noted the House eliminated the idea and said there "is obviously considerable sentiment in this body for the House approach."

The House narrowly defeated an amendment to the wage bill that would have allowed employers to hire persons under age 21 at 80 per cent of the minimum wage. Business groups are expected to lobby for restoration of this proposal in the Senate bill.

Pomona employes accept wage pact

By an extremely narrow margin, members of the Pomona City Employees Association have voted in favor of a three-year salary and fringe benefit package.

But it may not be until its Oct. 10 meeting that the Pomona City Council will study the proposed agreement with the city's miscellaneous employees.

Of 232 paid association members, 151 cast ballots Thursday night. According to the results, 78 voted for the package, while 73 said no.

Negotiations started in February, but had reached an impasse until the election Thursday night.

'Brown's' mansion available

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The vacant governor's mansion, shunned by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. as a "Taj Mahal," will be available for seminars and training sessions next year under a bill signed by Brown Friday.

The $1.3-million, Spanish-style structure beside the American River in Carmichael, 15 miles east of the Capitol, has never been used. It was a project of Gov. Ronald Reagan, built on land donated by his supporters.

During his 1974 campaign, while the mansion was being built, Brown called it a "Taj Mahal" and a "white elephant" and vowed not to live in it. He rents two apartments in a state-owned building across from the Capitol.

The bill, AB 1685 by Assemblyman Frank Vicencia, D-Bellflower, will allow government employes to hold seminars and training sessions in the mansion as long as no governor lives there.

Little queen fete set

Gracie Oliver, a two-foot, 10 inch woman from Michigan, will be crowned queen of Little People International at the group's annual banquet tonight at 8:15 at Griswold's in Claremont.

The banquet precedes the Billy Barty Celebrity Golf Tournament sponsored by the Little People at Azusa Greens Golf Course Sunday.

Gracie will serve as Little Miss International following her crowning tonight. She is 21 years old, and comes from Grosse Pointe, Mich. She is attending college in Michigan and plans to be a teacher of the blind.

13 A LUCKY NUMBER

Wilhelmina Van Dam of Upland shows off the 13 scallops she knitted to win the junior division of the Nimble Fingers competition this week at the Los Angeles County Fair. She's an eight-time winner.

Uplander wins knitting contest

Wilhelmina Van Dam of Upland brought her own cheering section to the Nimble Fingers knitting competition at the Los Angeles County Fair this week.

Mrs. Van Dam didn't let them down as she won her eighth blue ribbon in the junior or under 65 division.

Present during the 15-minute contest were her husband, Cornelius; her brother, Bob Spits; his wife, Claire; and the two Spits children, Cassandra and Jason.

The Spits family is on vacation from Australia.

Van Dam commented only that his wife is "great."

Mrs. Van Dam was credited with 13 puffs, and beat out the 1976 winner, Rose Belair of West Covina, who had 11&1/6 puffs for second.

In the senior division, Dorothy Heisler of Fullerton won for the second straight year and will not be eligible to compete in 1977.

She had 10&2/5 puffs, one more than runner-up Agnes McQueen of Los Angeles, who won in 1976. Ina Maxwell had 8&5/6, and Mary Brose of Riverside, who won the crocheting in 1975 and 1976, finished 8&4/5 puffs. Fifth was Juanita Swaim with 7&5/6 puffs. Lone male entry Don Laughlin of La Verne came in ninth with 4&4/5 puffs and a $2.50 prize.

Mrs. Heisler said that she was on vacation in 1976 and therefore didn't compete.

She said that she has knitted five afghans, one for each of her grandchildren.

"When each turns 18, I will give him or her an afghan for a birthday present," she said.

Modified design of Upland shopping center approved

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

There's no accounting for taste.

Upland City Council this week gave new testimony to the validity of that adage when it gave left-handed approval to the city Architectural Commission's modified design of Mountaingreen Center — a major shopping complex to be built on the northwest corner of Mountain Avenue and Seventh Street.

It was a victory for what some called "architectural continuity," although others insisted it was a slap in the face of architectural originality.

By a 2-2 tie vote, the council killed the last ditch effort by developer Harry Crowell to save the original design of the center.

"I'm not at all happy about it," said Crowell of the modifications.

His unhappiness won't prevent the center from being built, however, although he said he may lose a couple of months because of the modifications.

Before the vote, Crowell gave an impassioned presentation, calling the original design "exciting" and "innovative."

The original proposal included staggered store fronts, recessed garden-like areas, and a mixture of building textures and colors.

"The original design creates appeal and interest. We wanted a place that would be fun to shop, where people would want to walk around and look in the windows," said Crowell.

Crowell fought for his architect's original design, not only this week, but over the past several months as the center went through a number of Architectural Commission hearings.

In the end, however, he was unable to convince the commission, or a majority of the council, that the design was as perfect as he maintained.

The commission ordered changes and Crowell said he has "relunctantly agreed."

The changes create a more conventional looking center with subtler colors, textures and forms.

Councilman Hal Bailin, Crowell's one avid supporter on the council, called the changes dull.

"There's nothing distinctive about, and nothing bad about it either. I'd rather take a chance at being a little brash and different," said Bailin.

Bailin wanted to override the commission's findings and picked up Councilman William Bottin's support.

Bottin looked at the commission's design and decided he didn't like it.

"You're all crazy," he said.

Councilwoman Ina Petokas and Mayor George Gibson stood behind the commission, however.

Mrs. Petokas said she found the original design "trendy" and suspected it would not hold up well in the years ahead.

The fifth vote on the matter belonged to Councilman John McCarthy, who pleaded confusion.

He said he just couldn't envision the center from drawings.

"I just don't feel qualified to make a judgement," McCarthy said.

He abstained in the vote.

The council's tie vote leaves the commission's findings intact.

Crowell said the preparation of new plans, incorporating the changes ordered by the commission, may delay the opening of one of the center's major tenants — Mervyn's Department Store.

Opening had been planned for next April, but may have to be pushed back six months to accommodate Mervyn's rigid sales and advertising campaign schedule, said Crowell.

Other major tenants will include a Long's Drug Store, a four-unit Mann Theater complex, a Denny's Restaurant and Reuben's Plankhouse Restaurant.

Crowell said he already has 26 businesses with pre-leases in the center, which is expected to draw a regional market with its access to the adjacent San Bernardino Freeway.

Chino district not as large as expected

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

The Chino school district isn't growing quite as fast as officials thought.

Enrollment as of Sept. 16 for grades kindergarten through 12th is 12,693, nearly 700 fewer students than officials had estimated earlier.

However, administrators say about 200 more students will enroll in the district by the end of September, which would narrow the gap between projected and actual enrollment to 500.

The original estimate of 13,374 students was projected for the end of September, officials say.

Administrators indicate a 5 percent "error" was made in kindergarten through eighth grade projections.

According to Art Utsler, research and planning assistant, the number of children coming out of new homes being built in Chino is not as high as experienced a year ago. "Significant changes in elementary and junior high student/dwelling ratios have been experienced with recent move-ins," he noted.

New residents moving into the Chino housing tracts are younger and have less children in grades kindergarten through eighth, said Utsler.

Families just aren't having as many children these days, and this could be causing the errors in enrollment projections, officials say.

A total district census will be taken in November, and long range effects of the errors will then be determined.

School trtees were informed of the projection mistakes at this week's board meeting.

Trustee Dan Santo noted that if the district proves to have 500 fewer students than previously estimated, it could lose about $600,000 in state funds given for average daily attendance.

Administrators indicated enrollment may pick up, however, later in the year.

Squirrels are too aggressive for Wrightwood

By VONNE ROBERTON
PB Staff Writer

Washington's squirrels are just too aggressive for California.

At least that is what state Department of Health officials told Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., West Covina, when he asked about the feasibility of transporting some of the squirrels from the overpopulated area around the White House to Wrightwood, a mountain community in his district.

Last year, the squirrel population was decimated by a plague of ticks which attacked hundreds of animals in the San Bernardino Mountain community. The attractive red and gray squirrels were an ever-present sight in the yards and treetops.

State health officials said the Washington squirrels tend to be susceptible to some pests which are here on the West Coast and on the other hand, are host to pests which California control officers want to keep out of the state.

"A previous experiment in which Washington squirrels were imported into San Francisco's Golden Gate park was disastrous," adds Lloyd. "The Eastern squirrels were so aggressive that they drove away the native animals."

Tom Pinard, editor of the Wrightwood Mountaineer, said it was too early to know what most residents felt about the failure to obtain the White House squirrels since most of the people had not yet heard the decision.

"We may start a grass-roots drive to import some animals from another area within the state," said Pinard.

Lloyd said that naturalists assured him that Wrightwood would again have its squirrels.

"The plague may have been nature's way of reducing the animal population," said the congressman. "Most health authorities we've talked to feel that the area will become repopulated.

"After all, squirrels are friendly little creatures. Maybe we can get a grant to provide some soft music."

DOREEN CARPENTER

Upland's city clerk honored

Upland City Clerk Doreen K. Carpenter has been awarded the designation of Certified Municipal Clerk by the International Institute of Municipal Clerks.

The award is given by the organization in recognition of education, experience and service.

Mrs. Carpenter, known as "Dee," was first elected to office in 1968. She is now in her third term in office.

She is the 62nd municipal clerk in California to be accorded the honor.

She has completed a three-year educational program for professional clerks at UC Santa Cruz. The program involves over 100 hours of study.

Mrs. Carpenter is currently first vice president of the Southern California City Clerk's Association and is active in the City Clerk's Association of California as well as the International Institute of Municipal Clerks.

ACLU members meet Sunday

Members of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union will meet Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Hugh Hamilton, 603 W. Eighth St., Claremont.

All meetings are open to the public.

The chapter has scheduled three meetings, all to be held at McAlister Center in Claremont. On Oct. 5, Professor Fred Krinsky of Pomona College will discuss current issues in church-state relations. On Oct. 26, Dick Caudillo of ACLU's Gay Rights Chapter will discuss issues in gay rights. And, on Nov. 30, Fred Okrand, ACLU's legal director and Leo Flynn of Pomona College will discuss the Burger Supreme Court and civil liberties. Times of the meetings were not announced.

Table wine distributed

In 1960, about 53 million gallons of table wine entered distribution channels in the United States. That figure increased by four times in 1975 — to 214 hillion gallons.

Santa Claus volunteers getting ready

Think ahead with Santa Claus, Inc., Pomona-Walnut Valley.

Think Christmas.

Already Santa Claus, Inc. volunteers are at work preparing toys for Christmas giving to boys and girls from low-income families.

The volunteers are making a public appeal for new and used toys, games, bikes, books and dolls. They also need patterns for doll clothes, and material from which to fashion the clothes.

Some of the volunteers can sew and they need a sewing machine for the collection center on the Pomona Mall.

Additional volunteers would be welcome

Those interested in helping with the preparation of gifts for several hundred youngsters at Christmas — just three months away — may call 626-5544 or 622-2373.

Those with items they would like to have picked up are asked to call the above numbers.

Volunteers of all ages, from high school students to retired persons, are urged to give time to the gigantic project.

VOLUNTEER PAINTERS

New Lincoln Elementary School Principal Sam Tharpe and Pomona school trustee Frances Livingston collaborate on a wall in the school's cafeteria where several trustees, community leaders and government officials — from school PTA President Margaret Siskowski to Pomona Mayor Charles Bader — volunteered their time recently in a paint-in. A fresh coat of green and white adorns the walls now replacing a worn mud brown. The paint-in was Tharpe's idea, with assistance from Mrs. Siskowski and community leaders.

Tips on how to avoid purse snatching given

Many school-age persons are alert, agile and fast on their feet — qualities useful in sports.

But, unfortunately, some persons find these qualities valuable in the field of purse snatching, said FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley.

"These youthful criminals are constantly looking for an opportunity to grab an unguarded purse from an unsuspecting victim and take off with it after meeting little or no resistance."

To discourage these thieves, Kelley offered these tips:

—Don't carry a purse if you don't have to do so. Consider carrying valuables and other necessary items in a pocket instead.

—Don't make yourself a particularly desirable target by displaying a lot of money or leaving the purse open so money or valuables may be seen.

—Be particularly alert when leaving a bank or other location where people frequently obtain money or valuables.

—Don't put your purse down and allow your attention to be diverted from it. When carrying bags, packages or other items, carry your purse between the items and your body.

—When walking, carry your purse close to your body and with your hand over the clasp to make the purse harder to grab and also less inviting. Shoulder bags should be carried in the same manner.

—Avoid wrapping a purse strap around your wrist or arm. If the thief struggles for the purse, you might be injured because you can't free yourself. Don't risk serious injury from a determined thief.

—Be conscious of the security of your purse and make sure it is less attractive as a target for a young thief.

"Maybe your action will encourage him to use his talents in a more beneficial way," said Kelley.

Devil's advocate

The Devil's advocate was originally the name given the person appointed by the state to oppose a proposed canonization in the Roman Catholic Church. The person who undertook the defense was God's advocate.

Valley churches

Christian Chapel of Wlanut

The Christian Chapel of Walnut has added a new Saturday evening worship service so people can attend either Saturday or Sunday. Pastor George Crites said the new 7 p.m. Saturday service has been added to meet the expanding needs of the congregation. All three Sunday services are near capacity and the Saturday service will help make room for new people at all services and provide a needed service for those who can't attend Sunday mornings.

Covenant United Methodist

The 7 p.m. Sunday service at the Covenant United Methodist Church will be the film, "Say It With Music," narrated by Ralph Carmichael.

The film explores today's Christian music, taken from the classics to the contemporary by committed artists to share their faith in Christ.

Filmed in the Colorado Rockies, it features performances and comments by The Archers, The Continental Singers, Johnny Hall, The Imperials, Jeremiah People, Randy Matthews, Donny Monk, Jamie Owens, Gloria Roe and Honeytree.

Good Shepherd Lutheran

Sunday will be observed as "Strength for Mission" Sunday at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Claremont.

The 11 a.m. service will focus on the $25 million appeal in the more than 6,000 Lutheran Church of America congregations to respond over the normal giving to expand the outreach program at home and in mission fields overseas.

The annual church picnic begins Sunday at 12:30 p.m. at Larkin Park in Claremont. There will be a baseball game between the fathers and sons.

Claremont United Methodist

Christian Education Sunday will be observed at Claremont United Methodist Church during the 9:05 and 11:05 worship services Sunday morning.

Mike Parker, director of youth and educational ministries, will preside and Dr. G. Merrill Lenox, interim senior minister, will preach the sermon. In recognition of Christian Education Sunday, the importance of the church school will be described.

Dr. Paul Schurman, professor of counseling at the School of Theology at Claremont, at 10:10 a.m. will begin a series of three discussion groups on the dynamics of the family and how to deal with intergenerational stress.

St. Paul's Lutheran

Sunday will be Rally Day at St. Paul's Lutheran Sunday school, Pomona.

At the 8 and 10:45 a.m. worship services, the Sunday school teachers will be commissioned and various classes will sing praises of thanksgiving. Children in the primary grades will sing at the service under the direction of Mrs. Joyce Nagel. Children in grades 5 to 8 will sing at the other service under the direction of Tim Vahle, Sunday school superintendent.

Parents are invited to attend Sunday school with their children in the church at 9:30 a.m. At that time, the classes will be promoted, a film will be shown called, "The Family That Prayed."

Mt. Calvary Missionary

The Greater Mt. Calvary Missionary Baptist Church in Claremont will celebrate their second annual Brotherhood Day Sunday at 4:15 p.m.

The Rev. D. Hurst, pastor of Antioch Baptist Church, will deliver the annual message.

Pastor Neal Sherman will speak on the Brotherhood Day theme.

United Church of Christ

Dr. Charles C. Gill's windows on "Christ in Gethsemane" and "Christ on the Cross" are being displayed in the Louise Roberts Room of the Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational.

Dr. John C. Bennett, a theologian and social ethicist, will speak at 9 a.m. Sunday on "How Is the Bible Authoritative?" This will be the third session on "What Are the Christian Sources of Authority Today?" before the church's Adult Study Group.

Anne Parrott will be the leader for the third in the series on "The Reality of the Parent in Our Lives." Her subject will be "The Parent We Carry With Us." Josephine Smith is the leader in this series.

Valley Christian Center

The Rev. Ellwyn Yarrington, minister of visitation at Open Bible Church in Tujunga, will speak at 7:30 p.m. services Sept. 30 at Valley Christian Center, San Dimas.

Mr. Yarrington served as pastor in Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin before coming to California as pastor at Sunland.

He was squadron chaplain in Civil Air Patrol in Wisconsin and California for 10 years.

La Verne First Brethren

The La Verne First Brethren Church will show the third episode of the 10-part film series, "How Should We Then Live?" Sunday at 7 p.m.

The episode, "The Renaisaance," salutes the artistic accomplishments of the Renaissance man.

Emmanuel Baptist Church

The Metters Family singers will present a gospel music program Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Emmanuel Baptist Church in San Dimas.

The Pomona group is directed by Bobby Metters. Greg Autry, of Oral Roberts University, will appear with the singers.

Claremont First Baptist

The First Baptist Church of Claremont will have an all-church box social Sunday at 1:15 p.m. in Larkin Park across from the church.

There will be judging of the decorated lunch boxes and prizes given to the winners. Each box lunch will be numbered as it is received. A different number will be given the person bringing it so each person shall receive a different lunch. Entertainment and games will be provided.

Claremont Presbyterian

An adult forum, "Focus on the Future — Directions for Mission," will be presented Sunday at 9:30 a.m. at the Claremont Presbyterian Church.

This will be directed by the Rev. and Mrs. Eugene Huff in the Fellowship Hall.

Dr. Butrus Abd-al-Malik, professor at Cal State Los Angeles, will lead an introductor Bible course, "Book For All Reasons," today at 9 a.m.

Holy Missionary Baptist

The "Gospel Doves" of Pomona will present a musical program today at 8 p.m. at the Holy Missionary Baptist Church, Pomona.

The service will also feature the Rev. G. W. Easy of Mississippi, singer and preacher, and the Rev. Jimmy Jones, former lead singer with the "Mighty Clouds of Joy."

Grace Baptist Church

Dr. Donald Launstein, president of Southwestern Baptist Bible College in Phoenix, will speak at the 8:15 and 11 a.m. services Sunday, at Grace Baptist Church in Glendora.

There will be an all-church work day today, with members and friends invited to bring their hammers, paint brushes, and shovels. They will meet at the church for breakfast at 7 a.m.

Council conference deals with death

The Pomona Valley Council of Churches will sponsor a mini-conference Wednesday starting at noon, at the Westmont United Methodist Church, Pomona.

It will deal with three aspects of death matters: the natural death act; the importance of wills; and pre-planning for funeral arrangements.

Leaders are Dr. Felix Manley, who will discuss the importance of doing early planning on funeral arrangements so careful decisions may be made; Dr. John Flucke, who will discuss ramifications of the Natural Death Act which is now law in California; and Steve Zetterberg, a Claremont attorney, who will give information on wills and how they may be done simply.

The Westmont Church conducts a senior citizens nutrition program where the elderly may receive a complete meal based on ability to pay. These senior citizens will be in attendance at this session.

Those attending the seminar will eat the same meal as the senior citizens. They will be paying $1.50 for the meal plus 50 cents for registration. Reservations may be made by calling the Pomona Valley Council of Churches' office, 622-3806.

Alta Loma Bible school offers courses for fall

On Thursday's at the same time, starting Sept. 29, "The Only Way to Live" will be taught by the Rev. Donald Dannenberg, pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church of Perris. The course covers the Book of Ephesians.

Also on Thursday evenings, a course on "Foundation Truths" covering the basic doctrines of the Christian faith will be taught by Jim Giebeler, board chairman of Alta Loma School of the Bible and general manager of Arrowhead Machine and Mfg. Co. in San Bernardino. Classes will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., for 12 weeks.

A weekend seminar training the lay or pastoral counselor will also be held for one unit of credit on Sept. 29, 30 and Oct. 1. Thursday and Friday classes are from 7 to 9:30 p.m. and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The seminar will deal with the Christian counselor's approach in such areas as guilt, healing for the whole man, the homosexual, depression (it's causes and cures), release from the occult and interpersonal relationships. This will be taught by the Rev. Harold Dewberry, founder and director of Teen Challenge in Sydney, Australia, pastor and youth director in the Assemblies of God and chaplain of the Order of St. Luke the Physician.

All classes are open to the community. The registration fee is $5 per course, plus an offering of $1 for each class hour attended. A two unit course meets 24 hours and a one unit course meets 12 hours.

Persons wanting to enroll or receive more information may call 987-1275 or 987-4285. Registrations will also be taken at the initial class meetings. King of Glory Lutheran Church is located at 9101 19th St., Alta Loma.

World hunger study in La Verne

The United Methodist Church of La Verne will sponsor a study on "World Hunger" beginning Sunday and continuing on Oct. 2 and 9. Services will be from 6:30 to 8 p.m. each Sunday. To keynote the study, Dr. Dean Freudenberger, co-author of "Christian Responsibility in a Hungry World," will speak at the 11 a.m. worship service on Sunday.

One of the United Methodist Church's primary consultants on the issue of world hunger, he is a former missionary agronomist and presently a professor at the School of Theology in Claremont.

The study leader for the 6:30 p.m. session Sunday will be Dr. Ignacio Castuera, a member of the General Board of Global Ministries. He has traveled in Latin America, Europe, Japan and the U.S. Last year, he was a theological reflector for the National Hunger Consultation in Oklahoma City. Since 1971 he has been an adjunct professor at the School of Theology in Claremont.

The public is invited to participate in this study.

Alta Loma

The Alta Loma School of the Bible, a Bible school for laymen which meets at King of Glory Lutheran Church in Alta Loma, will begin its fall quarter on Tuesday.

Four courses are offered at the evening school. "The Bible School seeks to provide a training ground for all God's servants in the study of Scripture and the Gospel of Christ," said the Rev. Tom Koske, dean of the school.

The first class meeting on Tuesday and 11 subsequent Tuesdays, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., will cover studies in the Gospel of Luke and is entitled, "Behold the Man." The course will be taught by Reverand Koske.

Christian Schools position filled

Dick Adams has been appointed assistant superintendent of Western Christian Schools in Glendora, Supt. J. Mark Landrey said today.

The former director of youth services at Azusa Pacific College, Adams has spent 12 years in the youth ministry of Southern California churches. He is currently the chairman of the Southern California Youth Workers Fellowship.

In his new position he will coordinate both church relations and public relations programs, speak at camps and in local churches on behalf of the school, assist in fund raising projects, and open new opportunities for travel-study abroad programs.

"In the last few years I have become enthusiastic about secondary Christian education, and believe there is a real place for schools like Western Christian that provide not only basic information, but give real guidance for the total person," Adams said.

Adams holds a B.S. degree in Christian Ministries from Pacific Christian College, a B.A. in psychology from Azusa Pacific College, and has done graduate work at Pepperdine University and Fuller Seminary. Among his special interests are travel, photography, skiing and handicrafts. Dick and his wife, Robin, are residents of Glendora.

The group includes Steve Coleman, Velma Coleman, Dianah Gale Jackson, Susie Mae Gatewood, John Franklin, Lillie Franklin, Diana Kimbrough and Richard Ross.

Choralaires rehearsing in Upland for season

The "Menno Choralaires," an interdenominational group of men presenting gospel concerts in Southern California and Arizona, is now meeting at the Mt. View Free Methodist Church in Upland each Thursday at 7:30 p.m. for rehearsals in preparation for the 11th concert season.

Concerts are presented for churches, civic groups and conferences the first and third Sunday nights of each month. These feature the Christian message in harmony and in chalk artistry and black light by Irvin Brunk.

Other features are brass duets by Dale McEachron on the trumpet and Robert Lehman on trombone.

Louise Fossum is the piano accompianist. Walter Goehring is director. Persons wanting more information regarding the "Menno Choralaires" may contact Goehring at 987-5117.

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Sunday, Sept. 25, 1977
Your Birthday, Sept. 25, 1977

Don't be intimidated by enterprises this coming year that are a bit larger than you're used to handling. You have what it takes to measure up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Ambitions are apt to be unfulfilled today, not because they are beyond your reach, but you will rationalize reasons for delay. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) As a bargain hunter you leave a lot to be desired today. Take care or someone may unload their white elephant on you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may be unsure of yourself today because your goals aren't clearly defined. Hazy targets blur your marksmanship.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today, when discussing a mutual friend who isn't present, say nothing about this person that isn't factual.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be sure anyone doing work for you today estimates all the costs accurately, then double-check just to be safe.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is opportunity about you today, but you must be keenly perceptive to discern it. Don't let the chance for something good go by.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Our willingness to do things for others today could possibly be for the wrong reasons. To expect something in return isn't the noblest motivation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A friend who talks much, but in essence says little, could get you all enthused today regarding a venture of small promises.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In matters where you hope to gain materially today, don't use methods or tactics that aren't up to your usually high standards.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Unless your plans are well-conceived today your energies will be misdirected. Reason things out, then act — not vice versa.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Business or commecial dealings in general could be exceptionally tricky for you today. Be wary where money is involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A forceful associate could coerce you to make commitments today that oppose your better judgment. Be strong enough to say "No."

90 to participate in heart program

Some 90 valley administrators will participate in a preventative heart disease program Thursday at Xerox Electro-Optical Systems, 600 E. Bonita Ave., Pomona, put on by Heart Scan, Inc., Santa Cruz.

Heart Scan public relations director Gerhard Lang said participating administrators, for a fee of $27 each, will be given 20-minute heart tests by nurses, paramedics and technicians.

Later, confidential reports on test findings will be mailed out, Lang said.

While the heart-testing program is not new in California, this is the first time it has been conducted in the valley, Lang said. The day-long program Thursday may result in additional programs which would be opened to the general public, he added.

'Musical Happening' at Glendora church

The "Musical Happening" will be presented by the Glenkirk College Choir Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at Glenkirk Presbyterian Church, Glendora.

The performance will be directed by Ben Bollinger, director of music at Glenkirk and director of choral music at Citrus College, Azusa.

Rev. Carl Hamilton, assistant pastor, said "Musical Happening" will serve as a kick-off for a monthly series of Sunday evening programs open to the public.

Soloists include Janice Bollinger, soprano; John Cavozos, tenor; Joanne Gilbreath, alto; Renee Long, soprano; and Joseph Toscanno, baritone.

The 20 singers, selected from the Glenkirk and Citrus College choirs, will be accompanied by David Osborne, organist-arranger, and his combo.

Other series programs include: Oct. 16, Joyce Landorf, pianist, vocalist, writer and speaker; The Covenant Players, drama; Dec. 24, Christmas Eve candlelight service with the Sanctuary Choir; Jan. 29, Col. Heath Bottomly, lecture; Feb. 26 to 28, the Rev. Lane Adams, three-part lecture accompanied by the Sanctuary Choir; March 28, Maundy Thursday Communion service with choir; April 23, children's musical; May 21, Dr. Ralph Byron, lecture; and June 18, musical concert with Sanctuary Choir.

Pomonan pinned between two cars

A 24-year-old Pomona man suffered minor leg injuries when he was pinned between two cars as he was assisting a young woman start her auto in an alley in the 700 block of N. East End Avenue Thursday night, police reported.

The victim, Nolan D. Bailey, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was released after treatment. Police reported he had succeeded in starting the car and was standing between it and his when the other auto lurched forward, striking him.

Meanwhile, a young Pomona woman remained in good condition at the hospital where she was being treated for injuries suffered Wednesday afternoon in the collision of her motorcycle and a car at San Antonio Avenue and Third Street in Pomona.

The victim, Valli L. Moore, 20, collided with the car when the driver turned left in front of her, police reported.

GURNEY GAINER

Montclair's Kent Gurney (31) tries to elude the grasp of Ontario's Steve Perez during the Jaguars' 25-6 win over the Cavs Friday night at Chaffey High. Gurney scored Montclair's only touchdown but was shaken up on a play and missed the second half.

Spartans nipped

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Monrovia High downed its second consecutive San Antonio League opponent Friday night as Damien's Mike Sullivan just missed a 45-yard field goal attempt as the final seconds ticked off the clock.

Monrovia behind the running of Dennis Brown and Theron Jones wiped out a 14-0 halftime deficit on the Spartans' home turf and defeated Damien 22-21 as Sullivan missed two field goals in the final three minutes.

Last week, Monrovia blanked Pomona, 28-0 as Brown and Jones combined for 169 yards.

The two speedsters exploded for 188 yards in the second half after being held to 57 yards by the Damien defense in the opening half.

Brown broke loose for runs of 44 and 62 yards to put points on the scoreboard for Monrovia. He finished the night with 160 yards. He scampered for 122 yards in the second half of an exciting, nail-biting contest that kept the capacity crowd nailed to their seats.

Damien, behind the accurate passing of Dan Marconi, vaulted out to a 14-0 lead with 2:22 left in the opening half. Monrovia's offense had their hands on the ball for only 15 plays in the first 22 minutes of action.

Marconi was 11 for 13 for 99 yards as he connected with John Rayburn on an 18-yard TD pass and a 4-yard pass to Joe Vigil with 6:29 left in the second quarter. Marconi ended the evening with 182 yards as he connected on 21 of 28 pass attempts.

Damien pushed the Wildcats defense around for big gains as Doug Paul and Steve Campbell scampered through mammoth holes to aid Marconi's passes.

Monrovia's bid to put a score on the board in the first half was derailed as Tony Viotta intercepted a Jules Bagneris pass in the Spartans' end zone.

But the drive of 70 yards by the Wildcats in the final 2:22 showed that Monrovia could move the ball against the tough Damien defense.

Monrovia was held to 98 yards in first half action.

The Wildcats opened the second half with a 11-play march that was capped by a two-yard TD run by Jones. With 7:32 left in the quarter, Brown raced 44 yards as he broke several tackles in the center of the field before racing down the sideline for the TD. Brown's TD knotted the contest at 14-14.

Marconi marched the Spartans downed the field on the strength of his arm for seven points and a 21-14 lead.

However, Brown outran the entire Damien defense early in the fourth quarter as he broke all kinds of tackles and raced 62 yards. A short pass from Bagneris to Ed Kidd put the Wildcats ahead at 22-21.

With 2:22 remaining Sullivan tried a 35-yard field goal attempt. But the ball landed short of the goal posts.

And with seconds left on the clock he booted a 45-yarder which looked good from the stands. The Damien fans held their breaths as they waited for the referee signal. It just missed as it sailed off to the right of the goal posts and Monrovia went home to celebrate a victory.

Damien (1-1) will meet Pomona in a 7:30 p.m. contest Friday at MSAC to open San Antonio League action.

Jags run past Montclair

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Ontario High's two-cylinder running machine raced past Montclair, 25-6, Friday night at Chaffey High.

Jaguar running backs Tommy Jefferson and Albert Newman made it clear they were too much for the Montclair defense beginning with the second play from scrimmage, when Jefferson blew through a big hole off left tackle and rambled 72 yards for his first of three touchdowns.

The 6-foot-3, 210-pound junior, who rushed for 203 yards last week against Mountain View, wound up with 208 yards on 28 carries against the Cavaliers.

His partner in speed, the explosive and elusive Newman, added 89 yards on 15 rushes and 58 yards on three receptions, including a 28-yard touchdown on a screen pass from quarterback Sonny Medina.

That score and Jose Perez's extra-point kick made it 13-0 less than nine minutes into the game and first-year Ontario coach Terry Roche was well on the way to his second win in as many tries.

There were few bright spots for Rich Bare's Cavaliers, who dropped their second straight game to a Hacienda League foe. Among other Montclair woes, star offensive and defensive back Kent Gurney, after scoring the only Cav touchdown on a three-yard run, was shaken up in the second quarter and sat out the second half.

But Gurney's replacement in the offensive backfield, sophomore Scott Avery, turned out to be Montclair's only real offensive weapon.

The hard-running 10th grader carried 20 times for 91 yards. But the Cavs were ineffective through the air, where Steve Jetton completed just four of 20 passes for 28 yards andas intercepted twice. Each team lost two fumbles.

Medina played a fine game at quarterback for the Jags, though his main job was handing off to Jefferson and Medina. He completed six of nine aerials for 89 yards, mostly on screen passes.

Montclair will host Upland Friday in the San Antonio League opener for both teams while Ontario will entertain Hacienda League opponent San Dimas at Chaffey High.

Baker's Belief nabs 2nd win

Baker's Belief, son of Fleet Mel, became the first two-time winner this season at Pomona when he captured Friday's $19,180 Beau Brummel Stakes for two-year-old colts before a crowd of 10,999 at the L.A. County Fair.

Baker's Belief had previously won here last Saturday by six lengths in allowance company. With the $11,305 earned in the Beau Brummel, Baker's Belief increased his earnings to $32,490 with four wins in nine career starts.

Trained by A.B. Richmond, Baker's Belief returned $6.40, $4 and $3 for his six-length score under jockey Wayne Harris.

Handicap horses meet this afternoon in the $25,000 added C.B. Afflebaugh Memorial. Quite a Day, an upset winner in last weekend's Governor's Cup, will face Alphy Boy and King Al in the eight-horse field.

Ganesha impressive again

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

SANTA ANA — Ganesha High completely dominated host Saddleback here Friday night at the Santa Ana Bowl but the final 19-13 victory margin certainly doesn't indicate it.

The Giants were awesome on defense until the final 2:43 of the game when the Roadrunners (0-1-1) scored both of their touchdowns on two long bombs to make the final seconds just a little uncomfortable on the Ganesha bench.

Ganesha enjoyed a safe 19-0 lead and it should have been higher considering the way the Pomonans controlled the action on the field but five lost fumbles kept Saddleback in the game.

Until the final two big plays, Saddleback had managed only a minus yard on the ground and 16 yards through the air on one completed pass.

But the Roadrunners scored on a 45-yard run by Keith Lane with 2:43 on the clock and a 71-yard pass from reserve quarterback Nate Bradley to Gary Stenlund with only 19 seconds left. Both scores came against the Ganesha reserves.

In contract to Saddleback, Ganesha rolled up 193 yards on the ground and 56 through the air for 249 total yards compared to Saddleback's 131.

A big factor in Ganesha's win was field goal kicker Ruben Raya, who booted a 33-yarder in the first quarter for the only score in the opening half and added a 44-yarder in the fourth period.

The Giants got touchdowns from Floyd Williams on an one-yard run in the third period and a six-yard gallop by quarterback Ron Hughes in the fourth.

Bennie Gooden led the Ganesha running attack with 71 yards on 19 carries while Williams added 60 on 15. Hughes gained a net of 16 on eight tries and James Murdock 46 on two.

Hughes completed five of 12 passes.

On defense, Charles Lundstrom, Kevin Jones and Clayborne Ferguson all recovered Saddleback fumbles while Tony Chambers intercepted a pass.

J. W. Melton, Mike Kingston, Craig Parm and George Peters seemed to be with the Saddleback defense all night.

Coach Garry Norvell is delighted to have his Giants entering San Antonio League play next week against Claremont with a perfect 2-0 record in pre-league action.

"That's a lot better than it has been in the past," the veteran Ganesha coach said. "Our guys are getting even for getting kicked in the past. We have some tough kids and our record is a product of a lot of hard work."

Concerning the fumbles which spoiled the offensive effort, Norvell said, "We run a high-risk offense in the Veer so fumbles will happen."

SAV outlasts Cowboys, 26-7

By CHARLES BENTLEY
PB Correspondent

For three quarters Chino High stayed within striking distance of highly rated Santa Ana Valley. But the Cowboy effort proved to be fruitless as the Falcons struck twice in the final period to outclass Chino, 26-7.

It was the Cowboys' goal line defense that kept the Falcons off the board in the first period. After going to the Chino one-yard line with relative ease, the Falcons could not put the ball in the end zone as the Cowboy s stood tough and dropped Valley quarterback Andy Paige on fourth and one for no gain.

But the Cowboys were unable to stop Falcon back Robert Powell as he pushed Valley's first score over from the one with 4:36 remaining in the second period.

Powell would run for 103 yards on 19 carries before being sidelined early in the fourth quarter.

Falcon safety James Swift set up the next Valley score as he returned an interception from the Chino 45 to the nine yard line. Paige then sneaked around end to make the score Santa Ana Valley 12, Chino 0 at the half.

Two more outstanding defensive plays kept the Falcons off the board in the third quarter, the first coming on a fumble recovery on the Chino 35-yard line by defensive lineman John Surina. Surina's recovery killed the Falcons' initial drive in the second half, and took a lot out of Valley's momentum.

The second came when Cowboy Tim McGrath picked off a Falcon pass at the Valley 42 yard line, giving Chino's offense their best field position of the night.

But Chino was unable to do anything with the ball, which saw the Cowboys' drive die at the 25 yard line. From there, the Falcons drove 65 yards in only four plays, with Powell pushing it over from the one on the first play in the fourth quarter.

From there it was all downhill until with 2:02 left in the game, Chino back Mike Bertschinger scored from the 13 yard line for the Cowboys' only score of the night.

Chino's defense was unable to stop the Falcons either through the air or on the ground, as Santa Ana Valley passed for 107 yards on 6 competions, and rushed for 214 yards on 44 carries.

Meanwhile, the Cowboys were only able to rush for 90 yards on 30 carries, and passed for 74 yards on 4 completions.

Nicklaus misses cut

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Mike Hill, grimly bidding to snap out of the worst slump in his career, fired a five-under-par 65 Friday to take a one-stroke second-round lead over defending champion Ben Crenshaw in the $150,000 Ohio Kings Island Open.

But the shocking development of the day came when Jack Nicklaus failed to qualify, struggling to rounds of 73 and 72. It was the third time in a year Nicklaus failed to qualify after going six years without being cut.

"I couldn't putt," said Nicklaus, who need to finish at least second to reach $300,000 in earnings for the third time in his career. It was his final tour appearance of 1977.

Hill, who has vowed to his family he will quit if he doesn't average $25,000 a year in 197778, overtook first round coleaders Tom Kite and Bill Calfee, who trailed by two strokes.

Highlanders bounce back

By RAY NELSON
PB Correspondent

If you run into Upland High football coach Bob Holycross this week, he might tell you how unpredictable high school football can be from week to week.

His team, aided by five Alta Loma fumbles and one interception, dealt the Braves a 24-0 whitewashing.

Upland's first win of the season came one week after West Covina shut them out, 44-0.

Despite losing the first-half statistical battle, the Highlanders went into the locker room at intermission boasting a 7-0 advantage which occurred on the Braves' second possession of the contest.

Following runs by Jeff Morris and Stuart Charleston, Alta Loma had the ball on its own nine-yard line, third and one. But a delay-of-game penalty moved the ball back to the four, setting the stage for the only score Upland needed for victory.

Brave quarterback Gordon Reed faded back to pass, was hit by blitzing linebackers, the ball was jarred loose and Mark Zinda fell on it in the end zone for a TD.

Meanwhile, Alta Loma was winning the statistical battle, recording seven first-half first downs to Upland's one.

It was also in the first 24 minutes that Stuart Charleston, who was the leading Alta Loma ground gainer, rushed for 63 of his 64 yards.

The Highlanders padded their lead with 6:21 left in the third quarter after recovering a Reed fumble on the Alta Loma 25. Five plays later, placekicker Jon Kotez booted a 22-yard field goal for a 10-0 Highlander advantage.

Upland continued to increase its score when, on its third offensive play of the final period, Chris Molinar broke a tackle at the line of scrimmage, turned the corner, and dove into the end zone for an 18-yard score climaxing a 29-yard drive.

The Highlanders received their final seven points when Molinar picked off an errant Reed pass and returned it 60 yards for the final margin.

Alta Loma, who scored a last minute opening victory last week against Montclair, saw its record fall to 1-1.

Upland	7	0	3	14—24

Upland — Zinda recovered fumble in end zone (Kotez kick).

Royals clinch flag vs. Halos

ANAHEIM (AP) — Al Cowens drove in five runs with three consecutive doubles and Dennis Leonard tossed a five-hitter Friday night as Kansas City clinched the American League West Division title with a 7-3 victory over California.

The victory was Kansas City's 21st in the last 22 games and 32nd in 36 contests.

Leonard, 19-11, struck out 13 and walked four in becoming the American League's second 19-game winner. California's Nolan Ryan is the other.

Cowens had a two-run double in the first inning, an RBI double in the third and another two-run double in the fourth. John Mayberry's two-run homer in the third scored the decisive runs.

In clinching a second consecutive division title, the Royals won 68 games and lost 24 — a .739 percentage — beginning on June 17.

Leonard allowed only a third-inning single to Thad Bosley until California put together two more hits and a walk to end his shutout bid in the seventh.

Blyleven out for season

OAKLAND (AP) —The Texas Rangers announced Friday that Bert Blyleven, who pitched a no-hitter against California Thursday night, will not take the mound again this season.

Blyleven, who hadn't pitched since Sept. 6, aggravated a groin pull in the eighth inning of the no-hitter but finished the game anyway. He wound up the season with a 14-12 record and a 2.72 ERA.

Fontana foils Garey with late touchdown

By MARK GRIP
PB Correspondent

FONTANA — Fontana High quarterback Del Cannady scored on a one-yard sneak with 53 seconds left in the game to boost the hosts to a 14-6 win over Garey Friday night.

Garey trailed in the contest 7-6 when Fontana took possession with 7:17 to play and drove to the one-half yard line when Cannady punched over on third down. Greg Wheatley added his second extra point of the night for a 14-6 advantage.

Garey had possession on the Steeler 37 with 10 seconds to play. Quarterback Anthony Clinton completed a 29-yard pass to James Moore as time aparently ran out.

However, A 15-yard penalty for roughing the passer was assessed to Fontana giving the Vikings one last chance.

Clinton could not find a receiver and was forced to run and gained only nine yards as the game ended.

Garey drew first blood in the second quarter when Kirby Lofton picked off a Cannady pass at midfield and raced 50 yards up the sideline untouched. Garey's attempt to run for two points failed.

Fontana's first score came on a 24-yard TD romp by fullback Tom Coon with Wheatley booting the PAT.

Garey (1-1) will open San Antonio League play next when it visits Chino in a 7:30 p.m. battle.

Penalties kill 'Cats

By BRENT SHYER
PB Correspondent

Even though the Bonita High Bearcats had a total yardage figure of 244 to the Azusa Aztecs' 171, the 'Cats were penalized 138 yards which contributed to their 20-14 loss Friday night at Citrus College.

The defeat was Bonita's second straight in non-league play.

Gordon Houston, who doubles as Azusa's quarterback and kicker, booted field goals in the third and fourth quarters to give the Aztecs the winning margin.

Houston kicked a 33-yarder in the third frame and a 26-yarder in the final quarter. He also ran for 46 of his team's 157 yards.

With 4:19 to play in the third quarter, Bonita scored on Ray Banker's 17-yard burst up-the-middle to close the gap to 17-14.

But the Bearcats gave the game away when they fumbled on their own 12 and Azusa's Tracy Sells recovered. The Aztecs field goal four plays later was the capper.

Bonita's first points of the season came in the second quarter on Bob Clark's run around right end. Clark, who was the leading ground-gainer in the game with 83 yards, kicked the first of his two extra points.

Bud Click paced the Aztecs rushing attack with 82 yards, including a 47-yard touchdown scamper.

Neither team established a passing game, as Houston went two for eight for 14 yards, and Bonita QB Cory Miller was just three for six for 26 yards and one interception.

Azusa (1-1), a Montview League entry, capitalized on two Bonita penalties to score its second TD on an 11-yard run by Mike Martinez.

Astros nip Dodgers

HOUSTON (AP) — Jose Cruz' sacrifice fly scored Enos Cabell from third base with the winning run in the 12th inning as the Houston Astros edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 Friday night.

Cabell led off the inning with a double off losing pitcher Charlie Hough, 5-12. After Cesar Cedeno grounded out, Cabell moved to third on catcher Steve Yeager's passed ball before coming home on Cruz' fly ball to left field.

Ken Forsch, the fourth Astro pitcher, hurled one inning to pick up his fifth victory against eight losses this season.

Lee Lacy's first inning solo homer, his sixth blast of the season, staked the Dodgers to a 1-0 lead against Houstoin starter Mark Lemongello.

The Astros tied it in the bottom half of the inning on walks to Cabell and Cruz, a single by Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson's sacrifice fly to center.

Lacy's fifth-inning RBI-single and Jerry Grote's run-scoring single in the sixth gave the Dodgers a 3-1 advantage before the Astros battled back on Watson's seventh-inning sacrifice fly and Cedeno's eighth-inning RBI-single to tie the score 3-3.

Watson's pair of sacrifice flys gave him 103 RBIs for the season, a personal high.

Mustangs roll

By KEITH LAIR
PB Correspondent

Third-ranked Walnut High's running attack proved too much for Rowland High's defense Friday night, as the Mustangs rolled to a 38-13 victory.

The Mustangs clinched the game late in the second quarter, when they mounted a 24-0 lead.

Key blocks by Ray Dodson and Mike Flaherty led the Mustangs to their first score, a 56-yard gallop by Tony Rossi. Walnuts second score was set up on a 32-yard punt by Robbie Abbott that put the ball on the Raider 34. A personal foul on fourth down by Rowland moved the ball to the Raider 13-yard line. Four plays later, Ken Wilson plunged across the goal line for the score.

Rossi added another tally in the second quarter, when he leaped over would-be-tacklers to score from 10 yards out. Walnut again came back with 11 seconds left in the half, when Frank Miller booted a 30-yard field goal to put the Mustangs up, 24-0.

Walnuts defense proved themselves unstoppable in the first half, as they held the Raiders to minus two yards rushing and 35 passing yards. The Mustangs did not allow Rowland to get a first down until the middle of the second quarter.

Walnut's fourth touchdown of the evening was set up on a partially blocked punt by Lindsey O'Neil, who managed to slip into the Raider backfield. Seven plays later, the Mustangs found themselves in the end zone on a 19 yard pass from quarterback Pat Flaherty to Mike Flaherty.

Rowland got on the scoreboard two seconds into the fourth quarter, on a quarterback sneak by Mike Hohensee. Rowland launched a successful passing attack, as Hohensee hit Kelly Chapman and Brian Deters for first down yardage.

Walnut's final score came on the kickoff following the Raider score. Dave Woronkiewicz took the ball on his own 25 yard line, and raced into the end zone unscathed by his opponents.

The Raiders second score came on an end screen pass to Chapman. Mustang cornerback Doug Vind lunged at the ball, but did not come up with it. Instead, Chapman caught the ball, and walked into the end zone for a 64 yard score.

"We did not play well offensively," commented Walnut head coach Ken Gunn. "Our timing was not right."

Walnut will open its Hacienda League season when it battles Bonita next Friday night.

Pomona's losing skid continues

Pomona High's two-year losing streak stretched to 11 games Friday night as the Red Devils traveled 60 miles to get thumped in Banning 16-13.

Shut out for three quarters, Pomona did manage to get its offense in gear in the final period to make the score respectable.

Banning forged the victory on the strength of two big plays.

In the second quarter Banning's Mike Mora returned a Red Devil punt 66 yards to the Pomona one-yard line, with running back Mike Jackson plunging over on the next play.

Jackson again scored the touchdown on a one-yard plunge in the third quarter, which ended a drive keyed by quarterback Jeff Fahy's 40-yard dash.

After Pomona narrowed the score to 13-7, on a 14-yard touchdown pass from Darrell Keepers to Van Andrews, Fahy kicked an 18-yard field goal for Banning.

Pomona's final touchdown came on the last play of the game as Keepers hit Glenn Cartwrigjt with a 24-yard scoring pass.

In other games Friday night, Edgewood came up with 15 fourth quarter points to beat Chaffey 15-14.

Trailing by two touchdowns entering the final period, Edgewood got a pair of eight-yard touchdown runs from quarterback Mike Toothman.

A two-point conversion following Toothman's first score provided the winning point.

Chaffey got touchdowns from Frank Conn and Stan McDonald in the second quarter, McDonald's coming on a 55-yard pass from quarterback Gary Koustic.

Ontario Christian won its first game of the year, beating Yucca Valley 7-6. The winning touchdown came on a fourth quarter pass from quarterback Joe DeHoog to wide receiver Roger Sybesma. The play covered 16 yards.

Lutheran loses

La Verne Lutheran's girls' volleyball team saw its record drop to 0-3 Wednesday with an 11-15, 7-15 loss at home to Maranatha.

Lutheran lost to Pasadena Poly, 15-5, 2-15, 10-15, Tuesday.

The La Verne school will play in the Western Christian Tournament in Glendora this weekend.

Lugo moves up to varsity

Don Lugo High will play its first varsity football game and Webb will make its seasonal debut this afternoon and Claremont will face Sierra League foe Glendora tonight to highlight a five-game slate of prep games for local football squads today.

John Monger and his crew of sophomores and freshmen will make their varsity debut at Orange High at 2 p.m., with Orange Lutheran their opponent.

Also at 2 p.m., Mike Blair will make his first appearance as head coach of Webb's Gauls at Big Bear.

Claremont and Glendora will get together for an 8 p.m. kickoff at Citrus College while Lutheran hosts Serrano at Damien High at 7:30 p.m. and Calvary Baptist travels to Chapman College for an eight-man game with Melodyland at 8 o'clock.

"We might be in over our heads against Orange Lutheran," said Monger, whose teams have a 22-game win streak — 21 in freshman competition and last week's victory over Charter Oak's sophomore team.

"Orange Lutheran is the favorite in the Arrowhead League this year," Monger continued. "They have a very confident coach and a very confident team." Orange Lutheran beat Bell-Jeff last week, 20-19.

BOB MALINS . . .
Don Lugo QB

Lutheran coach Robert Dowding has 18 returning starters from last year's 3-6 team. Among them are quarterback Kurt Rammelsberg, who passed for over 1,000 yards, and his favorite target, Dwayne McLoud. Tailback Marc Neben averaged 99 yards per game in 1976.

Monger counters with quarterback Bob Malins, fullback Manuel Villalobos and tailback Carlos Sanchez.

Claremont coach Esper Keiser will take on some old friends tonight at Citrus College. Glendora head coach Bryan Shaw, in his second year, and assistant Eddie Shaw both played football at Claremont in the '60s.

Keiser watched Glendora's 14-6 loss to Bishop Amat last week.

"Glendora could have won that game," he said, "but it got away. They have a very good team."

Glendora ripped Claremont, 40-12, last year. Four of the Tartans' six touchdowns were scored by Jeff Mowdy and Dan Reedy, both of whom are in the Glendora backfield again this season.

But off its first outing, a 20-0 triumph over Bonita, Claremont seems to be a much improved squad. The Wolfpack defense doesn't figure to surrender 40 points to anybody this year.

Blair's Webb debut figures to be a rough one. Big Bear thrashed San Jacinto last week, 34-7.

Webb not only has yet to play a game, but has not been able to find a scrimmage opponent. Because Webb is a boarding school, students start school later than at public schools and Blair's practices got started a couple of weeks late.

Lutheran was on the wrong end of a 56-6 decision against Valley Christian last week, but figures to fare better against Serrano, a new school (freshmen through juniors) located in Phelan (north of Wrightwood). Serrano won its debut at Mammoth, 18-7.

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Mt. San Antonio and Chaffey colleges will be on the road tonight to meet a couple football foes with deceiving records.

MSAC (1-1) will be playing vs. Glendale City College (0-1) at Glendale High. Chaffey (2-0) will be squaring off vs. MiraCosta (0-2) in a contest slated to be held at San Diegutio High in Solano Beach.

Citrus (0-2) has a bye this week. The MSAC and Chaffey games will start at 7:30 p.m.

The Mounties will be coming off a tough defeat at the hands of Pasadena City College and thus might be in for a bit of a letdown tonight vs. Glendale.

Glendale, despite its 0-1 record, is a good ball club. Santa Monica, one of the top-ranked teams in the state, beat Glendale 21-7 last week.

Glendale is coming off a fine 7-3 season last year and has some of that team's top talent returning. In particular, quarterback Bob Gagliano is back. Gagliano was the second-string signal caller last year but gave the Mounties fits in a 30-13 MSAC victory early last fall.

Glendale, a pass-oriented team, does have a dangerous runner in sophomore Ron Davenport, a transfer from San Diego State.

MSAC figures to start soph Jon Hattabaugh at QB, with Butch Stocking also expected to see action.

Mountie coach Mal Eaton will go with Stan Webster and Maxie Hamilton at the running back spots. Eaton indicated he would work on the running game this week in hopes of springing speedsters Webster and Hamilton loose, and the results of that plan will be unveiled tonight at Glendale.

Chaffey's foe, Mira Costa, also could be ready to explode tonight.

MiraCosta is coming off a disappointing 36-7 loss to Palomar. However, the Oceanside school is the defending Desert Conference champ and posted a 7-3 overall mark last year.

Inexperience has bothered MiraCosta so far this season, but it does have quarterback Joe Kish (6-2, 210 pounds) returning.

Chaffey coach Mike Merandi will start Brian Potter at quarterback, but Don Hargett and John Gable will also see action as the Panthers will be tuning up for their Mission Conference opener.

Running back Marcus Jennings will be shooting for his third straight 100-yard plus game rushing tonight. Gary Carr, Bob Pleasant and Mike Rees will also see action for Merandi's men.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW DID THE TOADSTOOL GET ITS NAME?" KARRI CONRAD EL CAJON, CA

A. THE TOADSTOOL GOT ITS NAME FROM THE FANCIFUL NOTION THAT TOADS WERE POISONOUS AND THAT THEY SAT ON CERTAIN MUSHROOMS, MAKING THEM POISONOUS

DICK ROGERS

People often call poisonous mushrooms "toadstools." The toadstool seems to have gotten its fanciful name because people once believed toads were poisonous and they used certain mushrooms as stools, making them poisonous, too.

Actually, there is no real difference between a toadstool and a mushroom. They are simply two names for one thing.

Many mushrooms are good to eat. But there are also many kinds that are very posionous.

Popularly, people give the name mushroom to the kinds that can be eaten, and the name toadstool to those which are poisonous.

Botanists, however, do not use the name "toadstool." They simple speak of edible and poisonous mushrooms.

Never eat mushrooms that you find growing wild. Poisonous mushrooms look very much like good mushrooms.

Only a real expert can tell a mushroom that is delicious form one that is deadly poison!

Learning to read important to child

Fourth in a series
By JOHN DOUGLAS

"My conclusion is that you don't have to be smart to read," says Kenneth S. Goodman, a reading researcher at Wayne State University, Detroit.

"I think we have to ask seriously why, if children learn to talk without our help, they don't learn to read with our help."

Goodman goes on to say that children are born with the ability to learn language — written or spoken — and if they have more trouble with one form than the other, the fault probably lies in the way it's presented.

The problem, according to Goodman, is that written language is too often presented as a set of words to memorize, divorced from their use in communication. "If you start with children's experiences, in their own language, it is easier to begin reading instruction," he says. Such an emphasis provides an immediate payoff to the child, and makes the process of learning to read self-motivating. At home, for example, you might have a child tell what he did at school, then you write down part of what he says and help him read it.

If your child is a beginning reader, your active interest may make the difference between her early success or failure. Too many children give up on reading at the very beginning. Dull texts, inadequately trained teachers, and early frustration are frequently cited causes. Our first job then, as parents, is to see that our children appreciate the relevance of reading to their everyday lives and have frequent opportunities to exercise their newly acquired skills. See what your child's interests are and then show her how books can help her enjoy those interests even more. Take your child to the library regularly, even in the first grade, and help her discover that books provide an endless variety of things to do and stories to tell. It helps, too, if your child sees you reading.

We must also be on the lookout for certain signs of trouble. There is a fine line between challenge and frustration, and the easiest way to tell which your child is experiencing is to watch his interest level. Challenge stimulates interest; frustration kills it. If the child complains that he "just can't get that stuff," gently try to find out why — without jumping to conclusions. Many reading problems have nothing whatever to do with a child's ability: The child may simply need glasses. (All children should have their vision and hearing checked carefully by a specialist before entering school. Many pediatricians now include rough checks in their regular examination on children of all ages).

One of the most common problems among otherwise bright, eager students is that they simply don't know how to listen. Some research indicates that as many as one-quarter of beginning elementary school students have listening problems that produce reading difficulties. Their hearing is probably perfectly all right; they may even sit quietly "paying attention." But their listening is completely passive. (Spending hours in front of the television doesn't help.) They haven't learned how to respond to what is said, or to question it, and thus they can't follow instructions.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Disneyland ride tickets are sought

The Cpl. David Allen Auxiliary No. 667, Jewish War Veterans, is seeking donations of unused Disneyland ride tickets, according to Shirley Powell of Montclair.

The tickets are used by the auxiliary to take handicapped youngsters to Disneyland, an activity that has been carried on for 16 years.

Cost per child is $8.50 and includes bus transportation, lunch, entrance fees, ride tickets, cold drinks and small souvenirs.

Mrs. Sidney F. Jelin, chairman of the event, said the number of children going to Disneyland has more than doubled since the program began. All donations of tickets are used to help defray project expenses. Tickets are saved during the year by auxiliary members, but there are never enough, said Mrs. Jelin.

Those with tickets to donate may send them to Mrs. Jelin at 9426 Washington Blvd., Culver City, 90230.

Military scholarship applications are available

College-bound high school students interested in military-sponsored college scholarships and Air Force ROTC should now contact Capt. Thomas J. Skypeck of Upland, area Air Force ROTC liaison officer, for information or scholarship application forms.

Capt. Skypeck, who represents the reserve officer training program in the valley, says interested students should start now to investigate the various programs which can lead to a commission in the Air Force.

The scholarship deadline is Dec. 15. Applicants must take the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) in November. SAT registration may be accomplished through the student's high school.

Anyone interested may call Capt. Skypeck, 1430 Alta Ave., Upland, at 981-1600, 382-4804 or 787-7204 or write him for additional information.

King of chefs

Georges Escoffier, "the king of chefs and chef of kings," began his career at the age of 12 and retired in 1920 after 62 years of active service.

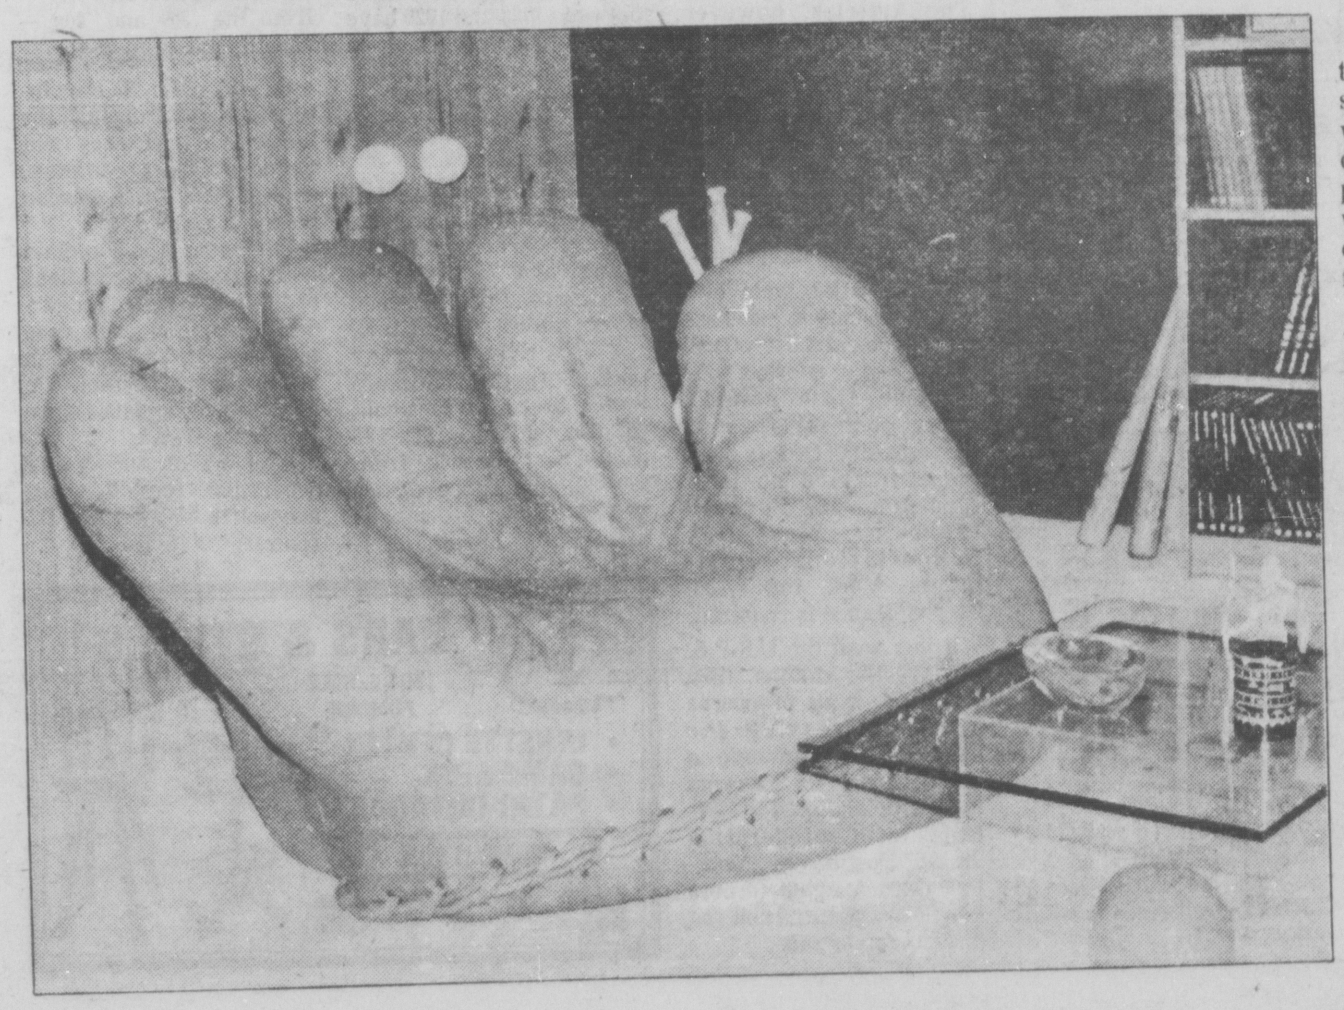
Pomona, California ■ Saturday, September 24, 1977

Artists in action at county fair . . .

One of the most entertaining and culturally rewarding offerings of the Los Angeles County Fair is the on-going program of displays and artists in action at the Fine Arts Building, the first building on the right of the main entrance.

Fronted by Lawrence Tenney Stevens' heroic statue of the pioneer family and horse, the art building this year contains exhibits by artists in many media; a continuous slide show of early Western art; Interior Design, a section devoted to high-style rooms, and the 21st annual International Exhibition of Photography.

Here visitors will see glassblowers at work, a blacksmith making horseshoes, and artists of international reputation at work at easel, block and potter's wheel. It is no small thrill to see a work of art created before one's eyes, to see an artist put brush to a blank piece of paper and create a lovely landscape, or a ceramist place a wet block of clay on his wheel and turn it into a handsome vase or bowl. The demonstrations are not hushed, hold-your-breath performances — the artists talk freely to the viewers, answer questions, explain what they are doing and what they hope to accomplish. It's an informal and educational class in art appreciation.



At the entrance to the Fine Arts Building, the visitor is greeted by a display of handsome saddles in a rustic setting of rocks, redwood chips and rails backed by an impressive mountain mural by artist Charles Allessio of Ontario. At the right is an attractive desert diorama studded with stoneware cacti by Helen Watson of Claremont and highlighted by Betty Davenport Ford's stoneware

It happened in Pomona

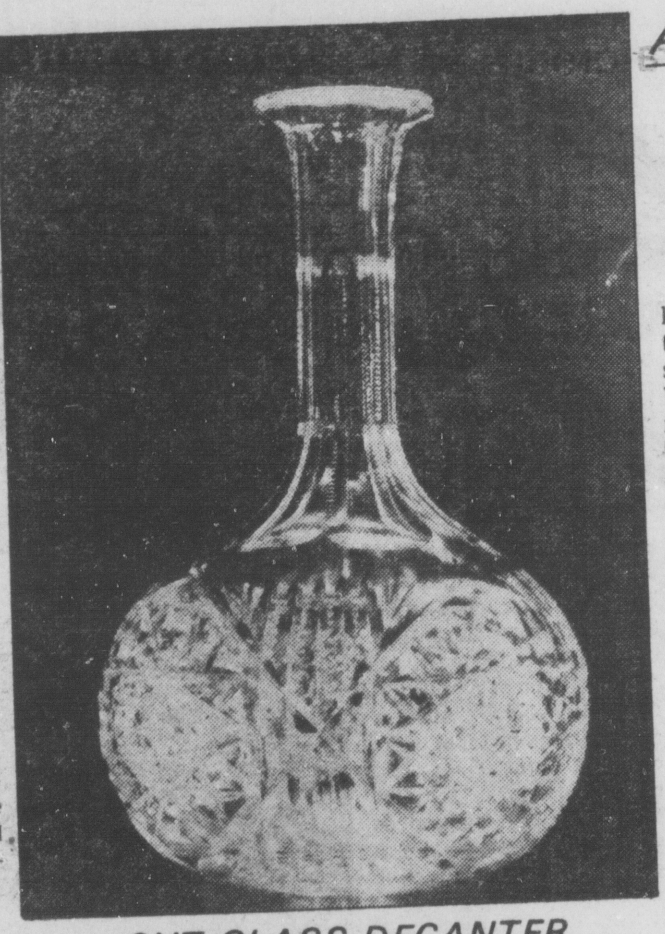
Seventy years ago not many Pomonans were able to take a European or South Sea Island vacation during the long, hot summer months, but they did have something going for them that few of our townspeople take the time to enjoy today. They would spend a week or more at Camp Baynhem in San Antonio Canyon. In fact, not only Pomonans but also many people living in all parts of Southern California considered Camp Baynhem one of the outstanding vacation sports in this entire area.

In 1908, E.L. Durham, of Pomona, after a week stay at the camp, described its charm to a Pomona Progress reporter, stating that it was one of the finest mountain resorts he had ever visited.

"There is some new place to which one can go every day and the trips are certainly delightful," he reported enthusiastically.

Chief amongs those delightful trips, according to Durham, was a daily climb to Old Baldy's summit. Nearly all campers made the ascent by burro, usually starting up the trail late in the afternoon. The hikers and burro riders would then spend the night on the mountain top and the next morning witness that grandest of all spectacles, a sunrise on the mountain peak.

And finally, inspired by the many splendors made possible by Camp Baynhem, Durham went on to predict the time would come when one could step on a streetcar and enjoy a delightful cool evening ride up San Antonio Canyon as far as Hogsback.



CUT GLASS DECANTER

Antique-wise

Glass decanter collector's item

QUESTION: We recently came into possession of the cut glass decanter shown in the enclosure. Would you care to comment on its value? We have been told that its intricate cuttings might place unusual value on this piece. Does a mark or signature make a piece of cut glass more valuable? E.F.W.

ANSWER: Not always. It is true that many collectors like to purchase signed pieces as a guaranty of authenticity, but it is the craftsmanship, period and condition that determines the value of a piece of cut glass. Decanters like yours in perfect condition, minus a trademark and stopper, sell around $65-$75.

QUESTION: I have been collecting art pottery (American) for several years. Recently, I purchased a lovely large bowl at a tag sale — thinking I had a rare piece of pottery — but later learned I had bought a piece of "Tiffin" glass. This bowl is 9 inches high, has a jet black satin surface that is generously covered with raised bright orange poppies, and is very weighty. Can you tell me anything about the company that made this glass and what these large pieces sell for in antique shops? D.N.C.

ANSWER: Your bowl was made by the Tiffin Glass Company — a subsidiary of the U.S. Glass Company — located at Tiffin, Ohio. The black satin glass items produced here between 1923 and 1925 have become very collectible in recent years. Bowls like yours in perfect condition sell in shops from about $35-$45.

QUESTION: Please tell me the value of a pitcher, 12 goblets, a berry dish and 12 matching sauces in the Baltimore Pear pressed glass pattern. Mrs. A.L.K.

ANSWER: Water pitchers in the Baltimore Pear pattern sell for about $65-$76, goblets $20-$25 each, berry bowls from $20-$30, and sauce dishes $7.50-$10. Footed sauces are about $5 higher.

QUESTION: Could you please give me the value of a very nice ice cream parlor set, partially shown in the enclosure. The wooden table top is 40 inches in diameter and the legs are metal, painted white. The fancy folding ice cream chairs are also painted white.

On the bottom of the table is the mark of the manufacturer "A.H. Andrews Company, Manufacturers, Chicago, Pat. Apr. 16, '89 and July 10, '94. The chairs are unmarked. Mrs. J.M.C.

ANSWER: Five piece ice cream parlor sets like yours are worth around the $300 figure.

QUESTION: I recently discovered that I have several dozen old copies of The Saturday Evening Post, dating in the '30s and '40s, all having covers by Norman Rockwell. These magazines are in excellent condition. How much are they worth?

I also have two large prints of Rockwells, titled "The Famous Model 'T' Was Boss Of The Road," and "The Street Was Never The Same." Both are about 20 by 20. I understand that these prints were given away to Ford Motor Company customers several years ago. I would like to know when? M.C.Jr.

ANSWER: Your prints were produced during the early 1950s — and are becoming very collectible. Saturday Evening Post covers by Rockwell — from the '30s and '40s — usually sell from $3-$5.

QUESTION: I am interested in learning the value of two very old Chinese Temple vases, each having a teakwood base and cover.

The vases are porcelain with oriental decorations of "Geisha" girls in a garden. Complete, each vase measures 12 inches high and both are perfect. We have had these vases since 1938. Mrs. M.A.

ANSWER: Your decorative temple vases are worth about $250-$275 (pair).

After winning half its games in the 1968 simultaneous exhibition in Edinburgh, Scotland, the MIT computer chess program MacHack was made an honorary member of the U.S. Chess Federation. (Huh?)

Six years later in Stockholm, 13 computers competed in their first world championship tournament. (You came a long way baby!)

The Soviet entry Caissa triumphed after winning a crucial game against Ostrich (Columbia University), which squandered a couple of winning chances. In an exhibition of friendship after the tournament, CHESS 4 (Northwestern University), which had tied for second but was the acknowledged strongest U.S. program, drew in 65 moves with the Soviet World Champion.

This August, the Second World Computer Championship was held in Toronto, Canada. The Northwestern entry, promoted and renamed CHESS 4.6, waited lean and hungry for its Soviet rival.

But the big match failed to materialize, when Caissa unexpectedly lost to the Duchess, an "aggressive" Duke University program, in the first round. Nonplussed, CHESS 4.6, which has won the Minnesota State Championship (humans), swept its mechanical counterparts to become champion.

Caissa tied for second with Duchess, while Univac's Chaos and Ma Belle's Belle tied for 3rd and 4th in the 16-man field.

Ironically, the CHESS 4.6 program is run on Control Data's Cyber 176. The latter is the very computer which the U.S. State Department would not let be sold to the Soviet Union.

Now we know why. World hegemony in machine chess was at stake!

Stamps in the news

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

Last year we celebrated the bicentennial of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. This year we commemorate the 200th anniversary of the drafting of the Articles of Confederation.

A new 13-cent stamp will honor the anniversary of the Articles and will be issued on Sept. 30 at York, Pa. where they were drafted. The stamp design features a vignette depicting five members of the Continental Congress at work around a conference table. The figures, say the U.S. Postal Service, are symbolic and not intended to portray specific members of the Congress.

It will be printed in red and brown on tan paper. Across the top of the design, in one line of red type, appears "Drafting the Articles of Confederation." Across the bottom in another line of red type are the words "York Town, Pennsylvania 1777" and "13c USA."

The Articles of Confederation were formally adopted on Nov. 15, 1777, and sent to the states for ratification. The ratification process was not completed until 1781. The Articles, however, served only until they were replaced by the U.S. Constitution in 1789.

The usual two methods of ordering first day cancellations are in effect — affixing your own stamps or letting the U.S.P.S. do it for you.

If you affix your own stamp which you purchase at your local post office, remember to address your envelopes with peelable return address labels on the right side. Orders must be postmarked no later than Oct. 15. Forward them to "First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, York, Pa. 17405. No remittance is required.

If you wish the U.S.P.S. to affix the stamps, then follow the same proecures about addressing the envelope, but include a money order for 13 cents per stamp and send to "Articles of Confederation Stamp, Postmaster, York, Pa. 17405." Again, orders must be postmarked no later than Oct. 15.

Navy film aimed at saving lives with 'realistic' story

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

On a moonlit ocean, a U.S. destroyer heads for disaster. Her path is on a collision course with that of an Australian aircraft carrier. The instant of impact approaches. They collide! The destroyer splits in two and slowly sinks. Men die and others battle to survive.

It's a tragic story told in a dramatic film produced by Audio-Visual Unit 284 of the Naval Air Reserve Detachment based at Floyd Bennett Field, Brooklyn, N.Y. In this documentary film re-enactment there were no casualties. In the original tragedy, 70 U.S. sailors lost their lives in the collision between the USS Evans and the Australian HMAS Melbourne during Pacific naval maneuvers in June 1969.

The purpose of the film is to save lives in future crash emergencies. It's a training film to instruct naval officers in proper operations procedures in times of crisis. It reveals the mistakes made during the real disaster, analyzes crash dangers and tells how to surmount them with the least casualties.

AVU 284 (formerly known as Combat Camera Group) is a unit of naval reserve personnel who in civilian life are photographers, cinematographers, directors, scriptwriters and journalists. They use their professional skills while serving in the naval reserve, producing films for the U.S. Navy at a substantial saving of taxpayer money when compared to what they would cost if done commercially. The Unit is headed by Capt. Arthur Ward, president of one of the largest motion picture sound studios in New York and Cmdr. George Heinemann, a producer and director of the NBC-TV shows.

To re-enact the maneuvers of the ships leading to the collision, the unit went to Norfolk, Va., where the Navy has a "mini-ocean." This is a 40-foot-square tank of water with accurate miniature ship models whose movements are guided by remote control. It is used normally by naval officers to practice ship handling under a variety of controlled circumstances.

Following a script that was completed earlier, the unit from Brooklyn shot all the footage for the film during their two weeks at Norfolk. One of their problems was to light the scene as it had been when the accident occurred.

An eight-foot-high seamless paper background was set up around two sides of the tank and the scene was lit by four 2000-watt quartz lights set up in a row — each covered with a blue gel — to give a uniform back-lit effect. During the filming, extraneous lights were turned off, leaving only the "moonlight."

"We were shooting in daylight to simulate a moonlit scene in the tank," said Photographer Gerry Costello, Chief Petty Officer in the naval reserve and a cinematographer with an aerospace company in civilian life. "We did it by underexposing the film one stop and pushing the processing to gain extra contrast."

Another problem was getting the cameras low enough to produce the point of view of an officer standing on the bridge of the ships. The camera was on a tripod as low as possible but safety precautions required it to be high enough to keep any electrical parts, like the power cord, out of the water.

Although the water in the tank was only six inches deep, any movement by the photographers created turbulent wave action. "We were in there in hipboots and had to hunker down and remain motionless," Costello said. "The water had to calm down before we could begin filming."

For live action scenes, the unit filmed aboard the USS Buttercup, the Navy's damage control simulator, in which navy personnel receive expert training in how to fight fires and repair structural damage. Many of the sequences were shot under "darken ship" procedures in which all white lights are turned off and only red illumination is permitted.

"That turned out to be a hot job," Costello recalled. "When we turned off the power for the white lights, the air-conditioning went off too. With our movie lights on, the temperature shot up to 110 degrees!"

The film, completed on schedule and on budget, was said by Vice Adm. Shanahand of the U.S. 2nd Fleet, to be the best training film he had seen. The Navy made about 100 prints of it for its officer training programs and for showing at ship handling schools at San Diego and at the Norfolk Fleet Training Center.

Since "The Melbourne-Evans incident," Audio-Visual Unit 284 has maintained its international reputation with its filming on "Up Sail," the Navy record of the International Naval Review celebrating our Bicentennial year. Its current project is "Home for the Seabees" with narration by John Wayne. It's a review of the Seabee story and its modern role in foreign countries, in the United States and in local communities.

A reflection of its achievement, the emblem of Audio-Visual Unit 284 packs symbolic significance: it shows a globe encircled by movie film, on which is superimposed a jet plane, a naval ship and a submarine.

Florence Cohn in office filled with awards.

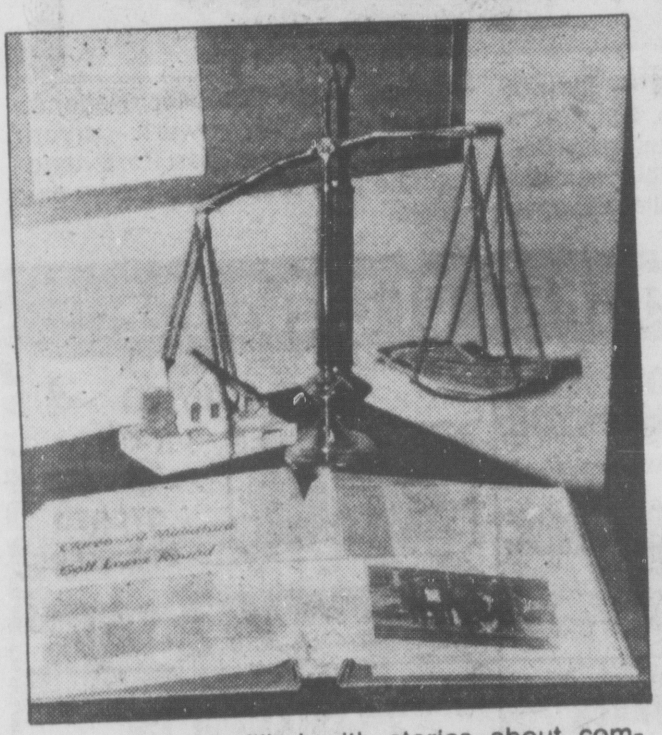
Family Real Estate adds personal touch



Scrapbook is filled with stories about community activities and praise from clients.

Florence Cohn discusses sale with Robin Parker in the family room, which has toys for children and paintings for clients.

Family Real Estate was founded in 1967 and has been thriving ever since. Broker-Owner, Florence Cohn stresses the importance of liking people and the service side of the real estate field. She feels real estate is just as much a Women's World as it is a mans. Finding homes for clients is only a small part of the business. Matching them up with the right financing, meeting their individual family needs, and just being their FRIEND is most important.

Florence teaches a real estate practice course, writes her own column once a week, and has her own income tax business where she prepares returns for over 400 clients. This is a 23 year old business and many of the real estate clients are her tax clients as well. This gives the firm a great advantage in working out tax problems resulting from real estate transactions.

Salesmanager, Robert Woolsey, heads a staff of twelve salespeople. The staff attends weekly sessions for the exchange of up-to-date information in all aspects of real estate.

The office is situated on a modern office building on Indian Hill Blvd., just north of the San Bernardino Freeway. One room where clients are at home is called the Family Room. In it is a box of toys just for the kids to keep them busy while their folks are consulting about homes.

For your every Real Estate need call Family and you'll be pleasantly surprised.

"Ibex" and "Porcupine." The scene is backed by another Allessio mural.

Passing into the first hall, art lovers will see exhibits of paintings, pottery and ceramic sculpture. At various times viewers will find Mrs. Ford at work on a sculpture, ceramists Linda Rosenus and Julie Gerber creating art on the potter's wheel, or Milford Zornes or George Allen working at their easels. John Fassbinder, Claremont potter, appears on weekends. Over the head of each artist is a large mirror angled so the visitor can see every movement and stroke of the artist and watch the painting or clay piece evolving.

Beyond the studios is a mini-theater showing color slides of the paintings and sculpture of Remington and Russell, two of America's foremost early Western painters. The slides for "Art of the Golden West" were drawn from museums throughout the United States.

Interior Design is a series of imaginative rooms displaying the latest in home furnishings and decorations. Bedroom, bathroom, livingroom and others show family living with taste and art. Director of Interior Design is former Pomona resident Dorothy Culbertson, now of Palm Springs.

The county fair photography exhibition in the next two halls displays hundreds of black-and-white and color prints and banks of colored slides. The exhibit includes entries from elementary school, junior high school, high school and college photographers. The exhibit also includes a collection of old cameras. Show superintendent is Louis Geib; Dorothy B. Decker is coordinator.

Outside of the Fine Arts Building is a broad, shaded walkway displaying ceramics, hanging fabrics and planters. Fountains, small pools, trees and shrubs provide an oasis on a hot day. Here one will see Red St. Cyr at work with his forge and anvil in a tiny rustic blacksmith shop, and glassblower Stuart Abelman at work with his pipes, molds, files and roaring furnaces.

The art department of the county fair is under the direction of Rick Petterson, internationally known artist and former professor at Scripps College.

"Art is more understandable with live artists at work," he said. "I think the public empathizes with these rather charming people who take art off the pedestal. The public has a right to come here and have an experience."

The art presentations at the county fair are indeed an experience.

Do-it-yourself

Making good use of extra space

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

You may not need another room or even a new house if you feel cramped in the one you own. Often the solution may lie in utilizing existing space through a few good, do-it-yourself projects.

For example, many people fail to utilize space under stairs, an ideal location for storage. Such space usually has good depth so that it can be partitioned to accommodate bulky and outsize articles.

A luggage section can be built to the dimensions of the largest suitcase and be large enough to accept all the luggage in the house. A narrow space could be used for golf clubs, skis, fishing rods and other tall things. Bins of different sizes are ideal for storing baseball gloves, skates and heavy outdoor jackets.

Neatly finished with a door, it could have small pull-out sections so that bins may be reached easily. Properly done, the storage units should be unobtrusive.

In the kitchen, a storage pantry can be made out of a closet. It does not need to be deep to make kitchen articles more accessible and available in a tidier arrangement. Narrow shelves on the doors could be wide enough to hold jars of home preserves and cans. The shelves could be built into a frame with a molding on each shelf to keep jars and cans from sliding.

A low storage wall between a dining-living area can provide neat storage for many objects. Shelves can open on either side, where they are most useful. On the living side, there might be room for television, records, stereo. On the dining side, space could be used for china, glassware, placemats and other accessories. Doors could be put on some of the partitioned areas to make the unit more serviceable and a prettier design. Putting casters on a divider or bulky storage piece can make it more practical.

Children's closets may be more serviceable if they are rearranged. Closets are usually planned for an adult household. Little children often cannot reach their clothes rods, much less the shelf above it.

A drawer that is built at the bottom of the closet can provide something for the child to climb on to reach the clothes rod, in addition to providing a drawer. Recessed in the closet above the drawer and under the rod could be a couple of bins labeled for sweaters, laundry, shirts and even playthings. Rods might even be put on two levels. Good partitioning can encourage neatness.

Extra sleeping space can be provided by building a niche in a hall, and, if the space is for guests, a lavatory vanity in the bathroom can solve some guest-room storage. Use it for towels, soaps, tissue, sheets, pillow cases, pillow and other accessories. Enclosing a wash basin and its pipe can solve the lack of a vanity. Add a shelf to provide more use. Keeping things in it for immediate use will be a great convenience.

Tool houses are popular outdoors but most are so huge they become storage places for the barbecue, outdoor furniture and lawn mower. There are books that will tell how to build them, or they can be bought prefabricated, which is almost as inexpensive, if the do-it-yourselfer does not have the time.

Often such a house is not needed. If one were to build ceiling bins into exposed beams and install hooks in the garage, it might just be the solution. Knockdown outdoor furniture can be stored in a crawl space or hung from garage walls. A lawn mower can hang from brackets in the garage and even barbecues can become wall fixtures with a little planning.

Unusual measures listed for combating drought

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

The past summer has been a very dry one in many areas, causing problems for a number of home gardeners. So we're passing along a tip from the American Association of Nurserymen describing what drought-suffering friends in England are doing to help their trees overcome water troubles.

They are dispensing waste water in a stingy but sufficient amount through a homemade dispensing system.

First you need a big plastic bag, such as you purchase for trash disposal, or get when you buy fertilizer or peat moss. But it should be strong and without punctures, except at the top.

The top of the bag should be tied to a tree branch, then filled with water — from the bath, washing machine, dishwasher. A bit of soap in it won't matter.

Then with a pin, prick the bottom of the bag close to the tree trunk. The hole should be only large enough to permit water to drip out very slowly and run down the side of the trunk. In this way you'll get maximum penetration and full utilization of the water. Fill the bag as often as needed to continue the slow drip.

Schoolchildren in England are encouraged to adopt street trees for their personal care. This is where the bag watering system comes in.

Try it and help trees in your area through drought times.

Aphid Control

Recently we wrote about efforts to control aphids, one of the most destructive crop insect pests, through controlled love calls. Now the federal Agricultural Research Service reports another control move, this one a biological threat to many species of aphids.

The control is the seven-spotted ladybird beetle, which preys on aphids in Europe, Asia and North Africa. This cousin to the American ladybug already is established in several parts of the United States. It has been observed feeding on 25 species of aphids fround on the University of Delaware farm at Newark and last spring was an important factor in controlling pea aphids in an alfalfa plot there and in Oklahoma.

And an entomologist at the U.S. Agricultural Research Service Southeastern Fruit and Nut Research Laboratory in Byron, Ga., also identified the beetle as the most abundant aphid predator on the farm's legumes and fruit trees last spring.

Efforts to introduce the seven-spotted ladybird beetle in several states began in 1975, including New Mexico, Ohio, Washington and Illinois but definite establishment has not been confirmed there.

The French marigold, that popular 6-to 12-inch border favorite, isn't very French.

English herbalists began calling them French marigolds because they got the seeds from France. But the French not long before had received them from Spain, who had gotten them from Cortez and his Conquistadores from the Aztec capital in Mexico.

Patty Wilson's Magnificent Marathon

When 15-year-old Patty Wilson finished her 1,300 mile marathon from Buena Park, Calif. to Portland, she set a world distance record for women. But Patty's run was even more of an achievement — she completed it despite a fractured foot and the threat of an epileptic seizure. The story of Patty's fight against her epilepsy and the stigma from the disease is one you won't want to miss.

'You can do things on a shoestring'

Top designer urges new 'furniture' arrangement

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In decorating "you can do things on a shoestring by taking a less-is-more attitude," advises Vladimir Kagan of New York, a designer and manufacturer of furniture.

If you don't do anything else in decorating, get your furniture away from walls. It requires less space when furniture is placed in the interior rather than on the perimeter of the room, he points out.

Then, too, conventional furniture arrangements may pin you to old ideas in furnishings. Modern furniture has so changed that "we should landscape our floor space," he believes.

A well known designer of custom furnishings, Kagan discusses the current furniture market.

"We are in a romantic, nostalgic mood. We are not looking for revolutionary design or heavy experimentation like corrugated paper furniture," he says. "A few years ago we thought 18th-century furnishings were the only kinds of antiques. Now we have discovered the 19th century, such as the avant-garde furnishings of Brighton (England), which break away from what we know as polite 18th-century.

"In the early 20th century, Art Nouveau was far removed from contemporary concepts of being polite and acceptable. In our nostalgic mood for prewar romance, we are taking a closer look at the deco of the '30s and finding beauty in it as home fashion designers become less imitative and more interpretive.

"They are not making reproductions of the 1930s, they are making 1977 versions of it," he adds. "In the same sense, you could not wear your mother's old clothing and look fashionable in it, but fashion designers are picking what is alluring of that period and are turning the fashions into beautiful, natural, feminine styles. The same thing is happening with home furnishings. It is more natural, less garish and at a better taste level as sifted to a common denominator."

Although there is a bit of furniture that the trade calls "borax" still around there is a lot of liveable furniture at moderate prices. Kagan likes the new rattan lines of certain manufacturers in chairs using metal and wood and fabrics that are unrestrained.

Kagan's seven-year-old multilevel furniture designs have been widely copied, although he still doesn't think of it as mass market design, he said.

"I create islands of multilevels where you can sit, sleep, lounge and play. People don't want to sit at one level," he said in describing his furniture, which is used in many ways.

One bed, "an island within a room," has "liberated the bedroom." Cabinets and all sorts of things are part of the bed, which is built to be used anywhere in a room. A foam rubber perimeter can serve as a chair and chaise. He designs for people with unique ideas.

In 1943 Kagan began working with his father, a manufacturer and cabinet maker, who had been apprenticed in Russia at the turn of the century. He had emigrated to the United States in 1938 with his old tools and opened a little cabinet shop in New York.

As a result of his work with his father, Kagan studied architecture and began his own innovative career. He trains his own crafstmen and artisans, but says he always needs more — one problem in the furniture business today

Project not a stigma

She's still living in a 'vertical slum'

CHICAGO (AP) — For Nellie Jones, staying in the public housing high rise that had been her home for 15 years meant the chance to show young people that living in the project was not a stigma.

Many people, including members of her family, had expected that when Mrs. Jones became a $25,000-a-year public official she would naturally want to leave the $153 a month aparment in a building known as a "vertical slum."

But Mrs. Jones, sanitary district commissioner and mother of four school-age children, resents suggestions that she ought to move now that she is "making it.".

"Most people who start making it can't wait to get out," says Mrs. Jones, 44, who was elected to the sanitary district post last November for a 6-year term. "I want to stay here so I can inspire young people who feel stigmatized because they live in projects."

She said her own children, who range in age from 9 to 19, were among those urging her to move after she won the election and resigned her $9,432-a-year job as city traffic court clerk.

Her response: "I told them what I tell all the young people here. You can live here and make it too." Mrs. Jones also has three older children who are all married.

Mrs. Jones said she was tapped to run for the sanitary district board by the Regular Democratic Organization in the 2nd Ward, where she has worked as a precinct captain.

"That $25,000-a-year sounds good, but after taxes, campaign expenses and other bills, I'm not rich," she said. "My lifestyle hasn't changed much at all."

The Chicago Housing Authority notified her that she is over the income limit of $10,875 for continued occupancy of her four-bedroom apartment. But federal guidelines require the agency to find comparable private housing for her if it wants to evict her.

"We're in no hurry to get rid of her," says Robert Lefley, the agency's information director. "It's good to keep upwardly mobile families because they provide leadership and stability."

Besides, he added, there are 170 vacant apartments in the project.

CARLOS MONTOYA

Guitarist set at Ambassador

Flamenco guitarist Carlos Montoya will open the 1977-78 season at the Ambassador Auditorium in Pasadena with a recital at 8:30 p.m. next Saturday.

Flamenco titles can be perplexing. Concert audiences throughout the world, and millions of aficionados who collect his numerous recordings, are often confronted with a familiar title on a Montoya program or record liner, only to hear a wholly new musical piece. The reason for this is that Montoya prefers to give his solos their traditional generic names, rather than create what he calls a "fancy title" for each selection.

Thus it is that a program may list "Alegrias," "Buleria," "Farruca" (all of which describe dance rhythms) or "Tarantes," "Granainas" and "Peteneras" (which are songs), for two or three seasons running, and yet be a wholly new program.

In hewing so closely to the traditional thematic titles of his music, Montoya is mirroring the traditional nature of flamenco music. While the selections he plays are his own compositions, they all derive from traditional flamenco themes. There are many such melodies, usually consisting of but one short verse. Montoya takes such a short melodic scheme and improvises on it to create a wholly new self-contained musical entity.

Although he still clings to the traditional titles, he adds new variations to his pieces at every performance. Unlike the classical guitarists, he cannot rely on printed music by another composer; this masterful musician doesn't read a note. But, as Harold Schonberg once said in the New York Times: "He does something much more important; he makes music."

Tickets are $8.50. $7.50 and $6.50. The box office is open Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sunday, noon to 5 p.m. On Saturdays, tickets may be charged by calling "Telephone Tickets" at (213) 232-3371. The phone number for the box office and Phone Charge (BankAmericard - VISA, Master Charge or American Express) is (213) 577-5511. Tickets are also available through Mutual ticket agencies. This concert is sponsored by Ambassador College in conjunction with its department of music and art

Casting set for Columbo

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Trish Van Devere will star as a ruthless television executive who kills her boss and lover when he blocks her promotion on NBC's "Columbo."

The two-hour "Columbo," starring Peter Falk, will be seen later this season.

Miss Van Devere appeared with her husband, George C Scott, in "Beauty and the Beast" last season. She also co-starred with David Janssen in the TV movie "Farrell."

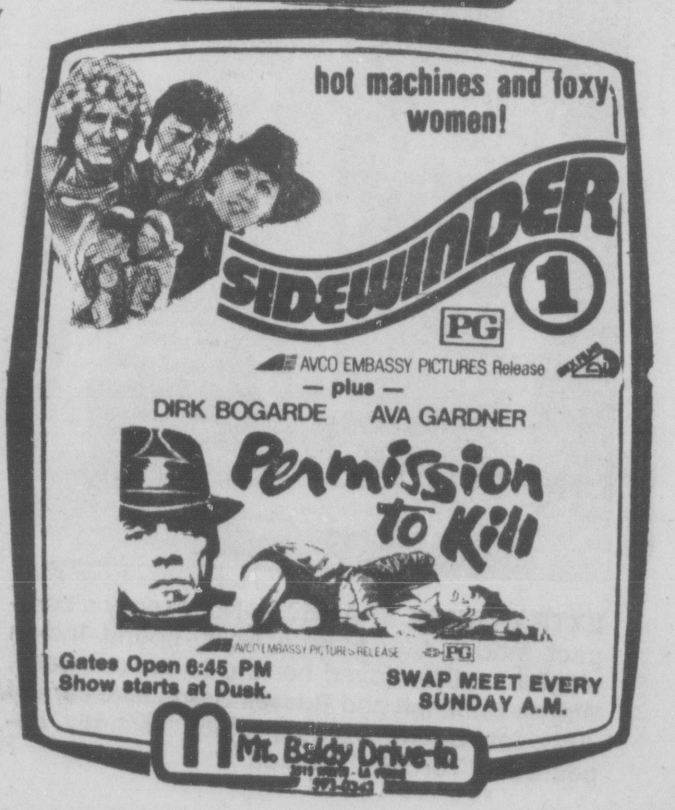
'Pinocchio' set at the Hartford

The children's classic, "Pinocchio," will be presented by a cast of life-size marionettes at the Huntington Hartford Theater in Hollywood for 16 performances Oct. 1-9.

A gallery of 102 life-size marionettes create a production of color and beauty, all moving to the original music and songs composed by Arnold Miller.

During its recent tour across the United States, the production was hailed by critics, educators and religious leaders for its imaginative and whimsical quality. The circus atmosphere and bouncy tunes keep the audiences excited and entertained, teaching the lessons and moral virtues of the original classic tale painlessly with fun and joy. Children become involved with "Pinocchio," a toymaker's creation whose nose grows whenever he tells a lie. They merrily travel with him on his way to becoming a real boy, while learning the virtues of honesty, bravery, dependability and many other lessons.

The eight-day engagement is being produced by Budrow Family Productions, Inc. in association with the educational program of the Southern California Theater Association, James A. Doolittle — General Director. The life-size marionettes are manipulated by a team of eight, under the direction of master puppeteer Charles Budrow. Performance schedule is: Tuesday-Friday at 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m., Saturdays at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. and Sundays at 1:30 p.m. and 4 p.m.



ACTING UP — Liza Minelli and Roger Minami cavort in a number from the musical, "The Act," playing through Oct. 17 at the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center. This is the final Los Angeles Civic Light Opera production.

Cy Coleman

Composer works with 4 lyricists

NEW YORK (AP) — Cy Coleman, composer of one of Broadway's current musical hits, is at work on four more shows — with a different lyricist for each.

Such energetic diversity, he says, is designed to overcome the usual hazards that beset theatrical creativity.

"The business end of getting something produced takes so much time that if you keep narrowing in on just one property, you don't grow and you end up frustrated."

The melody man's habit of teaming with sundry companions for the words to fit his tunes "is refreshing and stretches one's ability."

Coleman got together with Michael Stewart on "I Love My Wife," the blithe caper about marriage versus swinging that is playing to near capacity throngs at the Barrymore Theater. A London copy opens Oct. 4 and other productions are due soon in Spain, The Netherlands, Belgium, West Germany, Norway and Australia.

Since Main Stem debut in tandem with Joe McCarthy on songs for "John Murray Anderson's Almanac" in 1953, Coleman has been associated with Carolyn Leigh for "Wildcat" and "Little Me," with Dorothy Fields on "Sweet Charity" and "Seesaw."

On the immediate agenda is "20th Century," alongside the durable Betty Comden and Adolph Green. Adapted from a comedy by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, it goes into rehearsal Nov. 1 under Harold Prince's direction.

Further ahead are "Encounter," a group therapy story in which Coleman is allied with James Lipton; "The Baker's Dozen" based on Russell Baker's droll journalistic columns, lyrics by Barbara Fried, and "Atlantic City," in progress with Christopher Gore.

"I wouldn't want to give the impression I'm grabbing off a lot of projects all of a sudden," notes Coleman. "They've all been around from seven to two years. But you simply cannot just sit around and wait for people to raise the money, to wait for a director or something else. Right now I'm having my greatest surge of activity."

He ruefully recalls a couple of instances when single-minded concentration on a project got nowhere — "a wonderful score for James Thurber's 'Wonderful O,' and a show with Miss Fields about Eleanor Roosevelt — 11 producers had it but it never was done."

In every project Coleman tackles, "It's hard for me to think of myself as being into typical musical theater. I like to fool around with form, even if the differences aren't visible until some scholar comes around five years later to tell you what you did."

Adjusting to the work idiosyncracies of assorted lyricists occasionally creates problems which he insists better the product in the long run.

"You focus on the work rather than becoming buddies," he says.

The late Miss Fields, Coleman recalls, "drove me up the wall because she was a morning person and the thing that keeps me going is seven or eight hours of sleep. We both made concessions.

"Jimmy Lipton is always doing a thousand things. We get together and then each goes off by himself. With Comden and Green, work is better together. Carolyn (Leigh) was tough in that you always had to be there through the whole birth process."

Sometimes words, sometimes melody comes first for the New York-born melodist.

At age 48, bachelor Coleman has been in show business 42 years. "I was a child prodigy," he casually remarks, studying piano at four and giving public concerts when six.

When he was graduated from high school, steeped in Brahms, Ravel and Beethoven, he formed a jazz trio that immediately found night club employment. Soon he was a cabaret soloist, testing the songs that he was already starting to write.

"I never thought my career would primarily be in the theater," he says.

Coleman still likes to perform at the keyboard and this season will appear with symphony orchestras in 15 cities from Pittsburgh to Honolulu.

The selection he has programmed is "The Coleman Collection," a three-movement synthesis of his dulcet output thus far.

Asked to curb imports, relax pollution

Carter pressured to 'save steel jobs'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration and Congress came under increased pressure Friday for import restrictions to protect the nation's ailing steel industry and save jobs.

Some 300 steel workers from the Youngstown, Ohio, area appealed to their senators and a White House official for help while local elected officials from steel industry cities lobied at the Commerce Department.

Steel industry cutbacks have cost more than 5,000 jobs at Youngstown alone.

"This is going to tear up the community," Edward Mann, president of United Steelworkers Local 1462 in Youngstown, told Midge Costanza, a presidential assistant.

Mann and about 30 union members met with Ms. Costanza at the White House gate and gave her petitions urging the government to curb steel imports and to relax pollution control requirements.

The rest of the group, which arrived aboard five buses, marched to Capitol Hill where the steel workers met with Ohio's two senators and also gave them similar petitions bearing thousands of names.

At the same time, Anne Wexler, deputy undersecretary of commerce for regional affairs, met with representatives from Youngstown, Pittsburgh and other steel cities. She said she would relay the group's suggestions to the White House and said the Commerce Department would "do all we could."

Ms. Costanza said she would try to arrange a White House meeting with local officials and union representatives. "We want to get to the bottom of this," she said.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, told the steel workers that a meeting tentatively has been arranged for next week with President Carter, key administration officials and congressmen to discuss the problem.

L.A. won't allow Concorde to land

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The city won't allow the supersonic Concorde jetliner to land at Los Angeles International Airport despite a proposal by the Carter administration that would permit landings in the United States, airport spokesmen said Friday.

Robert C. Davidson, deputy general manager for the Department of Airports, said the city has spent $200 million in efforts to restrict noise around the airport and is not about to jeopardize that investment.

"It cannot land here," added airport spokeswoman Virginia Blake. "We will not permit it to land."

She pointed that the federal government has imposed strict noise regulations, including an order to retrofit older and noisier jet aircraft.

Killer's life spared for week at least

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge rejected convicted murderer John A. Spenkelink's challenge to Florida's death penalty law Friday but spared the condemned prisoner from execution for at least a week.

Actually, Spenkelink probably received an even longer reprieve when Gov. Reubin Askew left Friday for a 17-day industry and investment recruitment trip to the Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden and Switzerland.

The death warrant Askew signed for Spenkelink on Sept. 12 expires at midnight Saturday, and an aide said the governor would not sign another warrant until after his return on Oct. 10, and then only if no federal court stay is in effect.

Spenkelink originally was scheduled to die in the electric chair at Florida State Prison last Monday for the slaying of Joseph Szymankiewiz, 43, of Detroit, an Ohio parole violator.

U.S. District Court Judge William Stafford stayed the execution Sept. 16 to hear arguments on the challenge to the death penalty law. In rejecting the challenge Friday, he extended the stay until next Friday to give Spenkelink time to appeal his ruling.

House attacks Medicare abuses, 'expensive' nursing homes, doctors

Bill to curb medical frauds passes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to combat abuse of Medicare and Medicaid and impose tougher penalties on nursing homes and doctors that pad their bills was approved Friday by the House.

The vote of 362 to 5 sends the measure to the Sente, where a similar bill has been approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

The final version is expected to get quick approval from President Carter.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. praised the House action, saying, "This is an important milestone in the attempt of the Congress and the executive branch to make government Medicaid and Medicare programs free from fraud, abuse and error."

He said HEW will use the power to curb fraud in the two health programs to the full extent permitted in the bill.

The bill would stiffen penalties for physicians or nursing homes convicted of defrauding the Medicare and Medicaid programs, and for members of the medical profession who solicit kickbacks or bribes to gain more business.

It would change most fraudulent acts in the health programs from misdemeanors to felonies. Current maximum penalties of one year in prison and a $10,000 fine would be raised to five years in prison and a $25,000 fine.

One intent of the legislation is to do away with so-called Medicaid mills, or unregulated, unlicensed and poorly equipped storefront units located in ghettos of large cities. They derive their main business from welfare patients.

A common violation of the Medicaid mills is to ping-pong, or refer patients from one doctor to another within the facility although there is no medical reason to do so.

Investigations also have revealed that some physicians determine which laboratories will do the test work for their Medicaid patients by the amount of kickbacks the laboratories offer.

Six children, adult trapped, die in blaze

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Six children and an adult died Friday after being trapped on the top floor of a three-story apartment building by a rapidly spreading fire, authorities said.

The four-alarm fire, which started in a first floor kitchen stove, spread through an air shaft and gave the victims virtually no time to escape, Fire Chief William Neafsey said.

The victims were identified as Anna Alvela, 44; her two grandchildren, Nancy Alvela, 3, and Evelyn Alvela, 2; Barbara Aguilar, 6, and her three brothers, Albert, 5, and George and Edward, both 3.

After 2 days, arms pact closer

Vance, Gromyko 'making progress'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko wound up two days of talks Friday and reported progress toward a new strategic arms limitation agreement.

After seven hours of talks at the White House and the State Department, Gromyko told reporters, "The position of the two sides has drawn somewhat closer together."

Vance said he agreed with that assessment.

Gromyko emphasized there is still no agreement to replace the 1972 arms limitation accord, which expires Oct. 3.

"We will do all in our power to ensure a successful outcome of the talks," Gromyko said through his interpreter. The foreign minister added that the possibility of a summit meeting between President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Breshnev also was discussed, but he gave no details.

In a statement issued Friday night, Vance announced formally that the United States would continue to adhere to the terms of the agreement after its expiration date.

"In order to maintain the status quo while Salt II negotiations are being completed, the United States declares its intention not to take any action inconsistent with the provisions of (SALT I) which expires on Oct. 3, 1977 and with the goals of these ongoing negotiations provided that the Soviet Union exercises similar restraint," the statement said.

Vance had previously disclosed the administration's intention to continue to honor the expiring accord in a letter to Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Earlier, the State Department said it had decided not to seek a formal extension of the expiring arms agreement in order to pressure the Soviet Union into negotiating a more ambitious arms pact.

The President took a personal hand in the arms talks on Friday when he met with Gromyko for three hours.

White woman 'whose rights were violated' admitted to med school

Minority admissions program faces challenge

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A federal judge on Friday ordered the University of California medical school at Davis to admit a 22-year-old white woman who had argued that a minority admissions program violated her rights.

U.S. District Judge Thomas MacBride ordered that Rita Clancy be admitted to the beginning of classes on Monday.

He said that while the constitutionality of the minority admissions program is being determined by the U.S. Supreme Court in a case involving a white male student, Allan Bakke, Mrs. Clancy would suffer unless she were immediately admitted.

Under the minority admissions program, 16 of the 100 openings in each entering class are reserved for disadvantaged minority students.

Bakke has argued that he was denied admission while less qualified minority students were accepted under the special program.

Mrs. Clancy advanced basically the same argument, but the university had asked MacBride to hold up a ruling on her suit until a decision in the Bakke case was handed down by the Supreme Court. The nation's highest court is scheduled to consider the Bakke case on Oct. 12.

MacBride's ruling did not abolish the minority admissions program, which is continuing while the Supreme Court considers the Bakke case.

But the judge said that Mrs. Clancy would suffer more harm by continued denial of admission than the university would suffer in admitting her until the constitutionality of the issue is settled.

Mrs. Clancy, a Russian immigrant from a poor family, graduated from UCLA with an Aminus average and was at the top of the medical school waiting list for the fall term.

In denying the university' request to delay the issue until the Bakke case is resolved, the judge issued a temporary restraining order admitting Mrs. Clancy.

MADE WITH TENDER LOVING CARE, AND SHE'S A WINNER!

Toni Callen, of San Dimas, a mother of four, was entered in the annual butter-churning contest by her children at the Los Angeles County Fair Friday afternoon. And though she had never been in such a competition previously, lo and behold, she was awarded first place for her two pounds of heart-shaped butter. Joe Mangrich of Pomona was second, Harold Vensand of Lakewood third, and fair princess Terrilyn Batson of San Dimas, fourth. In the pictures above, the winner strokes vigorously for 10 minutes (left), then empties the butter into a dish for cleaning and forming, and finally, the blue ribbon winner!

Compromise on natural gas prices blocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both the Carter administration and the chairman of the Senate Energy Committee indicated Friday that they were willing to compromise on natural gas pricing after a key setback for the Carter plan.

But their efforts appeared frustrated by what amounted to a filibuster led by senators who feel any increase in gas prices over the current levels is unjustified.

The prolonged debate that seemed likely in the Senate could seriously delay enactment of the President's troubled energy program.

Unable to cut the filibuster short, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., scheduled an unusual Saturday session. Both he and Republican leader Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., said they were ready to file a debate-limiting cloture petition if necessary.

If three-fifths of the Senate goes along with such a petition, debate on the gas pricing measure would be limited to 100 hours.

Meanwhile, several key administration officials also suggested the possibility of a compromise in the Senate, although they stressed that the President prefers the House-passed bill, which contains his pricing proposal.

In a crucial test, the Senate on Thursday voted 52 to 46 against the Carter plan for continued controls on natural gas and agreed to keep debating an industry-supported proposal to deregulate new natural gas prices.

Carter's plan would keep controls but raise the lid from the current $1.45 per thousand cubic feet to $1.75 while also extending this limit to the now-unregulated market in Texas, Louisiana and other gas-producing states.

UP ON A RAIL — An automobile dangles from a safety rail in front of the Alpha Beta market on S. Garey Avenue in Pomona after the driver lost control and crashed through a brick planter box Friday. The collision sent bricks smashing through the store windows but no one was injured. The driver of the car, Earl Stevens, 82, escaped serious injury.

Noise standard for Concordes upsets French

PARIS (AP) — The French denounced as "inadmissible and very grave" President Carter's decision Friday to require future supersonic Concordes to meet the same noise standards as other jetliners.

But the British welcomed the decision to continue Concorde service to the United States.

French Transport Minister Marcel Cavaille told a news conference that the American decision, announced by Transportation Secretary Brock Adams in Washington, "throws the future of the French-British Concord program into jeopardy."

He said it would limit the program to the 16 Concordes already built or being built.

Cavaille said he thought the French and British governments should make a joint protest to Washington over the "unilateral" decision, which he said flouted international law.

In London, the British comanufacturers of the plane said they were "delighted" by the U.S. move, which allows for continued and possible expanded service by existing Concordes to the United States. Knowledgeable British sources said the development might enable the deficit-burdered plane to begin turning a profit.

British Airways, which uses five Concordes, welcomed Washington's decision as "another step forward for the plane."

Marx's children get riches

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Groucho Marx's will, leaving most of his riches to his three children and $150,000 to his longtime companion, Erin Fleming, was entered into probate Friday without opposition.

Groucho, who died Aug. 1 after a lengthy illness, also named Miss Fleming his business manager, asking that she take care of business dealings.

"He believed," said Miss Fleming in a telephone interview Friday, "that I had a full understanding of who he was as a man and an actor, an artist and a Jew, a lover and a clown."

Superior Court Judge Edward Rafeedie approved the admission of the Marx will and named the Bank of America as executor. Marx left a proviso in his will that if any of his heirs contested the will they were to receive $1 and the balance of their prescribed inheritance would go to charity. Nobody contested it.

Ethiopia gears for big battle

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Both Ethiopian troops and Somali-backed insurgents in Ethiopia's eastern Ogaden region appeared to be using a fighting lull to gear for a major battle, Western diplomatic sources reported Friday.

Only reports of isolated skirmishes reached Addis Ababa, the capital of Ethiopia, the sources said. The rebels are fighting to annex the region to Somalia.

The diplomatic sources, contacted from Nairobi, said, "Ethiopians drafted in the latest emergency call-up have gradually started going to the war front."

Police jail two suspects

Robbers hit two small markets

Two small Pomona markets were robbed Thursday and officers early today booked two suspects in connection with one of the holdups.

That robbery occurred late Thursday night at the 7-Eleven Market at 1001 E. Grand Ave. where two men, one armed with a shiny revolver, threatened to "blow away" the cashier if he did not surrender the store's cash.

The victim, 21 years old, said the pair entered, bought beer and then one pulled the pistol after asking him if he had ever been robbed before. After obtaining a small amount of cash, the robbers ran to a car parked outside and sped away.

An hour later, police arrested two men they found in a similar car bearing a similar license number. The pair, Armando Gerardo Gonzalez, 20, and Rolando Daveila Requena Jr., 21, were booked on suspicion of robbery.

The other holdup occurred late Thursday afternoon at the Columbia Market at 1432 W. Ninth St.

The victim, 22 years old, said the lone robber pulled a revolver from his waistband and demanded money after taking a six-pack of beer to the counter. The gunman then fled into a field nearby.

He was described as a Latin about 19, 5 feet 9 weighing 160 pounds. He wore a white T-shirt, a painter's hat and tan trousers.

Regular minimum wage hike scuttled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration and key liberal senators gave up Friday on their proposal to increase the minimum wage automatically in the future.

The House already had killed a proposal for an automatic escalator — called indexing — last week when it passed a bill raising the current $2.30 an hour minimum to $2.65 in January.

With evidence mounting that the Senate also would reject the indexing idea, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall announced that the administration now supports a new alternative amendment to the Senate's minimum wage bill.

Under the new proposal, the minimum wage would go to $2.65 in January, then increase by 25 cents an hour each year so that it would reach $3.40 in 1981.

The new amendment was introduced by Sens. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the Human Resources Committee, and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., the committee's ranking minority member.

The proposed minimum wage figures are almost equal to what the indexing formula would have yielded. The formula would have been tied to a percentage of the average wages paid workers as determined by the Labor Department.

The bill passed by the House would set minimum wages at $2.85 in 1979, $3.05 in 1980 and no change in 1981.

Sen. Williams said in a statement that he had received "expressions of concern" from other senators and business groups over the indexing idea. He noted the House eliminated the idea and said there "is obviously considerable sentiment in this body for the House approach."

The House narrowly defeated an amendment to the wage bill that would have allowed employers to hire persons under age 21 at 80 per cent of the minimum wage. Business groups are expected to lobby for restoration of this proposal in the Senate bill.

Pomona employes accept wage pact

By an extremely narrow margin, members of the Pomona City Employees Association have voted in favor of a three-year salary and fringe benefit package.

But it may not be until its Oct. 10 meeting that the Pomona City Council will study the proposed agreement with the city's miscellaneous employees.

Of 232 paid association members, 151 cast ballots Thursday night. According to the results, 78 voted for the package, while 73 said no.

Negotiations started in February, but had reached an impasse until the election Thursday night.

'Brown's' mansion available

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The vacant governor's mansion, shunned by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. as a "Taj Mahal," will be available for seminars and training sessions next year under a bill signed by Brown Friday.

The $1.3-million, Spanish-style structure beside the American River in Carmichael, 15 miles east of the Capitol, has never been used. It was a project of Gov. Ronald Reagan, built on land donated by his supporters.

During his 1974 campaign, while the mansion was being built, Brown called it a "Taj Mahal" and a "white elephant" and vowed not to live in it. He rents two apartments in a state-owned building across from the Capitol.

The bill, AB 1685 by Assemblyman Frank Vicencia, D-Bellflower, will allow government employes to hold seminars and training sessions in the mansion as long as no governor lives there.

Little queen fete set

Gracie Oliver, a two-foot, 10 inch woman from Michigan, will be crowned queen of Little People International at the group's annual banquet tonight at 8:15 at Griswold's in Claremont.

The banquet precedes the Billy Barty Celebrity Golf Tournament sponsored by the Little People at Azusa Greens Golf Course Sunday.

Gracie will serve as Little Miss International following her crowning tonight. She is 21 years old, and comes from Grosse Pointe, Mich. She is attending college in Michigan and plans to be a teacher of the blind.

13 A LUCKY NUMBER

Wilhelmina Van Dam of Upland shows off the 13 scallops she knitted to win the junior division of the Nimble Fingers competition this week at the Los Angeles County Fair. She's an eight-time winner.

Uplander wins knitting contest

Wilhelmina Van Dam of Upland brought her own cheering section to the Nimble Fingers knitting competition at the Los Angeles County Fair this week.

Mrs. Van Dam didn't let them down as she won her eighth blue ribbon in the junior or under 65 division.

Present during the 15-minute contest were her husband, Cornelius; her brother, Bob Spits; his wife, Claire; and the two Spits children, Cassandra and Jason.

The Spits family is on vacation from Australia.

Van Dam commented only that his wife is "great."

Mrs. Van Dam was credited with 13 puffs, and beat out the 1976 winner, Rose Belair of West Covina, who had 11&1/6 puffs for second.

In the senior division, Dorothy Heisler of Fullerton won for the second straight year and will not be eligible to compete in 1977.

She had 10&2/5 puffs, one more than runner-up Agnes McQueen of Los Angeles, who won in 1976. Ina Maxwell had 8&5/6, and Mary Brose of Riverside, who won the crocheting in 1975 and 1976, finished 8&4/5 puffs. Fifth was Juanita Swaim with 7&5/6 puffs. Lone male entry Don Laughlin of La Verne came in ninth with 4&4/5 puffs and a $2.50 prize.

Mrs. Heisler said that she was on vacation in 1976 and therefore didn't compete.

She said that she has knitted five afghans, one for each of her grandchildren.

"When each turns 18, I will give him or her an afghan for a birthday present," she said.

Modified design of Upland shopping center approved

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

There's no accounting for taste.

Upland City Council this week gave new testimony to the validity of that adage when it gave left-handed approval to the city Architectural Commission's modified design of Mountaingreen Center — a major shopping complex to be built on the northwest corner of Mountain Avenue and Seventh Street.

It was a victory for what some called "architectural continuity," although others insisted it was a slap in the face of architectural originality.

By a 2-2 tie vote, the council killed the last ditch effort by developer Harry Crowell to save the original design of the center.

"I'm not at all happy about it," said Crowell of the modifications.

His unhappiness won't prevent the center from being built, however, although he said he may lose a couple of months because of the modifications.

Before the vote, Crowell gave an impassioned presentation, calling the original design "exciting" and "innovative."

The original proposal included staggered store fronts, recessed garden-like areas, and a mixture of building textures and colors.

"The original design creates appeal and interest. We wanted a place that would be fun to shop, where people would want to walk around and look in the windows," said Crowell.

Crowell fought for his architect's original design, not only this week, but over the past several months as the center went through a number of Architectural Commission hearings.

In the end, however, he was unable to convince the commission, or a majority of the council, that the design was as perfect as he maintained.

The commission ordered changes and Crowell said he has "relunctantly agreed."

The changes create a more conventional looking center with subtler colors, textures and forms.

Councilman Hal Bailin, Crowell's one avid supporter on the council, called the changes dull.

"There's nothing distinctive about, and nothing bad about it either. I'd rather take a chance at being a little brash and different," said Bailin.

Bailin wanted to override the commission's findings and picked up Councilman William Bottin's support.

Bottin looked at the commission's design and decided he didn't like it.

"You're all crazy," he said.

Councilwoman Ina Petokas and Mayor George Gibson stood behind the commission, however.

Mrs. Petokas said she found the original design "trendy" and suspected it would not hold up well in the years ahead.

The fifth vote on the matter belonged to Councilman John McCarthy, who pleaded confusion.

He said he just couldn't envision the center from drawings.

"I just don't feel qualified to make a judgement," McCarthy said.

He abstained in the vote.

The council's tie vote leaves the commission's findings intact.

Crowell said the preparation of new plans, incorporating the changes ordered by the commission, may delay the opening of one of the center's major tenants — Mervyn's Department Store.

Opening had been planned for next April, but may have to be pushed back six months to accommodate Mervyn's rigid sales and advertising campaign schedule, said Crowell.

Other major tenants will include a Long's Drug Store, a four-unit Mann Theater complex, a Denny's Restaurant and Reuben's Plankhouse Restaurant.

Crowell said he already has 26 businesses with pre-leases in the center, which is expected to draw a regional market with its access to the adjacent San Bernardino Freeway.

Chino district not as large as expected

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

The Chino school district isn't growing quite as fast as officials thought.

Enrollment as of Sept. 16 for grades kindergarten through 12th is 12,693, nearly 700 fewer students than officials had estimated earlier.

However, administrators say about 200 more students will enroll in the district by the end of September, which would narrow the gap between projected and actual enrollment to 500.

The original estimate of 13,374 students was projected for the end of September, officials say.

Administrators indicate a 5 percent "error" was made in kindergarten through eighth grade projections.

According to Art Utsler, research and planning assistant, the number of children coming out of new homes being built in Chino is not as high as experienced a year ago. "Significant changes in elementary and junior high student/dwelling ratios have been experienced with recent move-ins," he noted.

New residents moving into the Chino housing tracts are younger and have less children in grades kindergarten through eighth, said Utsler.

Families just aren't having as many children these days, and this could be causing the errors in enrollment projections, officials say.

A total district census will be taken in November, and long range effects of the errors will then be determined.

School trtees were informed of the projection mistakes at this week's board meeting.

Trustee Dan Santo noted that if the district proves to have 500 fewer students than previously estimated, it could lose about $600,000 in state funds given for average daily attendance.

Administrators indicated enrollment may pick up, however, later in the year.

Squirrels are too aggressive for Wrightwood

By VONNE ROBERTON
PB Staff Writer

Washington's squirrels are just too aggressive for California.

At least that is what state Department of Health officials told Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., West Covina, when he asked about the feasibility of transporting some of the squirrels from the overpopulated area around the White House to Wrightwood, a mountain community in his district.

Last year, the squirrel population was decimated by a plague of ticks which attacked hundreds of animals in the San Bernardino Mountain community. The attractive red and gray squirrels were an ever-present sight in the yards and treetops.

State health officials said the Washington squirrels tend to be susceptible to some pests which are here on the West Coast and on the other hand, are host to pests which California control officers want to keep out of the state.

"A previous experiment in which Washington squirrels were imported into San Francisco's Golden Gate park was disastrous," adds Lloyd. "The Eastern squirrels were so aggressive that they drove away the native animals."

Tom Pinard, editor of the Wrightwood Mountaineer, said it was too early to know what most residents felt about the failure to obtain the White House squirrels since most of the people had not yet heard the decision.

"We may start a grass-roots drive to import some animals from another area within the state," said Pinard.

Lloyd said that naturalists assured him that Wrightwood would again have its squirrels.

"The plague may have been nature's way of reducing the animal population," said the congressman. "Most health authorities we've talked to feel that the area will become repopulated.

"After all, squirrels are friendly little creatures. Maybe we can get a grant to provide some soft music."

DOREEN CARPENTER

Upland's city clerk honored

Upland City Clerk Doreen K. Carpenter has been awarded the designation of Certified Municipal Clerk by the International Institute of Municipal Clerks.

The award is given by the organization in recognition of education, experience and service.

Mrs. Carpenter, known as "Dee," was first elected to office in 1968. She is now in her third term in office.

She is the 62nd municipal clerk in California to be accorded the honor.

She has completed a three-year educational program for professional clerks at UC Santa Cruz. The program involves over 100 hours of study.

Mrs. Carpenter is currently first vice president of the Southern California City Clerk's Association and is active in the City Clerk's Association of California as well as the International Institute of Municipal Clerks.

In 1960, about 53 million gallons of table wine entered distribution channels in the United States. That figure increased by four times in 1975 — to 214 hillion gallons.

ACLU members meet Sunday

Members of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union will meet Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Hugh Hamilton, 603 W. Eighth St., Claremont.

All meetings are open to the public.

The chapter has scheduled three meetings, all to be held at McAlister Center in Claremont. On Oct. 5, Professor Fred Krinsky of Pomona College will discuss current issues in church-state relations. On Oct. 26, Dick Caudillo of ACLU's Gay Rights Chapter will discuss issues in gay rights. And, on Nov. 30, Fred Okrand, ACLU's legal director and Leo Flynn of Pomona College will discuss the Burger Supreme Court and civil liberties. Times of the meetings were not announced.

Santa Claus volunteers getting ready

Think ahead with Santa Claus, Inc., Pomona-Walnut Valley.

Think Christmas.

Already Santa Claus, Inc. volunteers are at work preparing toys for Christmas giving to boys and girls from low-income families.

The volunteers are making a public appeal for new and used toys, games, bikes, books and dolls. They also need patterns for doll clothes, and material from which to fashion the clothes.

Some of the volunteers can sew and they need a sewing machine for the collection center on the Pomona Mall.

Additional volunteers would be welcome

Those interested in helping with the preparation of gifts for several hundred youngsters at Christmas — just three months away — may call 626-5544 or 622-2373.

Those with items they would like to have picked up are asked to call the above numbers.

Volunteers of all ages, from high school students to retired persons, are urged to give time to the gigantic project.

VOLUNTEER PAINTERS

New Lincoln Elementary School Principal Sam Tharpe and Pomona school trustee Frances Livingston collaborate on a wall in the school's cafeteria where several trustees, community leaders and government officials — from school PTA President Margaret Siskowski to Pomona Mayor Charles Bader — volunteered their time recently in a paint-in. A fresh coat of green and white adorns the walls now replacing a worn mud brown. The paint-in was Tharpe's idea, with assistance from Mrs. Siskowski and community leaders.

Tips on how to avoid purse snatching given

Many school-age persons are alert, agile and fast on their feet — qualities useful in sports.

But, unfortunately, some persons find these qualities valuable in the field of purse snatching, said FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley.

"These youthful criminals are constantly looking for an opportunity to grab an unguarded purse from an unsuspecting victim and take off with it after meeting little or no resistance."

To discourage these thieves, Kelley offered these tips:

—Don't carry a purse if you don't have to do so. Consider carrying valuables and other necessary items in a pocket instead.

—Don't make yourself a particularly desirable target by displaying a lot of money or leaving the purse open so money or valuables may be seen.

—Be particularly alert when leaving a bank or other location where people frequently obtain money or valuables.

—Don't put your purse down and allow your attention to be diverted from it. When carrying bags, packages or other items, carry your purse between the items and your body.

—When walking, carry your purse close to your body and with your hand over the clasp to make the purse harder to grab and also less inviting. Shoulder bags should be carried in the same manner.

—Avoid wrapping a purse strap around your wrist or arm. If the thief struggles for the purse, you might be injured because you can't free yourself. Don't risk serious injury from a determined thief.

—Be conscious of the security of your purse and make sure it is less attractive as a target for a young thief.

"Maybe your action will encourage him to use his talents in a more beneficial way," said Kelley.

Devil's advocate

The Devil's advocate was originally the name given the person appointed by the state to oppose a proposed canonization in the Roman Catholic Church. The person who undertook the defense was God's advocate.

Christian Chapel of Wlanut

The Christian Chapel of Walnut has added a new Saturday evening worship service so people can attend either Saturday or Sunday. Pastor George Crites said the new 7 p.m. Saturday service has been added to meet the expanding needs of the congregation. All three Sunday services are near capacity and the Saturday service will help make room for new people at all services and provide a needed service for those who can't attend Sunday mornings.

Covenant United Methodist

The 7 p.m. Sunday service at the Covenant United Methodist Church will be the film, "Say It With Music," narrated by Ralph Carmichael.

The film explores today's Christian music, taken from the classics to the contemporary by committed artists to share their faith in Christ.

Filmed in the Colorado Rockies, it features performances and comments by The Archers, The Continental Singers, Johnny Hall, The Imperials, Jeremiah People, Randy Matthews, Donny Monk, Jamie Owens, Gloria Roe and Honeytree.

Good Shepherd Lutheran

Sunday will be observed as "Strength for Mission" Sunday at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Claremont.

The 11 a.m. service will focus on the $25 million appeal in the more than 6,000 Lutheran Church of America congregations to respond over the normal giving to expand the outreach program at home and in mission fields overseas.

The annual church picnic begins Sunday at 12:30 p.m. at Larkin Park in Claremont. There will be a baseball game between the fathers and sons.

Claremont United Methodist

Christian Education Sunday will be observed at Claremont United Methodist Church during the 9:05 and 11:05 worship services Sunday morning.

Mike Parker, director of youth and educational ministries, will preside and Dr. G. Merrill Lenox, interim senior minister, will preach the sermon. In recognition of Christian Education Sunday, the importance of the church school will be described.

Dr. Paul Schurman, professor of counseling at the School of Theology at Claremont, at 10:10 a.m. will begin a series of three discussion groups on the dynamics of the family and how to deal with intergenerational stress.

St. Paul's Lutheran

Sunday will be Rally Day at St. Paul's Lutheran Sunday school, Pomona.

At the 8 and 10:45 a.m. worship services, the Sunday school teachers will be commissioned and various classes will sing praises of thanksgiving. Children in the primary grades will sing at the service under the direction of Mrs. Joyce Nagel. Children in grades 5 to 8 will sing at the other service under the direction of Tim Vahle, Sunday school superintendent.

Parents are invited to attend Sunday school with their children in the church at 9:30 a.m. At that time, the classes will be promoted, a film will be shown called, "The Family That Prayed."

Mt. Calvary Missionary

The Greater Mt. Calvary Missionary Baptist Church in Claremont will celebrate their second annual Brotherhood Day Sunday at 4:15 p.m.

The Rev. D. Hurst, pastor of Antioch Baptist Church, will deliver the annual message.

Pastor Neal Sherman will speak on the Brotherhood Day theme.

United Church of Christ

Dr. Charles C. Gill's windows on "Christ in Gethsemane" and "Christ on the Cross" are being displayed in the Louise Roberts Room of the Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational.

Dr. John C. Bennett, a theologian and social ethicist, will speak at 9 a.m. Sunday on "How Is the Bible Authoritative?" This will be the third session on "What Are the Christian Sources of Authority Today?" before the church's Adult Study Group.

Anne Parrott will be the leader for the third in the series on "The Reality of the Parent in Our Lives." Her subject will be "The Parent We Carry With Us." Josephine Smith is the leader in this series.

Valley Christian Center

The Rev. Ellwyn Yarrington, minister of visitation at Open Bible Church in Tujunga, will speak at 7:30 p.m. services Sept. 30 at Valley Christian Center, San Dimas.

Mr. Yarrington served as pastor in Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin before coming to California as pastor at Sunland.

He was squadron chaplain in Civil Air Patrol in Wisconsin and California for 10 years.

La Verne First Brethren

The La Verne First Brethren Church will show the third episode of the 10-part film series, "How Should We Then Live?" Sunday at 7 p.m.

The episode, "The Renaisaance," salutes the artistic accomplishments of the Renaissance man.

Emmanuel Baptist Church

The Metters Family singers will present a gospel music program Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Emmanuel Baptist Church in San Dimas.

The Pomona group is directed by Bobby Metters. Greg Autry, of Oral Roberts University, will appear with the singers.

Claremont First Baptist

The First Baptist Church of Claremont will have an all-church box social Sunday at 1:15 p.m. in Larkin Park across from the church.

There will be judging of the decorated lunch boxes and prizes given to the winners. Each box lunch will be numbered as it is received. A different number will be given the person bringing it so each person shall receive a different lunch. Entertainment and games will be provided.

Claremont Presbyterian

An adult forum, "Focus on the Future — Directions for Mission," will be presented Sunday at 9:30 a.m. at the Claremont Presbyterian Church.

This will be directed by the Rev. and Mrs. Eugene Huff in the Fellowship Hall.

Dr. Butrus Abd-al-Malik, professor at Cal State Los Angeles, will lead an introductor Bible course, "Book For All Reasons," today at 9 a.m.

Holy Missionary Baptist

The "Gospel Doves" of Pomona will present a musical program today at 8 p.m. at the Holy Missionary Baptist Church, Pomona.

The service will also feature the Rev. G. W. Easy of Mississippi, singer and preacher, and the Rev. Jimmy Jones, former lead singer with the "Mighty Clouds of Joy."

Grace Baptist Church

Dr. Donald Launstein, president of Southwestern Baptist Bible College in Phoenix, will speak at the 8:15 and 11 a.m. services Sunday, at Grace Baptist Church in Glendora.

There will be an all-church work day today, with members and friends invited to bring their hammers, paint brushes, and shovels. They will meet at the church for breakfast at 7 a.m.

Council conference deals with death

The Pomona Valley Council of Churches will sponsor a mini-conference Wednesday starting at noon, at the Westmont United Methodist Church, Pomona.

It will deal with three aspects of death matters: the natural death act; the importance of wills; and pre-planning for funeral arrangements.

Leaders are Dr. Felix Manley, who will discuss the importance of doing early planning on funeral arrangements so careful decisions may be made; Dr. John Flucke, who will discuss ramifications of the Natural Death Act which is now law in California; and Steve Zetterberg, a Claremont attorney, who will give information on wills and how they may be done simply.

The Westmont Church conducts a senior citizens nutrition program where the elderly may receive a complete meal based on ability to pay. These senior citizens will be in attendance at this session.

Those attending the seminar will eat the same meal as the senior citizens. They will be paying $1.50 for the meal plus 50 cents for registration. Reservations may be made by calling the Pomona Valley Council of Churches' office, 622-3806.

Alta Loma Bible school offers courses for fall

On Thursday's at the same time, starting Sept. 29, "The Only Way to Live" will be taught by the Rev. Donald Dannenberg, pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church of Perris. The course covers the Book of Ephesians.

Also on Thursday evenings, a course on "Foundation Truths" covering the basic doctrines of the Christian faith will be taught by Jim Giebeler, board chairman of Alta Loma School of the Bible and general manager of Arrowhead Machine and Mfg. Co. in San Bernardino. Classes will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. for 12 weeks.

A weekend seminar training the lay or pastoral counselor will also be held for one unit of credit on Sept. 29, 30 and Oct. 1. Thursday and Friday classes are from 7 to 9:30 p.m. and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The seminar will deal with the Christian counselor's approach in such areas as guilt, healing for the whole man, the homosexual, depression (it's causes and cures), release from the occult and interpersonal relationships. This will be taught by the Rev. Harold Dewberry, founder and director of Teen Challenge in Sydney, Australia, pastor and youth director in the Assemblies of God and chaplain of the Order of St. Luke the Physician.

All classes are open to the community. The registration fee is $5 per course, plus an offering of $1 for each class hour attended. A two unit course meets 24 hours and a one unit course meets 12 hours.

Persons wanting to enroll or receive more information may call 987-1275 or 987-4285. Registrations will also be taken at the initial class meetings. King of Glory Lutheran Church is located at 9101 19th St., Alta Loma.

OPEN HOUSE POSTERS — Children of Christ the King Lutheran Church, Walnut, prepare posters announcing a church open house Sunday through Wednesday. From left to right, the youngsters are Lisa Schuricht, 9; Cassie Lewis, 9; Phillip Grothe, 7; Tiffany Richmond, 9; Tim Richmond, 12, and Nathan Grothe, 8. Services will be held nightly at 7:30.

World hunger study in La Verne

The United Methodist Church of La Verne will sponsor a study on "World Hunger" beginning Sunday and continuing on Oct. 2 and 9. Services will be from 6:30 to 8 p.m. each Sunday. To keynote the study, Dr. Dean Freudenberger, co-author of "Christian Responsibility in a Hungry World," will speak at the 11 a.m. worship service on Sunday.

One of the United Methodist Church's primary consultants on the issue of world hunger, he is a former missionary agronomist and presently a professor at the School of Theology in Claremont.

The study leader for the 6:30 p.m. session Sunday will be Dr. Ignacio Castuera, a member of the General Board of Global Ministries. He has traveled in Latin America, Europe, Japan and the U.S. Last year, he was a theological reflector for the National Hunger Consultation in Oklahoma City. Since 1971 he has been an adjunct professor at the School of Theology in Claremont.

The public is invited to participate in this study.

Alta Loma

The Alta Loma School of the Bible, a Bible school for laymen which meets at King of Glory Lutheran Church in Alta Loma, will begin its fall quarter on Tuesday.

Four courses are offered at the evening school. "The Bible School seeks to provide a training ground for all God's servants in the study of Scripture and the Gospel of Christ," said the Rev. Tom Koske, dean of the school.

The first class meeting on Tuesday and 11 subsequent Tuesdays, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., will cover studies in the Gospel of Luke and is entitled, "Behold the Man." The course will be taught by Reverand Koske.

Christian Schools position filled

Dick Adams has been appointed assistant superintendent of Western Christian Schools in Glendora, Supt. J. Mark Landrey said today.

The former director of youth services at Azusa Pacific College, Adams has spent 12 years in the youth ministry of Southern California churches. He is currently the chairman of the Southern California Youth Workers Fellowship.

In his new position he will coordinate both church relations and public relations programs, speak at camps and in local churches on behalf of the school, assist in fund raising projects, and open new opportunities for travel-study abroad programs.

"In the last few years I have become enthusiastic about secondary Christian education, and believe there is a real place for schools like Western Christian that provide not only basic information, but give real guidance for the total person," Adams said.

Adams holds a B.S. degree in Christian Ministries from Pacific Christian College, a B.A. in psychology from Azusa Pacific College, and has done graduate work at Pepperdine University and Fuller Seminary. Among his special interests are travel, photography, skiing and handicrafts. Dick and his wife, Robin, are residents of Glendora.

Walnut church has open house

"Born Again" is the theme selected for a four-day open house service at Christ the King Lutheran Church, Walnut, at 7:30 p.m. Sunday through Wednesday.

Oswald Waech, Assistant to the district president of the Lutheran Church, and a leader in Evangelism for more than 30 years, will speak Sunday on "Born Again."

The Youth Choir of Christ Lutheran Church of West Covina will present the "New Covenant" in words and music Monday.

On Tuesday, the Rev. Bill Ruth, mission pastor, Ontario, will talk on "Christian Fellowship."

The Rev. Ronald J. Kudick, pastor, St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Claremont, will conclude the open house Wednesday speaking on the "The Grace of God."

The congregation during the open house services will hold an all-night prayer vigil tonight.

In addition, the church's committees are involved with organizing a pep rally Thursday.

GOSPEL SINGERS — The "Southern Echoes" of Los Angeles will present a musical program Sunday at 3:30 p.m. at the Metropolitan Baptist Church, Pomona. The group includes Steve Coleman, Velma Coleman, Dianah Gale Jackson, Susie Mae Gatewood, John Franklin, Lillie Franklin, Diana Kimbrough and Richard Ross.

Choralaires rehearsing in Upland for season

The "Menno Choralaires," an interdenominational group of men presenting gospel concerts in Southern California and Arizona, is now meeting at the Mt. View Free Methodist Church in Upland each Thursday at 7:30 p.m. for rehearsals in preparation for the 11th concert season.

Concerts are presented for churches, civic groups and conferences the first and third Sunday nights of each month. These feature the Christian message in harmony and in chalk artistry and black light by Irvin Brunk.

Other features are brass duets by Dale McEachron on the trumpet and Robert Lehman on trombone.

Louise Fossum is the piano accompianist. Walter Goehring is director. Persons wanting more information regarding the "Menno Choralaires" may contact Goehring at 987-5117.

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Sunday, Sept. 25, 1977
Your Birthday, Sept. 25, 1977

Don't be intimidated by enterprises this coming year that are a bit larger than you're used to handling. You have what it takes to measure up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Ambitions are apt to be unfulfilled today, not because they are beyond your reach, but you will rationalize reasons for delay. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) As a bargain hunter you leave a lot to be desired today. Take care or someone may unload their white elephant on you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may be unsure of yourself today because your goals aren't clearly defined. Hazy targets blur your marksmanship.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today, when discussing a mutual friend who isn't present, say nothing about this person that isn't factual.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be sure anyone doing work for you today estimates all the costs accurately, then double-check just to be safe.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is opportunity about you today, but you must be keenly perceptive to discern it. Don't let the chance for something good go by.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Our willingness to do things for others today could possibly be for the wrong reasons. To expect something in return isn't the noblest motivation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A friend who talks much, but in essence says little, could get you all enthused today regarding a venture of small promises.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In matters where you hope to gain materially today, don't use methods or tactics that aren't up to your usually high standards.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Unless your plans are well-conceived today your energies will be misdirected. Reason things out, then act — not vice versa.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Business or commecial dealings in general could be exceptionally tricky for you today. Be wary where money is involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A forceful associate could coerce you to make commitments today that oppose your better judgment. Be strong enough to say "No."

Pompey circus

Pompey the Great, a Roman general, was said to have sponsored five days of circus games in 55 B.C. that ended with the deaths of 500 lions and 20 elephants at the hands of gladiators.

90 to participate in heart program

Some 90 valley administrators will participate in a preventative heart disease program Thursday at Xerox Electro-Optical Systems, 600 E. Bonita Ave., Pomona, put on by Heart Scan, Inc., Santa Cruz.

Heart Scan public relations director Gerhard Lang said participating administrators, for a fee of $27 each, will be given 20-minute heart tests by nurses, paramedics and technicians.

Later, confidential reports on test findings will be mailed out, Lang said.

While the heart-testing program is not new in California, this is the first time it has been conducted in the valley, Lang said. The day-long program Thursday may result in additional programs which would be opened to the general public, he added.

'Musical Happening' at Glendora church

The "Musical Happening" will be presented by the Glenkirk College Choir Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at Glenkirk Presbyterian Church, Glendora.

The performance will be directed by Ben Bollinger, director of music at Glenkirk and director of choral music at Citrus College, Azusa.

Rev. Carl Hamilton, assistant pastor, said "Musical Happening" will serve as a kick-off for a monthly series of Sunday evening programs open to the public.

Soloists include Janice Bollinger, soprano; John Cavozos, tenor; Joanne Gilbreath, alto; Renee Long, soprano; and Joseph Toscanno, baritone.

The 20 singers, selected from the Glenkirk and Citrus College choirs, will be accompanied by David Osborne, organist-arranger, and his combo.

Other series programs include: Oct. 16, Joyce Landorf, pianist, vocalist, writer and speaker; The Covenant Players, drama; Dec. 24, Christmas Eve candlelight service with the Sanctuary Choir; Jan. 29, Col. Heath Bottomly, lecture; Feb. 26 to 28, the Rev. Lane Adams, three-part lecture accompanied by the Sanctuary Choir; March 28, Maundy Thursday Communion service with choir; April 23, children's musical; May 21, Dr. Ralph Byron, lecture; and June 18, musical concert with Sanctuary Choir.

Pomonan pinned between two cars

A 24-year-old Pomona man suffered minor leg injuries when he was pinned between two cars as he was assisting a young woman start her auto in an alley in the 700 block of N. East End Avenue Thursday night, police reported.

The victim, Nolan D. Bailey, was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was released after treatment. Police reported he had succeeded in starting the car and was standing between it and his when the other auto lurched forward, striking him.

Meanwhile, a young Pomona woman remained in good condition at the hospital where she was being treated for injuries suffered Wednesday afternoon in the collision of her motorcycle and a car at San Antonio Avenue and Third Street in Pomona.

The victim, Valli L. Moore, 20, collided with the car when the driver turned left in front of her, police reported.

Wood shiefd

The earliest defensive implement was probably a wooden shield.

GURNEY GAINER

Montclair's Kent Gurney (31) tries to elude the grasp of Ontario's Steve Perez during the Jaguars' 25-6 win over the Cavs Friday night at Chaffey High. Gurney scored Montclair's only touchdown but was shaken up on a play and missed the second half.

Spartans nipped

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Monrovia High downed its second consecutive San Antonio League opponent Friday night as Damien's Mike Sullivan just missed a 45-yard field goal attempt as the final seconds ticked off the clock.

Monrovia behind the running of Dennis Brown and Theron Jones wiped out a 14-0 halftime deficit on the Spartans' home turf and defeated Damien 22-21 as Sullivan missed two field goals in the final three minutes.

Last week, Monrovia blanked Pomona, 28-0 as Brown and Jones combined for 169 yards.

The two speedsters exploded for 188 yards in the second half after being held to 57 yards by the Damien defense in the opening half.

Brown broke loose for runs of 44 and 62 yards to put points on the scoreboard for Monrovia. He finished the night with 160 yards. He scampered for 122 yards in the second half of an exciting, nail-biting contest that kept the capacity crowd nailed to their seats.

Damien, behind the accurate passing of Dan Marconi, vaulted out to a 14-0 lead with 2:22 left in the opening half. Monrovia's offense had their hands on the ball for only 15 plays in the first 22 minutes of action.

Marconi was 11 for 13 for 99 yards as he connected with John Rayburn on an 18-yard TD pass and a 4-yard pass to Joe Vigil with 6:29 left in the second quarter. Marconi ended the evening with 182 yards as he connected on 21 of 28 pass attempts.

Damien pushed the Wildcats defense around for big gains as Doug Paul and Steve Campbell scampered through mammoth holes to aid Marconi's passes.

Monrovia's bid to put a score on the board in the first half was derailed as Tony Viotta intercepted a Jules Bagneris pass in the Spartans' end zone.

But the drive of 70 yards by the Wildcats in the final 2:22 showed that Monrovia could move the ball against the tough Damien defense.

Monrovia was held to 98 yards in first half action.

The Wildcats opened the second half with a 11-play march that was capped by a two-yard TD run by Jones. With 7:32 left in the quarter, Brown raced 44 yards as he broke several tackles in the center of the field before racing down the sideline for the TD. Brown's TD knotted the contest at 14-14.

Marconi marched the Spartans downed the field on the strength of his arm for seven points and a 21-14 lead.

However, Brown outran the entire Damien defense early in the fourth quarter as he broke all kinds of tackles and raced 62 yards. A short pass from Bagneris to Ed Kidd put the Wildcats ahead at 22-21.

With 2:22 remaining Sullivan tried a 35-yard field goal attempt. But the ball landed short of the goal posts.

And with seconds left on the clock he booted a 45-yarder which looked good from the stands. The Damien fans held their breaths as they waited for the referee signal. It just missed as it sailed off to the right of the goal posts and Monrovia went home to celebrate a victory.

Damien (1-1) will meet Pomona in a 7:30 p.m. contest Friday at MSAC to open San Antonio League action.

Jags run past Montclair

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Ontario High's two-cylinder running machine raced past Montclair, 25-6, Friday night at Chaffey High.

Jaguar running backs Tommy Jefferson and Albert Newman made it clear they were too much for the Montclair defense beginning with the second play from scrimmage, when Jefferson blew through a big hole off left tackle and rambled 72 yards for his first of three touchdowns.

The 6-foot-3, 210-pound junior, who rushed for 203 yards last week against Mountain View, wound up with 208 yards on 28 carries against the Cavaliers.

His partner in speed, the explosive and elusive Newman, added 89 yards on 15 rushes and 58 yards on three receptions, including a 28-yard touchdown on a screen pass from quarterback Sonny Medina.

That score and Jose Perez's extra-point kick made it 13-0 less than nine minutes into the game and first-year Ontario coach Terry Roche was well on the way to his second win in as many tries.

There were few bright spots for Rich Bare's Cavaliers, who dropped their second straight game to a Hacienda League foe. Among other Montclair woes, star offensive and defensive back Kent Gurney, after scoring the only Cav touchdown on a three-yard run, was shaken up in the second quarter and sat out the second half.

But Gurney's replacement in the offensive backfield, sophomore Scott Avery, turned out to be Montclair's only real offensive weapon.

The hard-running 10th grader carried 20 times for 91 yards. But the Cavs were ineffective through the air, where Steve Jetton completed just four of 20 passes for 28 yards andas intercepted twice. Each team lost two fumbles.

Medina played a fine game at quarterback for the Jags, though his main job was handing off to Jefferson and Medina. He completed six of nine aerials for 89 yards, mostly on screen passes.

Montclair will host Upland Friday in the San Antonio League opener for both teams while Ontario will entertain Hacienda League opponent San Dimas at Chaffey High.

Baker's Belief nabs 2nd win

Baker's Belief, son of Fleet Mel, became the first two-time winner this season at Pomona when he captured Friday's $19,180 Beau Brummel Stakes for two-year-old colts before a crowd of 10,999 at the L.A. County Fair.

Baker's Belief had previously won here last Saturday by six lengths in allowance company. With the $11,305 earned in the Beau Brummel, Baker's Belief increased his earnings to $32,490 with four wins in nine career starts.

Trained by A.B. Richmond, Baker's Belief returned $6.40, $4 and $3 for his six-length score under jockey Wayne Harris.

Handicap horses meet this afternoon in the $25,000 added C.B. Afflebaugh Memorial. Quite a Day, an upset winner in last weekend's Governor's Cup, will face Alphy Boy and King Al in the eight-horse field.

SAV outlasts Cowboys, 26-7

By CHARLES BENTLEY
PB Correspondent

For three quarters Chino High stayed within striking distance of highly rated Santa Ana Valley. But the Cowboy effort proved to be fruitless as the Falcons struck twice in the final period to outclass Chino, 26-7.

It was the Cowboys' goal line defense that kept the Falcons off the board in the first period. After going to the Chino one-yard line with relative ease, the Falcons could not put the ball in the end zone as the Cowboy s stood tough and dropped Valley quarterback Andy Paige on fourth and one for no gain.

But the Cowboys were unable to stop Falcon back Robert Powell as he pushed Valley's first score over from the one with 4:36 remaining in the second period.

Powell would run for 103 yards on 19 carries before being sidelined early in the fourth quarter.

Falcon safety James Swift set up the next Valley score as he returned an interception from the Chino 45 to the nine yard line. Paige then sneaked around end to make the score Santa Ana Valley 12, Chino 0 at the half.

Two more outstanding defensive plays kept the Falcons off the board in the third quarter, the first coming on a fumble recovery on the Chino 35-yard line by defensive lineman John Surina. Surina's recovery killed the Falcons' initial drive in the second half, and took a lot out of Valley's momentum.

The second came when Cowboy Tim McGrath picked off a Falcon pass at the Valley 42 yard line, giving Chino's offense their best field position of the night.

But Chino was unable to do anything with the ball, which saw the Cowboys' drive die at the 25 yard line. From there, the Falcons drove 65 yards in only four plays, with Powell pushing it over from the one on the first play in the fourth quarter.

From there it was all downhill until with 2:02 left in the game, Chino back Mike Bertschinger scored from the 13 yard line for the Cowboys' only score of the night.

Chino's defense was unable to stop the Falcons either through the air or on the ground, as Santa Ana Valley passed for 107 yards on 6 competions, and rushed for 214 yards on 44 carries.

Meanwhile, the Cowboys were only able to rush for 90 yards on 30 carries, and passed for 74 yards on 4 completions.

Ganesha impressive again

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

SANTA ANA — Ganesha High completely dominated host Saddleback here Friday night at the Santa Ana Bowl but the final 19-13 victory margin certainly doesn't indicate it.

The Giants were awesome on defense until the final 2:43 of the game when the Roadrunners (0-1-1) scored both of their touchdowns on two long bombs to make the final seconds just a little uncomfortable on the Ganesha bench.

Ganesha enjoyed a safe 19-0 lead and it should have been higher considering the way the Pomonans controlled the action on the field but five lost fumbles kept Saddleback in the game.

Until the final two big plays, Saddleback had managed only a minus yard on the ground and 16 yards through the air on one completed pass.

But the Roadrunners scored on a 45-yard run by Keith Lane with 2:43 on the clock and a 71-yard pass from reserve quarterback Nate Bradley to Gary Stenlund with only 19 seconds left. Both scores came against the Ganesha reserves.

In contract to Saddleback, Ganesha rolled up 193 yards on the ground and 56 through the air for 249 total yards compared to Saddleback's 131.

A big factor in Ganesha's win was field goal kicker Ruben Raya, who booted a 33-yarder in the first quarter for the only score in the opening half and added a 44-yarder in the fourth period.

The Giants got touchdowns from Floyd Williams on an one-yard run in the third period and a six-yard gallop by quarterback Ron Hughes in the fourth.

Bennie Gooden led the Ganesha running attack with 71 yards on 19 carries while Williams added 60 on 15. Hughes gained a net of 16 on eight tries and James Murdock 46 on two.

Hughes completed five of 12 passes.

On defense, Charles Lundstrom, Kevin Jones and Clayborne Ferguson all recovered Saddleback fumbles while Tony Chambers intercepted a pass.

J. W. Melton, Mike Kingston, Craig Parm and George Peters seemed to be with the Saddleback defense all night.

Coach Garry Norvell is delighted to have his Giants entering San Antonio League play next week against Claremont with a perfect 2-0 record in pre-league action.

"That's a lot better than it has been in the past," the veteran Ganesha coach said. "Our guys are getting even for getting kicked in the past. We have some tough kids and our record is a product of a lot of hard work."

Concerning the fumbles which spoiled the offensive effort, Norvell said, "We run a high-risk offense in the Veer so fumbles will happen."

Nicklaus misses cut

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Mike Hill, grimly bidding to snap out of the worst slump in his career, fired a five-under-par 65 Friday to take a one-stroke second-round lead over defending champion Ben Crenshaw in the $150,000 Ohio Kings Island Open.

But the shocking development of the day came when Jack Nicklaus failed to qualify, struggling to rounds of 73 and 72. It was the third time in a year Nicklaus failed to qualify after going six years without being cut.

"I couldn't putt," said Nicklaus, who need to finish at least second to reach $300,000 in earnings for the third time in his career. It was his final tour appearance of 1977.

Hill, who has vowed tc his family he will quit if he doesn't average $25,000 a year in 197778, overtook first round coleaders Tom Kite and Bill Calfee, who trailed by two strokes.

Highlanders bounce back

By RAY NELSON
PB Correspondent

If you run into Upland High football coach Bob Holycross this week, he might tell you how unpredictable high school football can be from week to week.

His team, aided by five Alta Loma fumbles and one interception, dealt the Braves a 24-0 whitewashing.

Upland's first win of the season came one week after West Covina shut them out, 44-0.

Despite losing the first-half statistical battle, the Highlanders went into the locker room at intermission boasting a 7-0 advantage which occurred on the Braves' second possession of the contest.

Following runs by Jeff Morris and Stuart Charleston, Alta Loma had the ball on its own nine-yard line, third and one. But a delay-of-game penalty moved the ball back to the four, setting the stage for the only score Upland needed for victory.

Brave quarterback Gordon Reed faded back to pass, was hit by blitzing linebackers, the ball was jarred loose and Mark Zinda fell on it in the end zone for a TD.

Meanwhile, Alta Loma was winning the statistical battle, recording seven first-half first downs to Upland's one.

It was also in the first 24 minutes that Stuart Charleston, who was the leading Alta Loma ground gainer, rushed for 63 of his 64 yards.

The Highlanders padded their lead with 6:21 left in the third quarter after recovering a Reed fumble on the Alta Loma 25. Five plays later, placekicker Jon Kotez booted a 22-yard field goal for a 10-0 Highlander advantage.

Upland continued to increase its score when, on its third offensive play of the final period, Chris Molinar broke a tackle at the line of scrimmage, turned the corner, and dove into the end zone for an 18-yard score climaxing a 29-yard drive.

The Highlanders received their final seven points when Molinar picked off an errant Reed pass and returned it 60 yards for the final margin.

Alta Loma, who scored a last minute opening victory last week against Montclair, saw its record fall to 1-1.

Upland	7	0	3	14—24

Upland — Zinda recovered fumble in end zone (Kotez kick).
Upland — E.G. Kotez 22.
Upland — Molinar 18 run (Kotez kick).
Upland — Molinar 60 interception return.

Royals clinch flag vs. Halos

ANAHEIM (AP) — Al Cowens drove in five runs with three consecutive doubles and Dennis Leonard tossed a five-hitter Friday night as Kansas City clinched the American League West Division title with a 7-3 victory over California.

The victory was Kansas City's 21st in the last 22 games and 32nd in 36 contests.

Leonard, 19-11, struck out 13 and walked four in becoming the American League's second 19-game winner. California's Nolan Ryan is the other.

Cowens had a two-run double in the first inning, an RBI double in the third and another two-run double in the fourth. John Mayberry's two-run homer in the third scored the decisive runs.

In clinching a second consecutive division title, the Royals won 68 games and lost 24 — a .739 percentage — beginning on June 17.

Leonard allowed only a third-inning single to Thad Bosley until California put together two more hits and a walk to end his shutout bid in the seventh.

Blyleven out for season

OAKLAND (AP) —The Texas Rangers announced Friday that Bert Blyleven, who pitched a no-hitter against California Thursday night, will not take the mound again this season.

Blyleven, who hadn't pitched since Sept. 6, aggravated a groin pull in the eighth inning of the no-hitter but finished the game anyway. He wound up the season with a 14-12 record and a 2.72 ERA.

Fontana foils Garey with late touchdown

By MARK GRIP
PB Correspondent

FONTANA — Fontana High quarterback Del Cannady scored on a one-yard sneak with 53 seconds left in the game to boost the hosts to a 14-6 win over Garey Friday night.

Garey trailed in the contest 7-6 when Fontana took possession with 7:17 to play and drove to the one-half yard line when Cannady punched over on third down. Greg Wheatley added his second extra point of the night for a 14-6 advantage.

Garey had possession on the Steeler 37 with 10 seconds to play. Quarterback Anthony Clinton completed a 29-yard pass to James Moore as time aparently ran out.

However, A 15-yard penalty for roughing the passer was assessed to Fontana giving the Vikings one last chance.

Clinton could not find a receiver and was forced to run and gained only nine yards as the game ended.

Garey drew first blood in the second quarter when Kirby Lofton picked off a Cannady pass at midfield and raced 50 yards up the sideline untouched. Garey's attempt to run for two points failed.

Fontana's first score came on a 24-yard TD romp by fullback Tom Coon with Wheatley booting the PAT.

Garey (1-1) will open San Antonio League play next when it visits Chino in a 7:30 p.m. battle.

Penalties kill 'Cats

By BRENT SHYER
PB Correspondent

Even though the Bonita High Bearcats had a total yardage figure of 244 to the Azusa Aztecs' 171, the 'Cats were penalized 138 yards which contributed to their 20-14 loss Friday night at Citrus College.

The defeat was Bonita's second straight in non-league play.

Gordon Houston, who doubles as Azusa's quarterback and kicker, booted field goals in the third and fourth quarters to give the Aztecs the winning margin.

Houston kicked a 33-yarder in the third frame and a 26-yarder in the final quarter. He also ran for 46 of his team's 157 yards.

With 4:19 to play in the third quarter, Bonita scored on Ray Banker's 17-yard burst up-the-middle to close the gap to 17-14.

But the Bearcats gave the game away when they fumbled on their own 12 and Azusa's Tracy Sells recovered. The Aztecs field goal four plays later was the capper.

Bonita's first points of the season came in the second quarter on Bob Clark's run around right end. Clark, who was the leading ground-gainer in the game with 83 yards, kicked the first of his two extra points.

Bud Click paced the Aztecs rushing attack with 82 yards, including a 47-yard touchdown scamper.

Neither team established a passing game, as Houston went two for eight for 14 yards, and Bonita QB Cory Miller was just three for six for 26 yards and one interception.

Azusa (1-1), a Montview League entry, capitalized on two Bonita penalties to score its second TD on an 11-yard run by Mike Martinez.

Astros nip Dodgers

HOUSTON (AP) — Jose Cruz' sacrifice fly scored Enos Cabell from third base with the winning run in the 12th inning as the Houston Astros edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 Friday night.

Cabell led off the inning with a double off losing pitcher Charlie Hough, 5-12. After Cesar Cedeno grounded out, Cabell moved to third on catcher Steve Yeager's passed ball before coming home on Cruz' fly ball to left field.

Ken Forsch, the fourth Astro pitcher, hurled one inning to pick up his fifth victory against eight losses this season.

Lee Lacy's first inning solo homer, his sixth blast of the season, staked the Dodgers to a 1-0 lead against Houstoin starter Mark Lemongello.

The Astros tied it in the bottom half of the inning on walks to Cabell and Cruz, a single by Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson's sacrifice fly to center.

Lacy's fifth-inning RBI-single and Jerry Grote's run-scoring single in the sixth gave the Dodgers a 3-1 advantage before the Astros battled back on Watson's seventh-inning sacrifice fly and Cedeno's eighth-inning RBI-single to tie the score 3-3.

Watson's pair of sacrifice flys gave him 103 RBIs for the season, a personal high.

Mustangs roll

By KEITH LAIR
PB Correspondent

Third-ranked Walnut High's running attack proved too much for Rowland High's defense Friday night, as the Mustangs rolled to a 38-13 victory.

The Mustangs clinched the game late in the second quarter, when they mounted a 24-0 lead.

Key blocks by Ray Dodson and Mike Flaherty led the Mustangs to their first score, a 56-yard gallop by Tony Rossi. Walnuts second score was set up on a 32-yard punt by Robbie Abbott that put the ball on the Raider 34. A personal foul on fourth down by Rowland moved the ball to the Raider 13-yard line. Four plays later, Ken Wilson plunged across the goal line for the score.

Rossi added another tally in the second quarter, when he leaped over would-be-tacklers to score from 10 yards out. Walnut again came back with 11 seconds left in the half, when Frank Miller booted a 30-yard field goal to put the Mustangs up, 24-0.

Walnuts defense proved themselves unstoppable in the first half, as they held the Raiders to minus two yards rushing and 35 passing yards. The Mustangs did not allow Rowland to get a first down until the middle of the second quarter.

Walnut's fourth touchdown of the evening was set up on a partially blocked punt by Lindsey O'Neil, who managed to slip into the Raider backfield. Seven plays later, the Mustangs found themselves in the end zone on a 19 yard pass from quarterback Pat Flaherty to Mike Flaherty.

Rowland got on the scoreboard two seconds into the fourth quarter, on a quarterback sneak by Mike Hohensee. Rowland launched a successful passing attack, as Hohensee hit Kelly Chapman and Brian Deters for first down yardage.

Walnut's final score came on the kickoff following the Raider score. Dave Woronkiewicz took the ball on his own 25 yard line, and raced into the end zone unscathed by his opponents.

The Raiders second score came on an end screen pass to Chapman. Mustang

Lutheran loses

La Verne Lutheran's girls' volleyball team saw its record drop to 0-3 Wednesday with an 11-15, 7-15 loss at home to Maranatha.

Lutheran lost to Pasadena Poly, 15-5, 2-15, 10-15, Tuesday.

The La Verne school will play in the Western Christian Tournament in Glendora this weekend.

Lugo moves up to varsity

Don Lugo High will play its first varsity football game and Webb will make its seasonal debut this afternoon and Claremont will face Sierra League foe Glendora tonight to highlight a five-game slate of prep games for local football squads today.

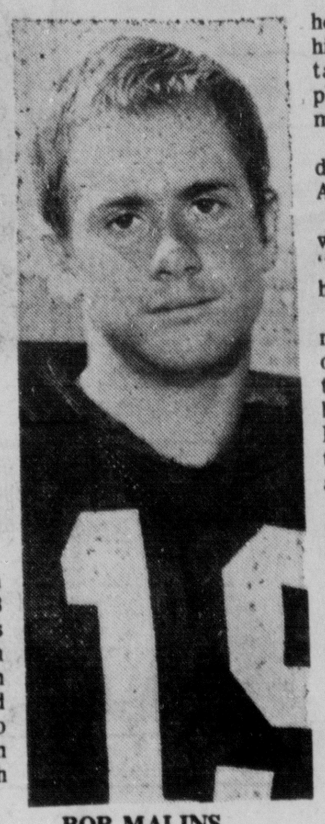
John Monger and his crew of sophomores and freshmen will make their varsity debut at Orange High at 2 p.m., with Orange Lutheran their opponent.

Also at 2 p.m., Mike Blair will make his first appearance as head coach of Webb's Gauls at Big Bear.

Claremont and Glendora will get together for an 8 p.m. kickoff at Citrus College while Lutheran hosts Serrano at Damien High at 7:30 p.m. and Calvary Baptist travels to Chapman College for an eight-man game with Melodyland at 8 o'clock.

"We might be in over our heads against Orange Lutheran," said Monger, whose teams have a 22-game win streak — 21 in freshman competition and last week's victory over Charter Oak's sophomore team.

"Orange Lutheran is the favorite in the Arrowhead League this year," Monger continued. "They have a very confident coach and a very confident team." Orange Lutheran beat Bell-Jeff last week, 20-19.



BOB MALINS . . .
Don Lugo QB

Lutheran coach Robert Dowding has 18 returning starters from last year's 3-6 team. Among them are quarterback Kurt Rammelsberg, who passed for over 1,000 yards, and his favorite target, Dwayne McLoud. Tailback Marc Neben averaged 99 yards per game in 1976.

Monger counters with quarterback Bob Malins, fullback Manuel Villalobos and tailback Carlos Sanchez.

Claremont coach Esper Keiser will take on some old friends tonight at Citrus College. Glendora head coach Bryan Shaw, in his second year, and assistant Eddie Shaw both played football at Claremont in the '60s.

Keiser watched Glendora's 14-6 loss to Bishop Amat last week.

"Glendora could have won that game," he said, "but it got away. They have a very good team."

Glendora ripped Claremont, 40-12, last year. Four of the Tartans' six touchdowns were scored by Jeff Mowdy and Dan Reedy, both of whom are in the Glendora backfield again this season.

But off its first outing, a 20-0 triumph over Bonita, Claremont seems to be a much improved squad. The Wolfpack defense doesn't figure to surrender 40 points to anybody this year.

Blair's Webb debut figures to be a rough one. Big Bear thrashed San Jacinto last week, 34-7.

Webb not only has yet to play a game, but has not been able to find a scrimmage opponent. Because Webb is a boarding school, students start school later than at public schools and Blair's practices got started a couple of weeks late.

Lutheran was on the wrong end of a 56-6 decision against Valley Christian last week, but figures to fare better against Serrano, a new school (freshmen through juniors) located in Phelan (north of Wrightwood). Serrano won its debut at Mammoth, 18-7.

PB Staff Writer

Mt. San Antonio and Chaffey colleges will be on the road tonight to meet a couple football foes with deceiving records.

MSAC (1-1) will be playing vs. Glendale City College (0-1) at Glendale High. Chaffey (2-0) will be squaring off vs. MiraCosta (0-2) in a contest slated to be held at San Diegutio High in Solano Beach.

Citrus (0-2) has a bye this week. The MSAC and Chaffey games will start at 7:30 p.m.

The Mounties will be coming off a tough defeat at the hands of Pasadena City College and thus might be in for a bit of a letdown tonight vs. Glendale.

Glendale, despite its 0-1 record, is a good ball club. Santa Monica, one of the top-ranked teams in the state, beat Glendale 21-7 last week.

Glendale is coming off a fine 7-3 season last year and has some of that team's top talent returning. In particular, quarterback Bob Gagliano is back. Gagliano was the second-string signal caller last year but gave the Mounties fits in a 30-13 MSAC victory early last fall.

Glendale, a pass-oriented team, does have a dangerous runner in sophomore Ron Davenport, a transfer from San Diego State.

MSAC figures to start soph Jon Hattabaugh at QB, with Butch Stocking also expected to see action.

Mountie coach Mal Eaton will go with Stan Webster and Maxie Hamilton at the running back spots. Eaton indicated he would work on the running game this week in hopes of springing speedsters Webster and Hamilton loose, and the results of that plan will be unveiled tonight at Glendale.

Chaffey's foe, Mira Costa, also could be ready to explode tonight.

MiraCosta is coming off a disappointing 36-7 loss to Palomar. However, the Oceanside school is the defending Desert Conference champ and posted a 7-3 overall mark last year.

Inexperience has bothered MiraCosta so far this season, but it does have quarterback Joe Kish (6-2, 210 pounds) returning.

Chaffey coach Mike Merandi will start Brian Potter at quarterback, but Don Hargett and John Gable will also see action as the Panthers will be tuning up for their Mission Conference opener.

Running back Marcus Jennings will be shooting for his third straight 100-yard plus game rushing tonight. Gary Carr, Bob Pleasant and Mike Rees will also see action for Merandi's men.

People often call poisonous mushrooms "toadstools." The toadstool seems to have gotten its fanciful name because people once believed toads were poisonous and they used certain mushrooms as stools, making them poisonous, too.

Actually, there is no real difference between a toadstool and a mushroom. They are simply two names for one thing.

Many mushrooms are good to eat. But there are also many kinds that are very poisonous.

Popularly, people give the name mushroom to the kinds that can be eaten, and the name toadstool to those which are poisonous.

Botanists, however, do not use the name "toadstool." They simple speak of edible and poisonous mushrooms.

Never eat mushrooms that you find growing wild. Poisonous mushrooms look very much like good mushrooms.

Only a real expert can tell a mushroom that is delicious form one that is deadly poison'

Learning to read important to child

Fourth in a series
By JOHN DOUGLAS

"My conclusion is that you don't have to be smart to read," says Kenneth S. Goodman, a reading researcher at Wayne State University, Detroit.

"I think we have to ask seriously why, if children learn to talk without our help, they don't learn to read with our help."

Goodman goes on to say that children are born with the ability to learn language — written or spoken — and if they have more trouble with one form than the other, the fault probably lies in the way it's presented.

The problem, according to Goodman, is that written language is too often presented as a set of words to memorize, divorced from their use in communication. "If you start with children's experiences, in their own language, it is easier to begin reading instruction," he says. Such an emphasis provides an immediate payoff to the child, and makes the process of learning to read self-motivating. At home, for example, you might have a child tell what he did at school, then you write down part of what he says and help him read it.

If your child is a beginning reader, your active interest may make the difference between her early success or failure. Too many children give up on reading at the very beginning. Dull texts, inadequately trained teachers, and early frustration are frequently cited causes. Our first job then, as parents, is to see that our children appreciate the relevance of reading to their everyday lives and have frequent opportunities to exercise their newly acquired skills. See what your child's interests are and then show her how books can help her enjoy those interests even more. Take your child to the library regularly, even in the first grade, and help her discover that books provide an endless variety of things to do and stories to tell. It helps, too, if your child sees you reading.

We must also be on the lookout for certain signs of trouble. There is a fine line between challenge and frustration, and the easiest way to tell which your child is experiencing is to watch his interest level. Challenge stimulates interest; frustration kills it. If the child complains that he "just can't get that stuff," gently try to find out why — without jumping to conclusions. Many reading problems have nothing whatever to do with a child's ability: The child may simply need glasses. (All children should have their vision and hearing checked carefully by a specialist before entering school. Many pediatricians now include rough checks in their regular examination on children of all ages).

One of the most common problems among otherwise bright, eager students is that they simply don't know how to listen. Some research indicates that as many as one-quarter of beginning elementary school students have listening problems that produce reading difficulties. Their hearing is probably perfectly all right; they may even sit quietly "paying attention." But their listening is completely passive. (Spending hours in front of the television doesn't help.) They haven't learned how to respond to what is said, or to question it, and thus they can't follow instructions.

Almanac

By The Associated Press

Today is Saturday, September 24th, the 267th day of 1977. There are 98 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1955, President Dwight Eisenhower suffered a heart attack while on vacation in Denver, Colorado.

On this date:

In 1780, in the American Revolution, Benedict Arnold escaped to a British ship after attempting to betray the West Point fortifications on the Hudson River.

In 1869, there was panic on Wall Street after an attempt by financier Jay Gould and James Fisk to corner the gold market. The day became known as Black Friday.

In 1934, Babe Ruth made his farewell appearance as a regular player with the New York Yankees.

In 1941, in World War II, Allied governments pledged adherence to the Atlantic Charter.

In 1963, the U.S. Senate ratified a treaty with Britain and the Soviet Union limiting nuclear tests.

In 1971, Britain expelled 90 Soviets for espionage activities.

Ten years ago: Rescue craft were sweeping the rough waters of Lake Michigan in search of victims of a sudden squall that pounded hundreds of fishing boats and left at least six people dead.

Five years ago: A privately owned Sabre jet crashed into an ice cream parlor in Sacramento, California and killed 22 people.

Today's birthdays: Former Astronaut John Young is 47 years old. Actor Anthony Newley is 46.

Disneyland ride tickets are sought

The Cpl. David Allen Auxiliary No. 667, Jewish War Veterans, is seeking donations of unused Disneyland ride tickets, according to Shirley Powell of Montclair.

The tickets are used by the auxiliary to take handicapped youngsters to Disneyland, an activity that has been carried on for 16 years.

Cost per child is $8.50 and includes bus transportation, lunch, entrance fees, ride tickets, cold drinks and small souvenirs.

Mrs. Sidney F. Jelin, chairman of the event, said the number of children going to Disneyland has more than doubled since the program began. All donations of tickets are used to help defray project expenses. Tickets are saved during the year by auxiliary members, but there are never enough, said Mrs. Jelin.

Those with tickets to donate may send them to Mrs. Jelin at 9426 Washington Blvd., Culver City, 90230.

Military scholarship applications are available

College-bound high school students interested in military-sponsored college scholarships and Air Force ROTC should now contact Capt. Thomas J. Skypeck of Upland, area Air Force ROTC liaison officer, for information or scholarship application forms.

Capt. Skypeck, who represents the reserve officer training program in the valley, says interested students should start now to investigate the various programs which can lead to a commission in the Air Force.

The scholarship deadline is Dec. 15. Applicants must take the Scholastic Aptitute Test (SAT) in November. SAT registration may be accomplished through the student's high school.

Anyone interested may call Capt. Skypeck, 1430 Alta Ave., Upland, at 981-1600, 382-4804 or 787-7204 or write him for additional information.

King of chefs

Georges Escoffier, "the king of chefs and chef of kings," began his career at the age of 12 and retired in 1920 after 62 years of active service.

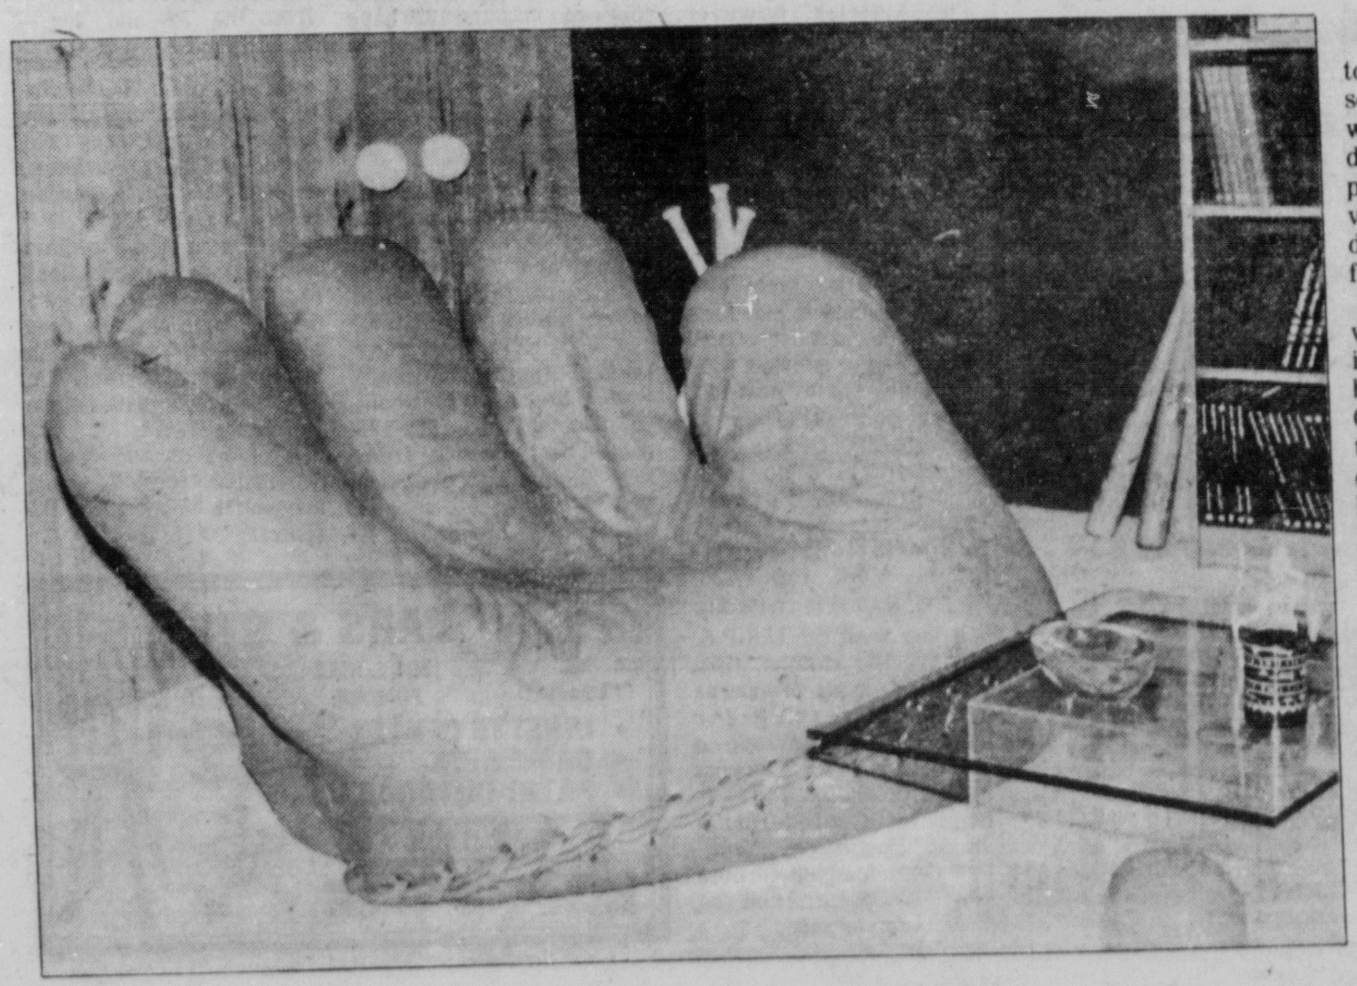
Pomona, California ■ Saturday, September 24, 1977

Artists in action at county fair . . .

One of the most entertaining and culturally rewarding offerings of the Los Angeles County Fair is the on-going program of displays and artists in action at the Fine Arts Building, the first building on the right of the main entrance.

Fronted by Lawrence Tenney Stevens' heroic statue of the pioneer family and horse, the art building this year contains exhibits by artists in many media; a continuous slide show of early Western art; Interior Design, a section devoted to high-style rooms, and the 21st annual International Exhibition of Photography.

Here visitors will see glassblowers at work, a blacksmith making horseshoes, and artists of international reputation at work at easel, block and potter's wheel. It is no small thrill to see a work of art created before one's eyes, to see an artist put brush to a blank piece of paper and create a lovely landscape, or a ceramist place a wet block of clay on his wheel and turn it into a handsome vase or bowl. The demonstrations are not hushed, hold-your-breath performances — the artists talk freely to the viewers, answer questions, explain what they are doing and what they hope to accomplish. It's an informal and educational class in art appreciation.



At the entrance to the Fine Arts Building, the visitor is greeted by a display of handsome saddles in a rustic setting of rocks, redwood chips and rails backed by an impressive mountain mural by artist Charles Allessio of Ontario. It happened in Pomona

Seventy years ago not many Pomonans were able to take a European or South Sea Island vacation during the long, hot summer months, but they did have something going for them that few of our townspeople take the time to enjoy today. They would spend a week or more at Camp Baynhem in San Antonio Canyon. In fact, not only Pomonans but also many people living in all parts of Southern California considered Camp Baynhem one of the outstanding vacation sports in this entire area.

In 1908, E.L. Durham, of Pomona, after a week stay at the camp, described its charm to a Pomona Progress reporter, stating that it was one of the finest mountain resorts he had ever visited.

"There is some new place to which one can go every day and the trips are certainly delightful," he reported enthusiastically.

Chief amongs those delightful trips, according to Durham, was a daily climb to Old Baldy's summit. Nearly all campers made the ascent by burro, usually starting up the trail late in the afternoon. The hikers and burro riders would then spend the night on the mountain top and the next morning witness that grandest of all spectacles, a sunrise on the mountain peak.

And finally, inspired by the many splendors made possible by Camp Baynhem, Durham went on to predict the time would come when one could step on a streetcar and enjoy a delightful cool evening ride up San Antonio Canyon as far as Hogsback.

CUT GLASS DECANTER

Antique-wise

Glass decanter collector's item

QUESTION: We recently came into possession of the cut glass decanter shown in the enclosure. Would you care to comment on its value? We have been told that its intricate cuttings might place unusual value on this piece. Does a mark or signature make a piece of cut glass more valuable? E.F.W.

ANSWER: Not always. It is true that many collectors like to purchase signed pieces as a guaranty of authenticity, but it is the craftsmanship, period and condition that determines the value of a piece of cut glass. Decanters like yours in perfect condition, minus a trademark and stopper, sell around $65-$75.

QUESTION: I have been collecting art pottery (American) for several years. Recently, I purchased a lovely large bowl at a tag sale — thinking I had a rare piece of pottery — but later learned I had bought a piece of "Tiffin" glass. This bowl is 9 inches high, has a jet black satin surface that is generously covered with raised bright orange poppies, and is very weighty. Can you tell me anything about the company that made this glass and what these large pieces sell for in antique shops? D.N.C.

ANSWER: Your bowl was made by the Tiffin Glass Company — a subsidiary of the U.S. Glass Company — located at Tiffin, Ohio. The black satin glass items produced here between 1923 and 1925 have become very collectible in recent years. Bowls like yours in perfect condition sell in shops from about $35-$45.

QUESTION: Please tell me the value of a pitcher, 12 goblets, a berry dish and 12 matching sauces in the Baltimore Pear pressed glass pattern. Mrs. A.L.K.

ANSWER: Water pitchers in the Baltimore Pear pattern sell for about $65-$76, goblets $20-$25 each, berry bowls from $20-$30, and sauce dishes $7.50-$10. Footed sauces are about $5 higher.

QUESTION: Could you please give me the value of a very nice ice cream parlor set, partially shown in the enclosure. The wooden table top is 40 inches in diameter and the legs are metal, painted white. The fancy folding ice cream chairs are also painted white.

On the bottom of the table is the mark of the manufacturer "A.H. Andrews Company, Manufacturers, Chicago, Pat. Apr. 16, '89 and July 10, '94. The chairs are unmarked. Mrs. J.M.C.

ANSWER: Five piece ice cream parlor sets like yours are worth around the $300 figure.

QUESTION: I recently discovered that I have several dozen old copies of The Saturday Evening Post, dating in the '30s and '40s, all having covers by Norman Rockwell. These magazines are in excellent condition. How much are they worth?

I also have two large prints of Rockwells, titled "The Famous Model 'T' Was Boss Of The Road," and "The Street Was Never The Same." Both are about 20 by 20. I understand that these prints were given away to Ford Motor Company customers several years ago. I would like to know when? M.C.Jr.

ANSWER: Your prints were produced during the early 1950s — and are becoming very collectible. Saturday Evening Post covers by Rockwell — from the '30s and '40s — usually sell from $3-$5.

QUESTION: I am interested in learning the value of two very old Chinese Temple vases, each having a teakwood base and cover.

The vases are porcelain with oriental decorations of "Geisha" girls in a garden. Complete, each vase measures 12 inches high and both are perfect. We have had these vases since 1938. Mrs. M.A.

ANSWER: Your decorative temple vases are worth about $250-$275 (pair).

chess

After winning half its games in the 1968 simultaneous exhibition in Edinburgh, Scotland, the MIT computer chess program MacHack was made an honorary member of the U.S. Chess Federation. (Huh?)

Six years later in Stockholm, 13 computers competed in their first world championship tournament. (You came a long way baby!)

The Soviet entry Caissa triumphed after winning a crucial game against Ostrich (Columbia University), which squandered a couple of winning chances. In an exhibition of friendship after the tournament, CHESS 4 (Northwestern University), which had tied for second but was the acknowledged strongest U.S. program, drew in 65 moves with the Soviet World Champion.

This August, the Second World Computer Championship was held in Toronto, Canada. The Northwestern entry, promoted and renamed CHESS 4.6, waited lean and hungry for its Soviet rival.

But the big match failed to materialize, when Caissa unexpectedly lost to the Duchess, an "aggressive" Duke University program, in the first round. Nonplussed, CHESS 4.6, which has won the Minnesota State Championship (humans), swept its mechanical counterparts to become champion.

Caissa tied for second with Duchess, while Univac's Chaos and Ma Belle's Belle tied for 3rd and 4th in the 16-man field.

Ironically, the CHESS 4.6 program is run on Control Data's Cyber 176. The latter is the very computer which the U.S. State Department would not let be sold to the Soviet Union.

Now we know why. World hegemony in machine chess was at stake!

Stamps in the news

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

Last year we celebrated the bicentennial of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. This year we commemorate the 200th anniversary of the drafting of the Articles of Confederation.

A new 13-cent stamp will honor the anniversary of the Articles and will be issued on Sept. 30 at York, Pa. where they were drafted. The stamp design features a vignette depicting five members of the Continental Congress at work around a conference table. The figures, say the U.S. Postal Service, are symbolic and not intended to portray specific members of the Congress.

It will be printed in red and brown on tan paper. Across the top of the design, in one line of red type, appears "Drafting the Articles of Confederation." Across the bottom in another line of red type are the words "York Town, Pennsylvania 1777" and "13c USA."

The Articles of Confederation were formally adopted on Nov. 15, 1777, and sent to the states for ratification. The ratification process was not completed until 1781. The Articles, however, served only until they were replaced by the U.S. Constitution in 1789.

The usual two methods of ordering first day cancellations are in effect — affixing your own stamps or letting the U.S.P.S. do it for you.

If you affix your own stamp which you purchase at your local post office, remember to address your envelopes with peelable return address labels on the right side. Orders must be postmarked no later than Oct. 15. Forward them to "First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, York, Pa. 17405. No remittance is required.

If you wish the U.S.P.S. to affix the stamps, then follow the same proecures about addressing the envelope, but include a money order for 13 cents per stamp and send to "Articles of Confederation Stamp, Postmaster, York, Pa. 17405." Again, orders must be postmarked no later than Oct. 15.

Navy film aimed at saving lives with 'realistic' story

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

On a moonlit ocean, a U.S. destroyer heads for disaster. Her path is on a collision course with that of an Australian aircraft carrier. The instant of impact approaches. They collide! The destroyer splits in two and slowly sinks. Men die and others battle to survive.

It's a tragic story told in a dramatic film produced by Audio-Visual Unit 284 of the Naval Air Reserve Detachment based at Floyd Bennett Field, Brooklyn, N.Y. In this documentary film re-enactment there were no casualties. In the original tragedy, 70 U.S. sailors lost their lives in the collision between the USS Evans and the Australian HMAS Melbourne during Pacific naval maneuvers in June 1969.

The purpose of the film is to save lives in future crash emergencies. It's a training film to instruct naval officers in proper operations procedures in times of crisis. It reveals the mistakes made during the real disaster, analyzes crash dangers and tells how to surmount them with the least casualties.

AVU 284 (formerly known as Combat Camera Group) is a unit of naval reserve personnel who in civilian life are photographers, cinematographers, directors, scriptwriters and journalists. They use their professional skills while serving in the naval reserve, producing films for the U.S. Navy at a substantial saving of taxpayer money when compared to what they would cost if done commercially. The Unit is headed by Capt. Arthur Ward, president of one of the largest motion picture sound studios in New York and Cmdr. George Heinemann, a producer and director of the NBC-TV shows.

To re-enact the maneuvers of the ships leading to the collision, the unit went to Norfolk, Va., where the Navy has a "mini-ocean." This is a 40-foot-square tank of water with accurate miniature ship models whose movements are guided by remote control. It is used normally by naval officers to practice ship handling under a variety of controlled circumstances.

Following a script that was completed earlier, the unit from Brooklyn shot all the footage for the film during their two weeks at Norfolk. One of their problems was to light the scene as it had been when the accident occurred.

An eight-foot-high seamless paper background was set up around two sides of the tank and the scene was lit by four 2000-watt quartz lights set up in a row — each covered with a blue gel — to give a uniform back-lit effect. During the filming, extraneous lights were turned off, leaving only the "moonlight."

"We were shooting in daylight to simulate a moonlit scene in the tank," said Photographer Gerry Costello, Chief Petty Officer in the naval reserve and a cinematographer with an aerospace company in civilian life. "We did it by underexposing the film one stop and pushing the processing to gain extra contrast."

Another problem was getting the cameras low enough to produce the point of view of an officer standing on the bridge of the ships. The camera was on a tripod as low as possible but safety precautions required it to be high enough to keep any electrical parts, like the power cord, out of the water.

Although the water in the tank was only six inches deep, any movement by the photographers created turbulent wave action. "We were in there in hipboots and had to hunker down and remain motionless," Costello said. "The water had to calm down before we could begin filming."

For live action scenes, the unit filmed aboard the USS Buttercup, the Navy's damage control simulator, in which navy personnel receive expert training in how to fight fires and repair structural damage. Many of the sequences were shot under "darken ship" procedures in which all white lights are turned off and only red illumination is permitted.

"That turned out to be a hot job," Costello recalled. "When we turned off the power for the white lights, the air-conditioning went off too. With our movie lights on, the temperature shot up to 110 degrees!"

The film, completed on schedule and on budget, was said by Vice Adm. Shanahand of the U.S. 2nd Fleet, to be the best training film he had seen. The Navy made about 100 prints of it for its officer training programs and for showing at ship handling schools at San Diego and at the Norfolk Fleet Training Center.

Since "The Melbourne-Evans incident," Audio-Visual Unit 284 has maintained its international reputation with its filming on "Up Sail," the Navy record of the International Naval Review celebrating our Bicentennial year. Its current project is "Home for the Seabees" with narration by John Wayne. It's a review of the Seabee story and its modern role in foreign countries, in the United States and in local communities.

A reflection of its achievement, the emblem of Audio-Visual Unit 284 packs symbolic significance: it shows a globe encircled by movie film, on which is superimposed a jet plane, a naval ship and a submarine.

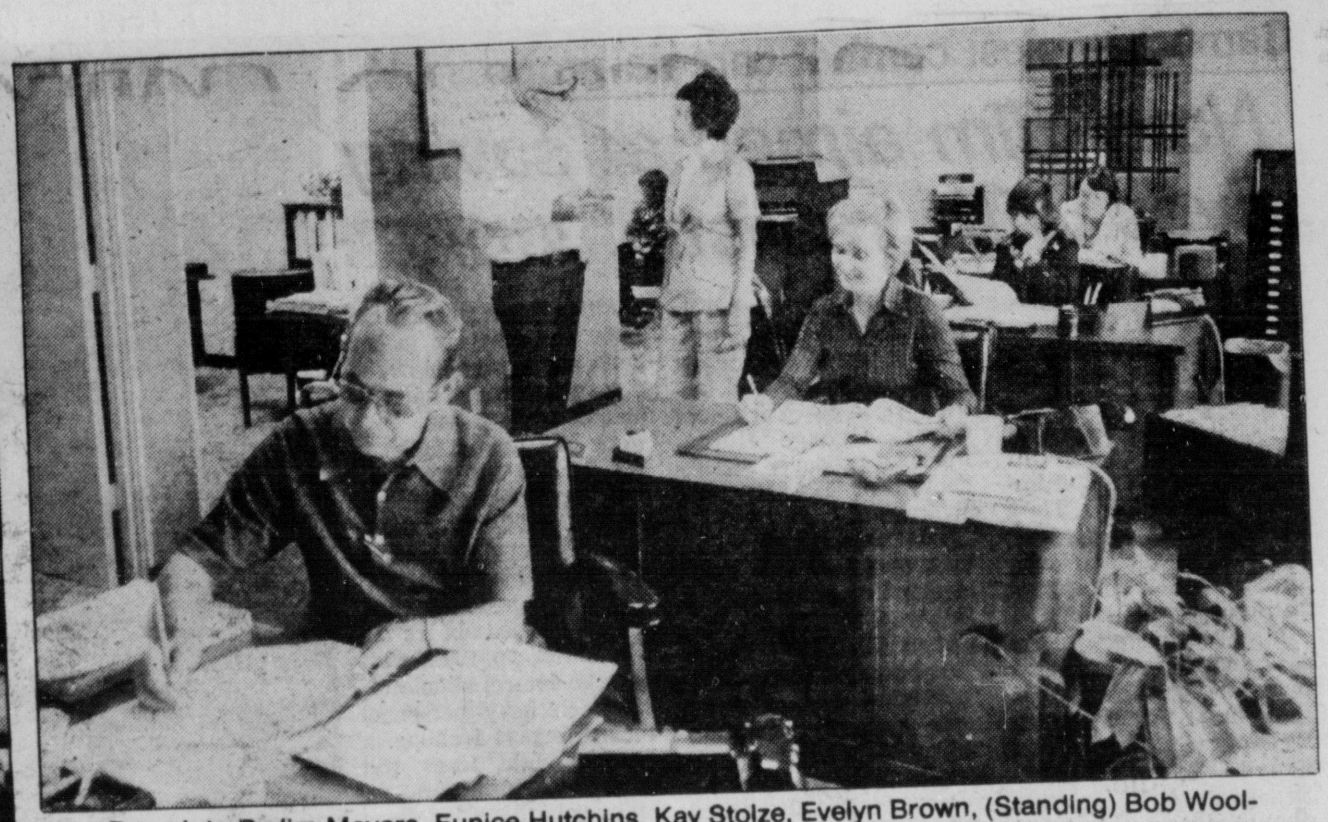
Florence Cohn in office filled with awards.



From L to R. Jim Meyers, Eunice Hutchins, Kay Stolze, Evelyn Brown, (Standing) Bob Woolsey and Kay Voss are busy at work helping families all over the valley.

Family Real Estate adds personal touch

Scrapbook is filled with stories about community activities and praise from clients.

Florence Cohn discusses sale with Robin Parker in the family room, which has toys for children and paintings for clients.

Family Real Estate was founded in 1967 and has been thriving ever since. Broker-Owner, Florence Cohn stresses the importance of liking people and the service side of the real estate field. She feels real estate is just as much a Women's World as it is a mans. Finding homes for clients is only a small part of the business. Matching them up with the right financing, meeting their individual family needs, and just being their FRIEND is most important.

Florence teaches a real estate practice course, writes her own column once a week, and has her own income tax business where she prepares returns for over 400 clients. This is a 23 year old business and many of the real estate clients are her tax clients as well. This gives the firm a great advantage in working out tax problems resulting from real estate transactions.

Salesmanager, Robert Woolsey, heads a staff of twelve salespeople. The staff attends weekly sessions for the exchange of up-to-date information in all aspects of real estate.

The office is situated on a modern office building on Indian Hill Blvd., just north of the San Bernardino Freeway. One room where clients are at home is called the Family Room. In it is a box of toys just for the kids to keep them busy while their folks are consulting about homes.

For your every Real Estate need call Family and you'll be pleasantly surprised.

Artists in action at county fairgrounds

The slides and prints at the 21st annual International Exhibition of Photography proving popular.

Julie Gerber of Claremont works at her potter's wheel. In lower photo, a padded chair in the shape of a baseball glove is an attraction in one of the rooms of Interior Design.

Glassblower Stuart Abelman puts a small jar into the furnace.

A stoneware ibex and porcupine by Betty Davenport Ford and a stoneware cactus by Helen Watson are just a few of the art objects that are on display in the fine arts building.

"Ibex" and "Porcupine." The scene is backed by another Allessio mural.

Passing into the first hall, art lovers will see exhibits of paintings, pottery and ceramic sculpture. At various times viewers will find Mrs. Ford at work on a sculpture, ceramists Linda Rosenus and Julie Gerber creating art on the potter's wheel, or Milford Zornes or George Allen working at their easels. John Fassbinder, Claremont potter, appears on weekends. Over the head of each artist is a large mirror angled so the visitor can see every movement and stroke of the artist and watch the painting or clay piece evolving.

Beyond the studios is a mini-theater showing color slides of the paintings and sculpture of Remington and Russell, two of America's foremost early Western painters. The slides for "Art of the Golden West" were drawn from museums throughout the United States.

Interior Design is a series of imaginative rooms displaying the latest in home furnishings and decorations. Bedroom, bathroom, livingroom and others show family living with taste and art. Director of Interior Design is former Pomona resident Dorothy Culbertson, now of Palm Springs.

The county fair photography exhibition in the next two halls displays hundreds of black-and-white and color prints and banks of colored slides. The exhibit includes entries from elementary school, junior high school, high school and college photographers. The exhibit also includes a collection of old cameras. Show superintendent is Louis Geib; Dorothy B. Decker is coordinator.

Outside of the Fine Arts Building is a broad, shaded walkway displaying ceramics, hanging fabrics and planters. Fountains, small pools, trees and shrubs provide an oasis on a hot day. Here one will see Red St. Cyr at work with his forge and anvil in a tiny rustic blacksmith shop, and glassblower Stuart Abelman at work with his pipes, molds, files and roaring furnaces.

The art department of the county fair is under the direction of Rick Petterson, internationally known artist and former professor at Scripps College.

"Art is more understandable with live artists at work," he said. "I think the public empathizes with these rather charming people who take art off the pedestal. The public has a right to come here and have an experience."

The art presentations at the county fair are indeed an experience.

A wide variety of her pottery is being exhibited by Linda Rosenus.

Do-it-yourself

Making good use of extra space

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

You may not need another room or even a new house if you feel cramped in the one you own. Often the solution may lie in utilizing existing space through a few good, do-it-yourself projects.

For example, many people fail to utilize space under stairs, an ideal location for storage. Such space usually has good depth so that it can be partitioned to accommodate bulky and outsize articles.

A luggage section can be built to the dimensions of the largest suitcase and be large enough to accept all the luggage in the house. A narrow space could be used for golf clubs, skis, fishing rods and other tall things. Bins of different sizes are ideal for storing baseball gloves, skates and heavy outdoor jackets.

Neatly finished with a door, it could have small pull-out sections so that bins may be reached easily. Properly done, the storage units should be unobtrusive.

In the kitchen, a storage pantry can be made out of a closet. It does not need to be deep to make kitchen articles more accessible and available in a tidier arrangement. Narrow shelves on the doors could be wide enough to hold jars of home preserves and cans. The shelves could be built into a frame with a molding on each shelf to keep jars and cans from sliding.

A low storage wall between a dining-living area can provide neat storage for many objects. Shelves can open on either side, where they are most useful. On the living side, there might be room for television, records, stereo. On the dining side, space could be used for china, glassware, placemats and other accessories. Doors could be put on some of the partitioned areas to make the unit more serviceable and a prettier design. Putting casters on a divider or bulky storage piece can make it more practical.

Children's closets may be more serviceable if they are rearranged. Closets are usually planned for an adult household. Little children often cannot reach their clothes rods, much less the shelf above it.

A drawer that is built at the bottom of the closet can provide something for the child to climb on to reach the clothes rod, in addition to providing a drawer. Recessed in the closet above the drawer and under the rod could be a couple of bins labeled for sweaters, laundry, shirts and even playthings. Rods might even be put on two levels. Good partitioning can encourage neatness.

Extra sleeping space can be provided by building a niche in a hall, and, if the space is for guests, a lavatory vanity in the bathroom can solve some guest-room storage. Use it for towels, soaps, tissue, sheets, pillow cases, pillow and other accessories. Enclosing a wash basin and its pipe can solve the lack of a vanity. Add a shelf to provide more use. Keeping things in it for immediate use will be a great convenience.

Tool houses are popular outdoors but most are so huge they become storage places for the barbecue, outdoor furniture and lawn mower. There are books that will tell how to build them, or they can be bought prefabricated, which is almost as inexpensive, if the do-it-yourselfer does not have the time.

Often such a house is not needed. If one were to build ceiling bins into exposed beams and install hooks in the garage, it might just be the solution. Knockdown outdoor furniture can be stored in a crawl space or hung from garage walls. A lawn mower can hang from brackets in the garage and even barbecues can become wall fixtures with a little planning.

Unusual measures listed for combating drought

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

The past summer has been a very dry one in many areas, causing problems for a number of home gardeners. So we're passing along a tip from the American Association of Nurserymen describing what drought-suffering friends in England are doing to help their trees overcome water troubles.

They are dispensing waste water in a stingy but sufficient amount through a homemade dispensing system.

First you need a big plastic bag, such as you purchase for trash disposal, or get when you buy fertilizer or peat moss. But it should be strong and without punctures, except at the top.

The top of the bag should be tied to a tree branch, then filled with water — from the bath, washing machine, dishwasher. A bit of soap in it won't matter.

Then with a pin, prick the bottom of the bag close to the tree trunk. The hole should be only large enough to permit water to drip out very slowly and run down the side of the trunk. In this way you'll get maximum penetration and full utilization of the water. Fill the bag as often as needed to continue the slow drip.

Schoolchildren in England are encouraged to adopt street trees for their personal care. This is where the bag watering system comes in.

Try it and help trees in your area through drought times.

Aphid Control

Recently we wrote about efforts to control aphids, one of the most destructive crop insect pests, through controlled love calls. Now the federal Agricultural Research Service reports another control move, this one a biological threat to many species of aphids.

The control is the seven-spotted ladybird beetle, which preys on aphids in Europe, Asia and North Africa. This cousin to the American ladybug already is established in several parts of the United States. It has been observed feeding on 25 species of aphids fround on the University of Delaware farm at Newark and last spring was an important factor in controlling pea aphids in an alfalfa plot there and in Oklahoma.

And an entomologist at the U.S. Agricultural Research Service Southeastern Fruit and Nut Research Laboratory in Byron, Ga., also identified the beetle as the most abundant aphid predator on the farm's legumes and fruit trees last spring.

Efforts to introduce the seven-spotted ladybird beetle in several states began in 1975, including New Mexico, Ohio, Washington and Illinois but definite establishment has not been confirmed there.

The French marigold, that popular 6-to 12-inch border favorite, isn't very French.

English herbalists began calling them French marigolds because they got the seeds from France. But the French not long before had received them from Spain, who had gotten them from Cortez and his Conquistadores from the Aztec capital in Mexico.

Patty Wilson's Magnificent Marathon

When 15-year-old Patty Wilson finished her 1,300 mile marathon from Buena Park, Calif. to Portland, she set a world distance record for women. But Patty's run was even more of an achievement — she completed it despite a fractured foot and the threat of an epileptic seizure. The story of Patty's fight against her epilepsy and the stigma from the disease is one you won't want to miss.

Washington's Workaholics

Many people envy what they believe to be the glamorous life of Congressmen and White House staffers. But top Washingtonians are so busy working 12-14 hours six days a week that they have little time for their families, let alone the Georgetown social circuit. Who are the workaholics and how did they get that way?

'You can do things on a shoestring'

Top designer urges new 'furniture' arrangement

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In decorating "you can do things on a shoestring by taking a less-is-more attitude," advises Vladimir Kagan of New York, a designer and manufacturer of furniture.

If you don't do anything else in decorating, get your furniture away from walls. It requires less space when furniture is placed in the interior rather than on the perimeter of the room, he points out.

Then, too, conventional furniture arrangements may pin you to old ideas in furnishings. Modern furniture has so changed that "we should landscape our floor space," he believes.

A well known designer of custom furnishings, Kagan discusses the current furniture market.

"We are in a romantic, nostalgic mood. We are not looking for revolutionary design or heavy experimentation like corrugated paper furniture," he says. "A few years ago we thought 18th-century furnishings were the only kinds of antiques. Now we have discovered the 19th century, such as the avant-garde furnishings of Brighton (England), which break away from what we know as polite 18th-century.

"In the early 20th century, Art Nouveau was far removed from contemporary concepts of being polite and acceptable. In our nostalgic mood for prewar romance, we are taking a closer look at the deco of the '30s and finding beauty in it as home fashion designers become less imitative and more interpretive.

"They are not making reproductions of the 1930s, they are making 1977 versions of it," he adds. "In the same sense, you could not wear your mother's old clothing and look fashionable in it, but fashion designers are picking what is alluring of that period and are turning the fashions into beautiful, natural, feminine styles. The same thing is happening with home furnishings. It is more natural, less garish and at a better taste level as sifted to a common denominator."

Although there is a bit of furniture that the trade calls "borax" still around there is a lot of liveable furniture at moderate prices. Kagan likes the new rattan lines of certain manufacturers in chairs using metal and wood and fabrics that are unrestrained.

Kagan's seven-year-old multilevel furniture designs have been widely copied, although he still doesn't think of it as mass market design, he said.

"I create islands of multilevels where you can sit, sleep, lounge and play. People don't want to sit at one level," he said in describing his furniture, which is used in many ways.

One bed, "an island within a room," has "liberated the bedroom." Cabinets and all sorts of things are part of the bed, which is built to be used anywhere in a room. A foam rubber perimeter can serve as a chair and chaise. He designs for people with unique ideas.

In 1943 Kagan began working with his father, a manufacturer and cabinet maker, who had been apprenticed in Russia at the turn of the century. He had emigrated to the United States in 1938 with his old tools and opened a little cabinet shop in New York.

As a result of his work with his father, Kagan studied architecture and began his own innovative career. He trains his own crafstmen and artisans, but says he always needs more — one problem in the furniture business today

Project not a stigma

She's still living in a 'vertical slum'

CHICAGO (AP) — For Nellie Jones, staying in the public housing high rise that had been her home for 15 years meant the chance to show young people that living in the project was not a stigma.

Many people, including members of her family, had expected that when Mrs. Jones became a $25,000-a-year public official she would naturally want to leave the $153 a month aparment in a building known as a "vertical slum."

But Mrs. Jones, sanitary district commissioner and mother of four school-age children, resents suggestions that she ought to move now that she is "making it.".

"Most people who start making it can't wait to get out," says Mrs. Jones, 44, who was elected to the sanitary district post last November for a 6-year term. "I want to stay here so I can inspire young people who feel stigmatized because they live in projects."

She said her own children, who range in age from 9 to 19, were among those urging her to move after she won the election and resigned her $9,432-a-year job as city traffic court clerk.

Her response: "I told them what I tell all the young people here. You can live here and make it too." Mrs. Jones also has three older children who are all married.

Mrs. Jones said she was tapped to run for the sanitary district board by the Regular Democratic Organization in the 2nd Ward, where she has worked as a precinct captain.

"That $25,000-a-year sounds good, but after taxes, campaign expenses and other bills, I'm not rich," she said. "My lifestyle hasn't changed much at all."

The Chicago Housing Authority notified her that she is over the income limit of $10,875 for continued occupancy of her four-bedroom apartment. But federal guidelines require the agency to find comparable private housing for her if it wants to evict her.

"We're in no hurry to get rid of her," says Robert Lefley, the agency's information director. "It's good to keep upwardly mobile families because they provide leadership and stability."

Besides, he added, there are 170 vacant apartments in the project.

CARLOS MONTOYA

Guitarist set at Ambassador

Flamenco guitarist Carlos Montoya will open the 1977-78 season at the Ambassador Auditorium in Pasadena with a recital at 8:30 p.m. next Saturday.

Flamenco titles can be perplexing. Concert audiences throughout the world, and millions of aficionados who collect his numerous recordings, are often confronted with a familiar title on a Montoya program or record liner, only to hear a wholly new musical piece. The reason for this is that Montoya prefers to give his solos their traditional generic names, rather than create what he calls a "fancy title" for each selection.

Thus it is that a program may list "Alegrias," "Buleria," "Farruca" (all of which describe dance rhythms) or "Tarantes," "Granainas" and "Peteneras" (which are songs), for two or three seasons running, and yet be a wholly new program.

In hewing so closely to the traditional thematic titles of his music, Montoya is mirroring the traditional nature of flamenco music. While the selections he plays are his own compositions, they all derive from traditional flamenco themes. There are many such melodies, usually consisting of but one short verse. Montoya takes such a short melodic scheme and improvises on it to create a wholly new self-contained musical entity.

Although he still clings to the traditional titles, he adds new variations to his pieces at every performance. Unlike the classical guitarists, he cannot rely on printed music by another composer; this masterful musician doesn't read a note. But, as Harold Schonberg once said in the New York Times: "He does something much more important; he makes music."

Tickets are $8.50, $7.50 and $6.50. The box office is open Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sunday, noon to 5 p.m. On Saturdays, tickets may be charged by calling "Telephone Tickets" at (213) 232-3371. The phone number for the box office and Phone Charge (BankAmericard - VISA, Master Charge or American Express) is (213) 577-5511. Tickets are also available through Mutual ticket agencies. This concert is sponsored by Ambassador College in conjunction with its department of music and art

Casting set for Columbo

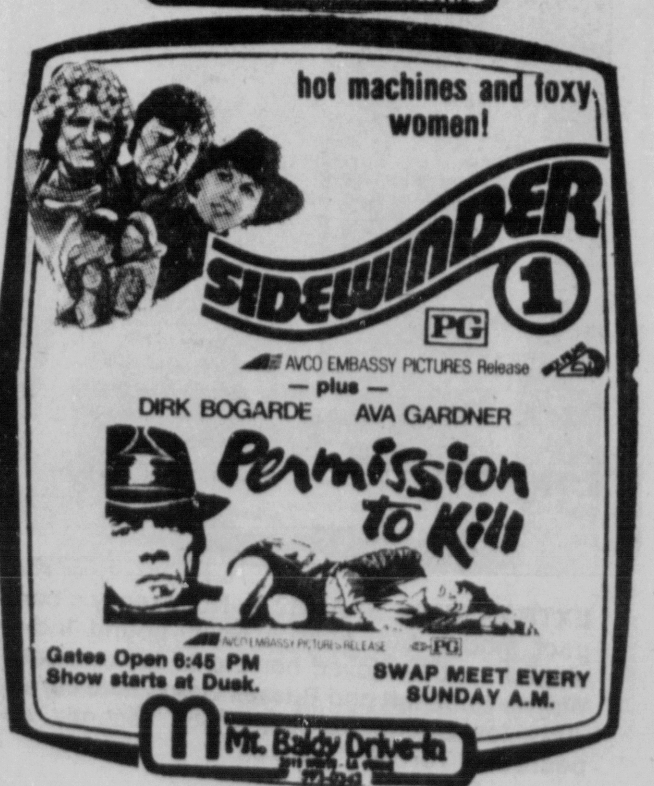
'Pinocchio' set at the Hartford

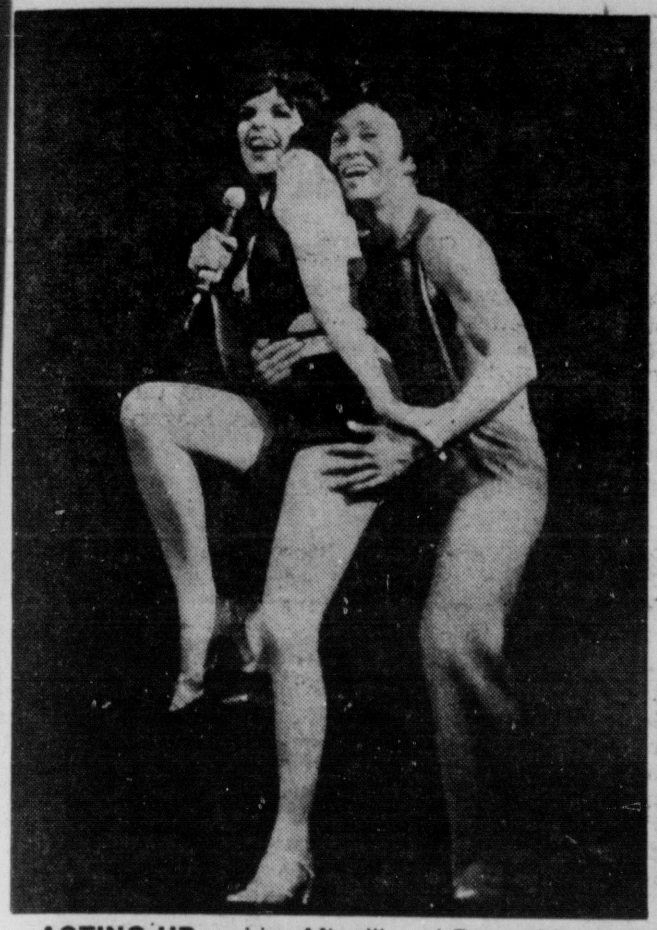
The children's classic, "Pinocchio," will be presented by a cast of life-size marionettes at the Huntington Hartford Theater in Hollywood for 16 performances Oct. 1-9.

A gallery of 102 life-size marionettes create a production of color and beauty, all moving to the original music and songs composed by Arnold Miller.

During its recent tour across the United States, the production was hailed by critics, educators and religious leaders for its imaginative and whimsical quality. The circus atmosphere and bouncy tunes keep the audiences excited and entertained, teaching the lessons and moral virtues of the original classic tale painlessly with fun and joy. Children become involved with "Pinocchio," a toymaker's creation whose nose grows whenever he tells a lie. They merrily travel with him on his way to becoming a real boy, while learning the virtues of honesty, bravery, dependability and many other lessons.

The eight-day engagement is being produced by Budrow Family Productions, Inc. in association with the educational program of the Southern California Theater Association, James A. Doolittle — General Director. The life-size marionettes are manipulated by a team of eight, under the direction of master puppeteer Charles Budrow. Performance schedule is: Tuesday-Friday at 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m., Saturdays at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. and Sundays at 1:30 p.m. and 4 p.m.





ACTING UP — Liza Minelli and Roger Minami cavort in a number from the musical, "The Act," playing through Oct. 17 at the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center. This is the final Los Angeles Civic Light Opera production.

Cy Coleman

Composer works with 4 lyricists

NEW YORK (AP) — Cy Coleman, composer of one of Broadway's current musical hits, is at work on four more shows — with a different lyricist for each.

Such energetic diversity, he says, is designed to overcome the usual hazards that beset theatrical creativity.

"The business end of getting something produced takes so much time that if you keep narrowing in on just one property, you don't grow and you end up frustrated."

The melody man's habit of teaming with sundry companions for the words to fit his tunes "is refreshing and stretches one's ability."

Coleman got together with Michael Stewart on "I Love My Wife," the blithe caper about marriage versus swinging that is playing to near capacity throngs at the Barrymore Theater. A London copy opens Oct. 4 and other productions are due soon in Spain, The Netherlands, Belgium, West Germany, Norway and Australia.

Since Main Stem debut in tandem with Joe McCarthy on songs for "John Murray Anderson's Almanac" in 1953, Coleman has been associated with Carolyn Leigh for "Wildcat" and "Little Me," with Dorothy Fields on "Sweet Charity" and "Seesaw."

On the immediate agenda is "20th Century," alongside the durable Betty Comden and Adolph Green. Adapted from a comedy by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, it goes into rehearsal Nov. 1 under Harold Prince's direction.

Further ahead are "Encounter," a group therapy story in which Coleman is allied with James Lipton; "The Baker's Dozen" based on Russell Baker's droll journalistic columns, lyrics by Barbara Fried, and "Atlantic City," in progress with Christopher Gore.

"I wouldn't want to give the impression I'm grabbing off a lot of projects all of a sudden," notes Coleman. "They've all been around from seven to two years. But you simply cannot just sit around and wait for people to raise the money, to wait for a director or something else. Right now I'm having my greatest surge of activity."

He ruefully recalls a couple of instances when single-minded concentration on a project got nowhere — "a wonderful score for James Thurber's 'Wonderful O,' and a show with Miss Fields about Eleanor Roosevelt — 11 producers had it but it never was done."

In every project Coleman tackles, "It's hard for me to think of myself as being into typical musical theater. I like to fool around with form, even if the differences aren't visible until some scholar comes around five years later to tell you what you did."

Adjusting to the work idiosyncracies of assorted lyricists occasionally creates problems which he insists better the product in the long run.

"You focus on the work rather than becoming buddies," he says.

The late Miss Fields, Coleman recalls, "drove me up the wall because she was a morning person and the thing that keeps me going is seven or eight hours of sleep. We both made concessions.

"Jimmy Lipton is always doing a thousand things. We get together and then each goes off by himself. With Comden and Green, work is better together. Carolyn (Leigh) was tough in that you always had to be there through the whole birth process."

Sometimes words, sometimes melody comes first for the New York-born melodist.

At age 48, bachelor Coleman has been in show business 42 years. "I was a child prodigy," he casually remarks, studying piano at four and giving public concerts when six.

When he was graduated from high school, steeped in Brahms, Ravel and Beethoven, he formed a jazz trio that immediately found night club employment. Soon he was a cabaret soloist, testing the songs that he was already starting to write.

"I never thought my career would primarily be in the theater," he says.

Coleman still likes to perform at the keyboard and this season will appear with symphony orchestras in 15 cities from Pittsburgh to Honolulu.

The selection he has programmed is "The Coleman Collection," a three-movement synthesis of his dulcet output thus far.
